SEN. BREWSTER MAPS WAY FOR U.S. AFTER WAR

American Interests 1st in Program.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Four all-American "musts" for the United States in a realistic post-war world were listed yesterday by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], member of the senatorial committee which toured the fighting fronts and came back with caustic criticism for certain phases of our role.

Sen. Brewster demanded:

1. An all-American system of communications reaching around the globe so that we will not be dependent upor any other nation for messages or news.

2. An all-American system of air travel using the 500 million dollars' worth of air bases we have developed around the world, without excluding other nations from rights.

3. An all-American merchant marine using our 20 billions worth of ships to carry one-third to one-half of our foreign trade.

4. An equitable share of the world's petroleum reserves to compensate for our contribution of 80 per cent of the gasoline and oil consumed by the allies.

Demand Facts Be Told.

More than 400 guests at the Executives' club luncheon in Hotel Sherman applauded Sen. Brewster's insistence upon a re-appraisal of our international policies to safeguard American interests. We can become "America first internationalists" only if we learn the truth of what is going on in other countries," he said.

He criticized American diplomacy. The blame for its weakness he placed not upon Secretary of State Hull, but upon President Roosevelt and "the evil genius of Harry Hopkins."

"We must sit at the council tables on the basis of equality," he said. "Our foreign service is utterly unequal to the task. There must be a vast extension of our diplomacy so that we will always be informed. I do not mean more kid glove diplomacy and more parties.

"Let's find out what it's all about! We must look abroad. But not thru the theories of an international WPA, which would be the very worst way of cultivating good will. Giving people things is not the best way to make friends."

Must Be World Travelers.

World trade and travel are the sound method for building up a sane program for lasting peace, he said. Predicting that we always will feed the hungry in an emergency within the limits of our capacity, he asserted that only the exchange of our goods for the raw materials and hand work of less developed nations can make for permanent good relations.

Sen. Brewster, a former governor of Maine, set great store in the value of foreign travel. He envisioned its development to the point where we will be spending from 5 to 10 billions a year for travel by which we will "get the feel of the world as the British have done for a century."

This will tie in with the use of American ingenuity to raise the level of other nations closer to our own by natural economic means, he said.

Altho it is generally agreed, he said, that there will be an association of nations after the war and that America will practice preparedness, he contended these steps alone will not avert World War III. Pos-

County Board First Tax Unit to Exceed Peg

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

The Cook county board yesterday became the first taxing unit to take advantage of the new 100 per cent basis for assessments in the county by increasing its proposed 1944 spending beyond the figure at which the state legislature has pegged it.

A total appropriation of $24,405,918 for 1944, including $4,000,000 to pay a 1943 deficit, was recommended by the board's finance committee. The county's tax levy was $7,300,000 for 1943; for 1944 the proposed levy is $13,473,000, an increase of more than $6,000,000.

It was contended that the appropriation was within conservatively estimated revenues, including an estimated $9,500,000 from taxes, $3,000,000 from interest on back taxes, and the balance from fees and licenses.

Change Permits Boost.

Under the old assessment methods the $9,500,000 would have been more than the county could have obtained by taxation at any legal rate under the pegged levy limitation imposed by the legislature. County Assessor Clark has changed the assessment basis from 37 to 100 per cent of full value, however. This would permit the county to levy some $18,000,000 or more in taxes. The Democratic majority on the board has indicated it favors discarding the peg to restore the county's credit.

The board ordered that the budget be advertised for public hearing at 10:30 a. m. Feb. 21. The bill, as it is or as amended, will be adopted by the board a few days later. Final action will require 10 votes.

One of the 10 Democrats, Maurice F. Kavanagh, is ill, and if he is unable to be present at voting time a Republican vote will be needed. Of the board's five Republicans, George F. Nixon is regarded as certain to be against any levy of more than 9½ millions. Two others, William N. Erickson and George A. Miller, said they wanted to study the matter. The others are William Busse and John Mackler.

Freezing of Levy Asked.

Several civic and business organizations have expressed alarm at the possibility of huge tax increases next year under the new assessments. The Chicago Association of Commerce has joined the Illinois Chamber of Commerce in requesting a special legislative session to pass laws freezing tax levies at the 1942 level.

Assistant State's Atty. William J. Tuohy told the board, of which he is legal adviser, that the general assembly could not invalidate a levy legal at the time it is made, as this one will be.

Clayton F. Smith, board president, said that the budget was one of the best the county had ever made and that it would "pay out and leave a surplus." Commissioner Daniel Ryan, acting finance chairman, who did most of the work on the appropriations, reported that $1,400,000 had been pared from original requests from departments, while at the same time raises of $15 a month had been granted to all employes earning less than $3,000 a year.

ACTS, 43 TO 28, TO HALT F.D.R. PLAN JUNE 30

New Deal Accused of Deception.

HOW THEY VOTED.

Roll call of senate members on passage of the Bankhead bill to ban subsidy payments on page 4.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The Roosevelt administration's food subsidy plan of spending tax money to reduce family grocery bills was overwhelmed in the senate today after a debate in which the administration was accused of sham and deception in attempts to hide its economic bungling.

The senate passed the Bankhead bill, 43 to 28. It would ban, after June 30, further expenditures on subsidies planned to roll back food prices or keep them down.

Altho the house has already passed the subsidy ban, it was freely predicted that Mr. Roosevelt will veto the measure, since the administration has pictured subsidies as the keystone of the nation's economic structure and a necessity to prevent runaway inflation. The measure must be made to conform on minor issues with the house bill before it is sent to the White House.

Branded Fraud on Labor.

The plan was assailed in the senate, nevertheless, as a fraud intended to convince labor that the Little Steel wage formula is not being broken. Critics charged that the administration has ample power to maintain the price levels if it has the will, asserted that the subsidies now in effect were established without congressional authority and scoffed at the plea that subsidies will prevent inflation.

Senators said the 1½ billion dollars in subsidies the administration had demanded in its program of expanding payments would reduce the grocery bill of a family of four only 11 cents a day, and that the beneficiaries would pay the money back, and more, in taxes.

Sen. Reed [R., Kas.] told the senate the apparent saving would be shared equally by Chicago's wealthy, New York's Park av. crowd, and the families living "on the wrong side of the railroad tracks."

Demand Test of F. D. R.

Explaining that President Roosevelt has always professed his sympathy for the latter class, Reed called for a test of the President's claims.

The test would be offered, Reed said, if the senate would pass the food stamp amendment of Senators La Follette [Prog., Wis.] and Aiken [R., Vt.]. This amendment would have provided a half billion dollars to be spent in limiting the subsidy benefits to low income families, thru a food stamp plan similar to that of relief days, to maintain a proper diet standard.

This amendment was beaten, 46 to 29, after La Follette had heaped rebuke upon the New Deal for arousing fear of economic chaos unless

SECRET U. S. COMPASS GUIDES FORTRESSES SAFELY IN OVERCAST

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—Flying Fortresses find German targets with a new gyro flux-gate compass which enables sky navigators to get instant bearings. In use for some time, the device was disclosed tonight after it was known several had fallen into German hands. A navigation officer said the compass eliminates needle wavering due to plane movements. Mounted out on one wing it is connected to cabin dials.

"It is just a compass with all errors out," one navigator explained. A navigator can stop figuring his course because the compass does this for him, he said. It was described as a great aid when planes fly thru overcast and find their way to the target and back to their own field.

FRUIT—25 TONS OF IT—IS BURNED

Protest Meeting Called in Detroit; OPA Blamed.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 11 [Special].—A public hearing will be held here tomorrow morning to protest and fix the blame for the destruction of 51,000 pounds of small citrus fruits, mostly oranges, dumped and burned at a municipal incinerator last week.

The war food administration also has been asked to investigate the waste of food in a "scandal" that assertedly deprived Detroit children of needed vitamins.

Produce dealers said the 25 tons of fruit had to be dumped because price ceilings delayed its sale so lon gthat it spoiled. A major contributing reason given by Charles Lockwood, secretary of the Greater Detroit Consumers council, was that with only one OPA ceiling "and that set on the larger, higher quality fruit, there is a tendency on the part of retailers to try to get ceiling prices for all sizes."

OPA Officials Invited.

OPA officials, wholesalers, retailers, and labor and consumer groups were invited to participate in the public hearing called by Lockwood. Prof. Edward McFarland of Wayne university will preside over the meeting.

The war food administration inquiry was asked by Walter P. Ruether, vice president and director of the consumer division of the United Automobile Workers [CIO.]

"Such wanton wasteage of food cannot be tolerated in this war emergency," he said. "The public interest demands that the facts behind this scandal be brought to light so that the citizens of Detroit may know if valuable fruits are being deliberately destroyed for the purpose of holding up retail prices."

Ceiling Price Cut.

Clinton R. Campbell, price expert of OPA, denied that the dumping resulting from the OPA ceiling being too high. He attributed the spoilage to the absence of consumer demand, especially for small fruit, compared with the large amount of fruit being placed on the market. However, the ceiling price on oranges here was reduced 1 cent a pound yesterday, five days after the burning episode.

The 25 tons of fruit was hauled to the 24th street incinerator last Friday an dSaturday. It was the property of a number of wholesale fruit houses in the Detroit market. Four truck loads of the fruit were dumped at one time.

Nazi Shells Kill 2 U.S. Nurses; 19 Midwest Girls Decorated

Hospital Hit

AT THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD IN ITALY, Feb. 11.—Four German shells landing on an American field hospital last night killed two women nurses, wounded four officers and three enlisted men. These deaths make a total of five American nurses killed on this beachhead since the landings three weeks ago tomorrow.

Lt. Rita Rourke.

The other three nurses were killed during the German air bombing of an evacuation hospital a few days ago.

Lights Cut Off.

The shells struck between 5:30 p. m. and 5:45 p. m. The first one hit the road in front of the receiving tent, the second hit the receiving tent, and the last two went thru the war tents.

Fragments hit the generator for the electric light system, plunging all the tents, including the operating tent, into darkness. Maj. James Mason, chief surgeon from Birmingham, Ala., was just about to perform a delicate abdominal operation when the lights went off.

Nurses Cooking Meal.

The two nurses killed were in their tent cooking supper when shell fragments showered the tent.

Second Lt. Rita Rourke, a nurse from 5445 Dorchester av., Chicago, Ill., said: "We had a hard time quieting our patients. They couldn't move, but just lay on their cots saying, 'But nurse, this is incoming mail. We know the sound. That's how we got wounded. You must go to fox holes and forget about us.' But the nurses stayed at their posts and tried not to show fear. Then the lights went out and we evacuated the patients to other hospitals, including the patient about to be operated upon."

"We are getting fighting mad and can take it," she added.

Praised by Aurand

Members of the army nurse corps from Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan have conducted themselves with great valor and distinction on active duty, Maj. Gen. Aurand, commanding officer of the 6th service command, army service forces, reported here yesterday in announcing that half the nurses who have been decorated for heroism were recruited thru the 6th service command, altho the area supplied only 14 per cent of the corps' members.

Thirty-eight army nurses, 19 of whom represented the 6th service command, have been decorated, according to a war department report as of Feb. 1, he stated.

Chicagoans Honored.

Chicagoland nurses who have been decorated include Lt. Rosalie L. Swenson of 4278 Hazel st., the Legion of Merit; Lt. Gertrude Edna Mills of 7919 Champlain av., the Purple Heart, and Lt. Edith A. Ahlgren of Woodstock, Lt. Anna A. Ganzubl of Joliet, Lt. Beryl A. Laird of Homewood, Lt. Lucille M. Siuda of 4121 N. St. Louis av., Lt. Elizabeth M. Sullivan of 1819 Polk st., and Lt. Mae E. Olson, a graduate of West Side hospital in Chicago, the air medal.

Other Illinois nurses decorated were Lt. Agnes Nolan and Lt. Madonna H. Nolan of Oakland, the Purple Heart, and Ruth V. Barnes of Reynolds and Lt. Agnes Cooling of Rockford, both the air medal.

Four Receive Air Medal.

Four Wisconsin nurses received the air medal. They were Lt. Catherine H. Kolitsch of Appleton, Lt. Elizabeth M. Mackin of Wauwatosa, Lt. Mary M. Muckerheide of Milwaukee, and Lt. Dorothy P. Shikoski of Green Lake.

The air medal was also awarded to two Michigan nurses, Lt. Joyce V. Boisvert of Champion and Lt. Ethel R. Kovach of Detroit. Also recruited thru the 6th service command was Lt. Burnette I. Stensrud of Freeborn, Minn., formerly employed in Fort Dodge, Ia., who received the air medal.

Students Obey Rules, So They're Three Hours Late!

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 11 (AP).—Traffic rules taught in the classrooms were adhered to by six street car loads of Withrow High school students today. A broken trolley wire stalled the cars three blocks from the school building. The students, who had been instructed not to enter streets between intersections, remained in the cars until the wire was repaired. They reached class—three hours late.

Iowans' Whisky Ration Cut to One Fifth a Month

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 11 (AP).—Whisky rations of Iowans today were reduced to one pint for each permit holder in the last week in February and one-fifth of a gallon for the entire month of March. The present ration is one fifth or quart of whisky every other week.

Party Leaders Urge Finland to Ask Peace

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Finnish social democratic party parliamentary group expressed a desire today that the government find out Russia's peace terms. Party members held a meeting with Vaino A. Tanner, Finnish finance minister, and leader of the group, dispatches to the Swedish press from Helsingfors said tonight.

Dispatches said the day was marked by extensive diplomatic and political activity in Helsingfors as debate over United States Secretary of State Hull's advice to the Finns to get out of the war swept over the country.

No Direct Contact Seen.

The action of the Social Democratic party in taking over discussion of Finland's position seemed to indicate, however, that there still is no contact between Moscow and Helsingfors on peace.

[A report from Madrid said the Spanish news agency EFE in a dispatch from Berlin, said "Berlin political circles express doubt that Finland can long oppose the influence and pressure of the various allied nations."]

Henrik Ramsay, minister for foreign affairs, saw the German minister, Von Bluecher, who returned today from conferences in Germany, the Helsingfors correspondent of the newspaper Svenska Dagbladets said.

Two important Finnish parliamentary blocs—the Conservatives and Agrarians—have not met as yet, but dispatches said Hull's warning had taken effect among them.

More Flee Bomb Threats.

Even the Fascist newspaper, Ajan Suunta, is discussing Hull's statement "respectfully," the Svenska Dagbladet's correspondent said, after having strenuously opposed foreign intervention in the past.

Meantime 100,000 Finnish women and children—one-quarter of Helsingfor's population—have left the capital under new threats of bombings by the Russians.

[A London dispatch said the Finnish radio announced that 150 Russian planes bombed the industrial city of Kotka, 70 miles east of Helsingfors, for two hours Thursday night.]

U. S. BATTLESHIP OKLAHOMA ONCE MORE IS AFLOAT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—The navy reported tonight that the U. S. Battleship Oklahoma, capsized in the Japanese sneak bombing raid on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, is once more afloat.

The 30 year old battleship has been righted, the navy announced, "after an interval in drydock during which repairs to her hull were made." It did not say whether she has been recommissioned.

The Oklahoma aided in guarding against enemy cruiser attacks and protected convoys off the Irish coast during World War I. She later was modernized and had an over-all length of 583 feet, mounted 10 14-inch guns, 12 5-inch guns, as well as eight 5-inch anti-aircraft guns. She had two catapults and carried three planes.

FORECAST ZERO BLAST IN WAKE OF HEAVY SNOW

Chicago dug its way out from under 8.4 inches of snow yesterday and prepared for temperatures ranging from zero to 5 below scheduled to arrive this morning.

The storm reached its peak late Thursday night and diminished thruout the day yesterday, subsiding into flurries. One death was reported in Indiana, where snow drifted to a depth of six feet.

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Feb. 11 (AP).—Attacking during a wild storm that swept the battlefield with deluges of rain, 5th army troops fighting on the Anzio beachhead were reported tonight to have advanced slightly in fierce hand to hand battles with the Germans in the Carroceto [Aprilia] area.

[A London broadcast recorded early today by CBS said latest reports from the Anzio bridgehead told of allied forces having "advanced slightly at two points in the Carroceto area," adding, "they have gained possession of a useful road network and a bridgehead across a fast stream in sectors where the German counter-attacks have been strongest."]

A dispatch from a British correspondent at the front said the allies, who had been reported hard pressed by numerically superior German forces, "returned to the attack this morning" and advanced in the Carroceto area during the day.

When the attack began, allied artillery laid down a heavy barrage during a gale that reached hurricane force, uprooting trees and accompanied by rain turning the countryside into fields of mud.

Nazi Resistance Is Bitter.

The dispatch said the Germans were offering bitter resistance, "defying calls of surender and are only being ousted by the grenade and bayonet."

The limited allied shift to the initiative followed reports of heavy German attacks in which the enemy had claimed the allies were ousted from the Carroceto area.

[Following a British advance of 12 miles on Jan. 29, it was announced on Jan. 30 that Carroceto was firmly in allied hands.]

The Germans were taking advantage of the blinding rain and wind storms which grounded allied aerial support to hammer the exposed beachhead at different points. Large numbers of tanks were reported being employed by the enemy as mobile artillery.

The weather, upon which much depends in the effort of weary American and British troops to hold the beachhead, turned squarely in the enemy's favor at noon yesterday after a clear morning during which virtually every allied combat plane in the Mediterranean theater blasted German troop concentrations and military traffic just behind the fighting line.

60 Mile Gale Blows.

Even four engined Flying Fortresses and Liberators swung low to rain tons of explosives on five key points in the highway network around the beachhead before the weather closed down and made observation impossible.

[A dispatch from London said that the use of heavy bombers was a "clear indication that a crisis has been reached in the Italian fighting and that the allied position south of Rome is in danger." The big planes were used for such tactical purpose only twice before, it was said, at Kasserine Pass in Tunisia and at the most critical stage of the landing operation at Salerno in southern Italy.]

This concentration of aerial might to pound at the converging enemy forces was itself an indication of the seriousness of the beachhead situation. What three weeks ago was a powerful thrust into the German flank had become a besieged force clinging to a chunk of Italian coastal plain that offered few natural defenses. The Germans now have at least five divisions and a brigade to hurl into the battle.

Front dispatches reported that some of the bitterest fighting today was between American tank destroyers and groups of German tanks that jumped from point to point trying to pierce the allied line.

A dispatch from the bridgehead reported that the enemy had captured an important ridge commanding several square miles of the area. "The loss of this high ground admittedly is serious, but enemy attempts to crash across the plain from this springboard were repulsed," it was said. Maps show that Carroceto is on an elevation more than 200 feet higher than the allied landing beaches, but the dispatch did not say the village had been recaptured by the Germans.

[A German broadcast estimated that more than 4,000 Americans and British had been taken prisoners in the bridgehead fighting, and said that Nazi artillery fire from the hills was so accurate that four allied destroyers had been chased from the waters off Anzio.]

Yanks Gain in Cassino.

Farther south in the Cassino battle area, American troops were reported to have moved forward slightly. Losses on both sides in the bitter fighting were reported heavy.

Two famous religious buildings, the papal palace at Castel Gandolfo near the Anzio beachhead and the Benedictine monastery on Monte Cassino overlooking Cassino are in the hottest combat areas. Targets barely a mile from the pope's summer home were heavily bombed yesterday, and fighting is raging virtually at the gates of the monastery.

Activities on the 8th army front near the Adriatic still were limited by adverse weather conditions.

GERMAN WAR REPORT

The German war bulletin yesterday said of the fighting in Italy:

"On the Nettuno beachhead mopping up of the Aprilia [Carroceto] area was continued and the railway station of Aprilia was captured. Enemy attacks against new German lines collapsed in concentrated fire from all weapons.

"Since the beginning of landing operations the Americans and British have lost more than 4,000 prisoners and 89 tanks in the Nettuno area.

"The enemy landing heads are exposed to incessant fire from German heavy, long range batteries.

"On the southern front northwest of Cassino lively fighting activity lasted thruout the day. The enemy, who had penetrated the northern part of Cassino for the third time, was again expelled from the ruins of the town. A height which had been lost northeast of Cassino was retaken in a counter-attack.

"On the remaining front the enemy launched major attacks against our height positions only in the sector east of the gulf of Gaeta. These were beaten off."

Before a cheering audience of 25,000 radar-radio workers assembled at a patriotic rally in the Chicago Stadium last night, Miss Dorothy Crisp, 18, of 2944 Madison street, was crowned queen of radar-radio. She is an electronic solderer employed at the American Phenolic corporation, 1830 S. 54th av., Cicero. Miss Crisp was the final winner among candidates entered by 40 of the city's radar-radio industries. She is a statuesque blonde, and the title of queen brought her a $250 war bond.

Last night's rally was the climax of a drive to recruit women workers for 52 electronic plants to make the vitally needed "eyes and ears" equipment for the army and navy. Here especially for the program were Rear Adm. Claude A. Jones and Maj. Gen. William Henry Harrison, both of whom emphasized the need of the equipment to save lives and to speed up the knockout blows to both Nazis and Japs.

William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, predicted that lack of response of Chicagoans to the need for workers in the industry will be "disastrous for the entire city, and the progress of our whole war effort will be bogged down." Mayor Kelly warned that failure to keep up radar-radio output might result in classification of Chicago as a labor shortage area in which no new contracts necessitating employment of additional workers will be awarded.

LANDON URGES DEMOCRATS TO FIGHT 4TH TERM

Knoxville, Feb. 11 (AP).—Calling on "anti-totalitarian Democrats" to join with Republicans and prevent Roosevelt from being elected to a fourth term, Alfred M. Landon, G. O. P. Presidential nominee in 1936, tonight bitterly attacked the New Deal and a group he called the palace guard.

He declared that authoritarianism had shrouded itself in the "hallowed robes of the honored Democratic party and is seeking a stealthy assassination of the American system of free enterprise."

Speaking to a Lincoln day dinner audience, Landon charged that New Dealers have said "the little fellow has no place in a planned economy," and declared that the new Deal was nothing if not a planned economy.

SITUATION TENSE AT BEACHHEAD, F.D.R. ASSERTS

Allies Pray for Good Weather, He Says.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—President Roosevelt today acknowledged that the military situation at the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead below Rome was very tense.

The chief executive told his press conference the allies are praying for good weather, which will enable employment of air and naval superiority to full advantage.

Shortly after the conference, the President met with Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff; Adm. King, chief of naval operations; Adm. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff, and Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air forces.

In military circles the situation was described as grave. It was said that even tho the allied forces can stand against the German pressure which threatens to drive them back to the sea, no great tactical advantage can be expected to result from maintenance of allied forces in the area.

Report Landing Opposed.

It was reported that Gen. Alexander, allied commander in Italy, opposed the opening of the beachhead, which was proposed by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. There was no official confirmation of this report.

The original landings were small—possibly as little as two divisions. While the initial landings were a success in that tactical surprise was achieved, the opportunities gained were not followed up.

German air installations were neutralized, but troops did not reach the mountains where they could have flanked the Appian way, which is now a highly important German communication route. The road was not cut.

Failure to follow up the surprise has been traced by observers to the limited mechanized equipment given the landing forces.

May Become Stalemate.

One armored division in the landing might have meant the difference between success and what, at the best, may become a costly stalemate, because maintenance of supplies to the beachhead by water will employ considerable naval forces, constantly exposed to enemy attack.

It was said here that an armored division could not be landed at Nettuno, because it requires too much shipping—far more than an infantry division. However, it is felt by observers that the army in emphasizing the ground forces has gone too far in deëmphasizing the tank.

BRICKER CALLS FOR 8 YEAR LIMIT ON PRESIDENCY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—Gov. Bricker, hitting at Democratic talk of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, called today for a constitutional amendment limiting White House tenure to a maximum of eight years.

Closing out a three day national capital visit, aimed frankly by friends at advancing his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination, the towering, gray haired Ohio governor addressed some 400 newsmen and guests at a National Press club luncheon. Then, declining to go "off the record," he replied to questions as to his views on government and politics by stating that under the New Deal there has been a gradual encroachment on the rights of individuals. He recalled that President Roosevelt, in his annual message to congress, set forth a "second Bill of Rights." Bricker commented: "If we paid more attention to the first Bill of Rights there would be no need for a second."

Sen. Bridges and State Department Aid Wed

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 11 [Special].—Sen. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] and Miss Doloris Mae Thauwald of St. Paul today were married at a ceremony attended by members of the bride's immediate family in the Lutheran Church of the Reformation. The bride, an administrative assistant in the world trade intelligence division of the state department, said she would return to her present position after a 10 day honeymoon to Chicago and Hot Springs, Ark.

WEARY YANKS INCH UP CRAGS ABOUT CASSINO

WITH THE 5TH ARMY AT CASSINO, Feb. 11 (AP).—Weary, mud-stained American doughboys inched their way up the rocky hills above Cassino today carrying out their attack in rain, sleet, and hail in an effort to bring a quick end to the bloody house-to-house fighting in the shambles of Cassino below.

Progress was slow and painful among the rocky crags, especially on Monte Cassino where the Germans have built their defensive system around the historic Benedictine abbey.

Aim to Cut Highway.

It is believed that the objective of the present attack is to capture the hill and to move around behind and cut off Highway 6, the high road to Rome.

In the town itself American troops moved forward a few houses from the north end of the community where they have clung to a slender toe told for 10 days.

It is the same type of fighting the Americans have been employing since the beginning, smashing German pillboxes and sniper posts with tank fire, then moving in to take over the remainder of the building.

The city prison has been almost completely flattened since the first night, for when the doughboys entered they found it honeycombed with German sniper nests.

Losses Are Heavy.

Today's rain has turned into a sticky muddy mess. Water runs down the mountains in torrents to plague tired but willing doughboys. The broad valley in front of Cassino was converted into a small lake as the Rapido river overran its banks and covered the fertile farm lands east of the town.

Some of the trails up to the front lines could be negotiated only by pack mules and hundreds of them could be seen heading toward advanced positions. Doughboys accustomed to swift travel on jeeps were astride mules, usually leading one or two behind, and they appeared perfectly at home.

The fight for Cassino has now turned into one of the bitterest of the entire Italian campaign with losses on both sides heavy.

HEAD OF LEGION URGES SPEEDY HELP FOR VETS

Warren H. Atherton.

Greater provision for prompt rehabilitation of returning soldiers and sailors was urged last night by Warren H. Atherton of Stockton, Cal., national commander of the American Legion, before the Police post of the American Legion in Hotel Sherman. He said more than 100,000 casualties already have been returned to this country from evacuation hospitals, but that plans for their care are still in a formative stage.

LEG CRUSHED BY TRAIN.

Ray M. Voelpel, 48, of 819 Brummel st., Evanston, a brakeman for the North Shore line, suffered a crushed leg yesterday when he was pinned under the axle of a derailed caboose on Commonwealth av. in North Chicago.

London Paper Assails Gag on Critics of War in Italy

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Denunciation of what it calls an official campaign to still criticism of Italian operations was contained in the Weekly Tribune today.

"The public is accused of being impatient with the soldiers in Italy and unappreciative of the difficulties they have overcome, and ungenerous of the sacrifices they make," the newspaper says. "This is nonsense—and people who use these shoddy arguments know it. It is a wicked distortion of the genuine uneasiness, not with the men on the spot, but with the men who put them there.

The public "never subscribed to the oratorical fallacy and the geographical ignorance which, at one time, authoritatively described the new theater as the soft underbelly of Europe," the paper added.

It denounces the argument "now generally inspired by military authorities that the aim of the campaign is not territorial but the straining of German resources," asserting that the Germans used "two divisions sparingly against our 14 in Sicily . . . husbanded their resources thruout their retreat and suffered comparatively light casualties . . . staked one division against the allies in Salerno and rather more on the Adriatic sector to thwart the 8th army advance.

"For months the allies have been inching their way toward Cassino. Hundreds of thousands of shells have been fired en route. Thousands and many more thousands of tons of shipping from America and this country carried supplies. Ten thousand air sorties have been flown against enemy positions and communications. The Brenner pass was blocked, the Montecenerl tunnel closed, the Bolzano railway bridge destroyed, and the marshaling yards and supply routes given no respite.

"Now, at the end of this effort, we learn that Cassino still is in German hands—not held by 100,000 or even 50,000 Germans, but being defended by about 1,000 Germans.

PREDICTS HOUSE WILL STICK TO STATE VOTE BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] predicted today the house will stand pat on its state ballot bill for soldiers' balloting, and will never accept any version of the modified federal ballot bill adopted by the senate.

Rankin is one of five house conferees who will meet Monday with senators in an effort to reconcile the conflicting bills of the two chambers. He termed the senate bill one of that body's "outstanding blunders" and said he will oppose it "till doomsday."

The Mississippi congressman expressed fears that those southern senators who supported a federal ballot have "committed political suicide." Meanwhile, the National Grange, in a letter to all congressmen, urged them to adhere to the state ballot proposal.

E. J. Barrett, Now Marine, to Run for Secretary

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 11 (AP).—Edward J. Barrett, former state treasurer and auditor, now a marine private in the Southwest Pacific area, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, it was announced here tonight.

E. J. Coyle, Springfield attorney formerly employed under Barrett in the state auditor's office, said he had received Barrett's decision by mail and petitions will be put into circulation for him immediately.

YANKS SMEAR SOOT ON FACES; RAID NAZI BEACHHEAD TOWN

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD.

[Representing the combined American press.]

[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

AT THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Feb. 10 [Delayed].—Americans, who blackened their faces with soot from cooking utensils and wiped out the entire Nazi garrison of a town in a daring night plunge behind the German lines, returned today jubilant and happy.

The Yankees, slinging hand grenades, occupied the town in half an hour, killing 60 Nazis, wounding scores of others, and taking nine prisoners. Their own losses were comparatively light.

Lt. Adna H. Underhill of Summit, N. J., led the attack. He said:

"We had the town in our hands a half hour after we started, entering following a short artillery barrage. We overcome two machine gun nests which put up a cross-fire and we had to take a certain amount of mortar fire. The German defense in the town, however, was weak and we had no difficulty chasing out the entire garrison of some 50 men. They brought up reënforcements but we took care of them, too, in their two efforts at counter-attacks."

Underhill based his figure of 60 dead Germans on 40 bodies counted in the town plus an estimate of 20 more dead as the result of firing against the counter-attacks.

FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Jacob Mesin, 51, was found dead yesterday, apparently from a heart attack, in his home at 5028 S. May st.

COL. M'CORMICK TAKES HIS NAME OUT OF PRIMARY

Letter Bares Reasons for Withdrawal.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, yesterday sent a letter to the secretary of state at Springfield, formally withdrawing his name from the Presidential preference primary in Illinois. He also sent a letter discussing his declination to Capt. William J. Grace of the Republican Nationalist Revival committee, which on Feb. 5 filed nominating petitions without Col. McCormick's signature.

The publisher's letter to Capt. Grace follows:

"I have known for some time of your activity in gathering signatures to petitions asking that my name be placed on the Illinois primary ballot as a candidate for President.

"Hundreds of these petitions, bearing thousands of signatures, have been sent to my office. I replied to each of these friends that I was unable to be a candidate in the primary.

"It was only last Saturday that I learned definitely that you had obtained additional signatures which you had filed with the secretary of state.

Decides Against Use of Name.

"Since then I have considered whether, out of politeness to those who have paid me such a high compliment, I should allow my name to remain on the ballot while not participating actively in the canvass. My decision is against it. It would be unfair to enter a contest unless I intended to enter into it with all my strength. This, in turn, as I wrote Mr. Berve [Ben L. Berve, Republican state chairman] would require my resigning the editorship of THE TRIBUNE, where I know I can be of service to my country, to enter the speculative field of a candidate.

"When you began circulating your petitions, the issue was the relatively simple one: Shall the foreign policy of our country serve the American people, or, alternatively, the Communists and their Wall street allies, who have been using it in furtherance of their own special interests? Since then, the issue has become vastly extended.

Saving Republic Is Issue.

"The question today is: Can the republican form of government be preserved from the coercion and corruption of Roosevelt, who is even now browbeating congress to overthrow the unmistakable language of the Constitution? In the next nine months the question will be decided whether a government of the people, by the people, for the people can endure.

"In the presence of such an issue all of us must set aside our personal ambitions and predilections. This letter is intended to make it perfectly clear that so far as I am concerned, that is the course of conduct I intend to pursue.

"Patriots must consult each other to select that candidate who will best represent the American people; and once that man has been found, must unite solidly to obtain his election. Too much is at stake to permit any other course to be followed."

RAPS NEW DEAL POLICY TOWARD NEGRO SOLDIERS

Negroes from 36 states, attending a national Republican conference in the Pershing hotel, 6400 Cottage Grove av., yesterday heard William E. King of Chicago, former state senator, urge that some action be taken in behalf of the Negro fighting man.

Edwin Henry.

"Under the New Deal," said King, "the Negroes have been denied the right to fight and die for the country they love. I hope this meeting will work out some plan to right this wrong.

The conferees are to consider recommendations to the Republican national convention, which will be held here June 26.

Edwin Henry, judge of the Municipal court in Philadelphia, was named temporary chairman of the meeting. Other officers chosen are: Charles W. Anderson, member of the Kentucky state legislature, vice chairman; Mrs. Fennie Shenks of Minneapolis, second vice chairman; Atty. Eunice H. Carter of New York City, recording secretary; Charles Mahoney of Detroit, treasurer.

Asks Equitable Share of World's Oil.

sibly we would have to stand against the onslaughts of four continents, he said.

"Cynics would suggest that world peace is a chimera," he said. "But let's remember that most of us here were born in a century that had not known a world war. This was not a result of the difficulties of transit as is evidenced by the fact that the 18th century found the world in arms in conflicts originating in London, Paris, and Madrid, but spreading over most of this continent."

One of the great hopes for peace rests in the record of China, which has not been an aggressor, he said. A stronger China will be a force in keeping the peace, he said, adding praise for its seven years of resistance to Japan.

"We are now serving notice upon the Japanese navy that we will break thru its blockade to land supplies in real quantity on the coast of China," he said. "When that happens we won't need to worry about what will happen to the vaunted might of Japan."

Sen. Brewster was particularly bitter about our dissipation of petroleum.

"If there is another cataclysm," he said, "America would be a mendicant nation stripped of oil resources with which to fight a war."

Seeks Oil Needs Study.

Asked by one in the audience what he proposed to be done, Brewster said he recently introduced a senate resolution seeking the appointment of a committee to study the matter. Another question put to him was why the crude oil price is held below parity and equipment is not granted to discover new wells.

"That follows the pattern of the design for chaos that has dominated many of the administration's actions," he replied.

To a query regarding our relations with Russia, he reiterated that we must learn from the realistic diplomacy of the soviet and Great Britain.

"The recent move to have the 16 soviet republics wield autonomous powers in foreign affairs was aimed at the assimilation of more territory," he said. "The Russians are thinking realistically of the world of tomorrow. It was part of the pattern for expansion. Great Britain is doing much the same."

Pope Invites Envoy to Take Protest to Ex-Duce

London, Feb. 11 (AP).—A Cairo broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Pope Pius XII. had invited the Hungarian ambassador to the Vatican to act as an intermediary in lodging a protest with Mussolini's puppet regime against violation of the Vatican's extra-territorial rights.

NYE SMEAR LAID TO FEAR OF WAR SPENDING PROBE

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 11.—Supporters of Sen. Nye [R.], thorn in the flesh and a hair shirt for the New Deal, are throwing emphasis on the question of why he is singled out for special attack by eastern internationalists. They declare seaboard interests fear that if Republicans gain control of the senate, Nye will become chairman of the appropriations committee and pull the "global" spenders' purse strings. Nye is ranking Republican member of the committee.

This matter was projected into the campaign in a published letter from Gerald W. Movius, secretary to Sen. Nye, to the Grand Forks Herald. The campaigning so far is largely done by vox pop writers, pro and con. The Herald put some questions up to Nye in an open letter a month ago. In his reply, Movius, a North Dakota man, made his accusations against the eastern industrial and commercial interests.

If Nye became chairman, the appropriations committee for the first time in years would "have a farm minded man" as its head.

Fear Investigation.

"Desperately," wrote Movius, "with fanatic desperation, the industrial east does not want that to happen. It would be much more comfortable to get Nye out of the way. This committee, too, has tremendous authority for investigation. That certain people have been profiting on the war effort is common knowledge. Some of these certain people we may find in the list of those who are out to get Nye. If North Dakota wants to throw away the most vital chairmanship in congress, all it has to do is to defeat Nye."

This angle is being widely discussed. Nearly every person interviewed on this trip has mentioned the possibility of Nye getting this chairmanship as a factor in the campaign.

Others Escape Smear.

The Movius letter says such senators as Aiken [R., Vt.], Bone [D., Wash.], Clark [D., Mo.], Clark, [D., Idaho], Davis [R., Pa.], Holman [R., Ore.], McCarren [D., Nev.], Reed [R., Kas.], Taft [R., Ohio], Smith [D., S. C.], Tobey [R., N. H.], Wiley [R., Wis.], and the late Van Nuys [D., Ind.] have voted "exactly like Sen. Nye" on every foreign policy issue before congress in the last five years. They are up for reëlection, but are not being smeared, Movius says, as is Nye. The reason, he says, is:

"They [the eastern interests] know perfectly well what would happen if Nye were chairman of the appropriations committee. There would be an end to beautiful experiments and projects at taxpayers expense, inspired, operated, and enjoyed by assorted leftists of one degree or another.

"As ranking Republican member of the committee he has been difficult enough for the experimenters, the spenders, the leftists to handle. As chairman, he'd be impossible to handle."

Vox poppers all over the state are throwing typewriters at each other. Soon they'll need asbestos paper. North Dakota is living up to its reputation as a commonwealth where "politics is a state of mind."

Winchell and Beds in Drive.

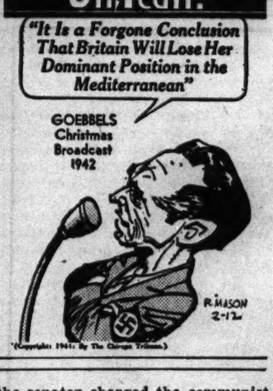
Wide circulation too is being given to a senate speech by Nye last November entitled "Millions for Propaganda and Smear," in which the senator charged the communist Daily Worker, New York PM, the New York Post, Dorothy Thompson, Walter Winchell, and other radio and newspaper commentators with misrepresenting one of his interviews.

"It remained for Dorothy Thompson," said Nye in his speech, "to do the No. 1 job of deceiving her readers on this whole smear effort. Big Dotty buckled on her shooting pistols and really went to town in her column. What this pistol packing mama did not do to my thin skin is not worth mentioning.

"She swung her pistols at the shadow of what I had not ever said or even insinuated," remarked Nye. "If I say now that I detest fascism and communism with firmness and conviction as deep as is my love and solicitation for the future of our American form of government, then I am only found repeating what senators have heard from me before."

Here and in Fargo those close to affairs say Nye's record on nonintervention before Pearl Harbor reflected the sentiment of 90 per cent or more of the people of the state.

Oh, Yeah?



WALLACE AGAIN EXCORIATES U. S. BUSINESS MEN

Wallace said in Seattle on Wednesday that the "hard-headed business man" of the past must be kept from "leading the world astray" after the war. Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, replied that if there is a threat of fascism "it is not to be found in big business but in big government."

The vice president, here for an address tonight, said he would add this to what he had said in Seattle: "The essence of American fascism is putting dollars first and men second. Its method to get control of government is to poison the channels of information. An outstanding example is Col. Robert R. McCormick of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

Informed of the statement, Col. McCormick said in Chicago: "Wallace is a deliberate traitor to his country."

THEATER OF AIR WILL HONOR BOY SCOUTS TONIGHT

Chicago Boy Scouts, observing the 34th anniversary of the founding of Scouting, will be honored at the Chicago Theater of the Air's production of Sigmund Romberg's "My Maryland" at 8 p. m. tonight over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

The program will originate before an audience of 4,000 persons, including 1,000 Scouts and their leaders, in Medinah temple.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak in observance of Abraham Lincoln's birthday.

Marion Claire, soprano, will be heard in the patriotic operetta of Civil war days as Barbara Frietchie. Other soloists will be Bruce Foote, baritone; Angelo Raffaelli, tenor, and Ruth Slater, contralto. Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N symphony orchestra and chorus.

After the broadcast the Scouts of the south shore district will hold their annual meeting and present a program which will include a history of scouting. Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, chairman of the executive committee of the south shore Scout district, will speak.

Both the broadcast and the Scout show will be presented under the auspices of the United States treasury department. Edward T. Heineman of the treasury department speakers bureau, will talk on war bond sales.

RACE PLOTTING RUMORS FALSE, EMBREE FINDS

The story that certain Negroes are paid to bump into whites on street cars and in other crowded places, and the new report that many persons engaged in this work have signed statements admitting it were denounced yesterday by Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald fund and chairman of the mayor's committee on race relations.

"I have traced down about 20 of those stories and found nothing to them," he said. He explained that he would go to the person whose name had been given as authority for the tale only to find that this person had no first hand knowledge of it but had heard it from somebody else. When the somebody else was found, a third source would be named, and so on.

He said that the only way to scotch a story like this was to offer a prize for a single authenticated case that would support it. Neither he nor the committee has ever found such a case, he said.

DEMOCRATS PICK JULY 19 TO OPEN RALLY IN CHICAGO

Veteran Burocrat Named Publicity Chief.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—The Democratic national convention will open in Chicago Wednesday, July 19, Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the party's national committee, announced today. Hannegan said he expected the convention to complete its work the same week. The Republican convention will open in Chicago June 26.

Paul A. Porter.

The Democratic committee also announced that Paul A. Porter, 39, will succeed the veteran Charles Michelson as publicity director. Michelson will continue with the committee as a high salaried adviser.

Hannegan's hint that the convention would be only a two or three day meeting signified that the Democrats expect to name President Roosevelt for a fourth term nomination.

An Advantage.

By meeting after the Republicans, the Democrats will have the advantage of knowing whom they have to beat and on what platform.

This has been the Democratic strategy since 1892. In 1888 the Democrats met earlier and nominated Grover Cleveland at a St. Louis convention starting June 5, while the Republicans selected Benjamin Harrison in Chicago at a meeting which began June 19.

Porter, the new publicity chief, in private life is an attorney and radio executive. He has spent more than half his time in government service since the New Deal came into power in 1933. He recently has been first assistant to Stabilization Director Vinson. He is a native of Winchester, Ky., and a graduate of law at the University of Kentucky.

Porter was counsel for a group of Oklahoma and Georgia newspapers before Vice President Wallace, then secretary of agriculture, summoned him to Washington in 1934 to become special assistant and publicity director in the agricultural adjustment administration.

With AAA Three Years.

Porter remained with the AAA for three years, resigning to become Washington counsel for a broadcasting chain. In 1940, he became assistant to Chester C. Davis, his old AAA boss, who then was organizing the nation's food program for the defense advisory commission.

He went to the office of price administration in 1942 as an assistant administrator under Leon Henderson in charge of rent control. After a brief term last year as a deputy in the war food administration, he went to Vinson's office as first assistant.

Michelson, 74, retired more than a year ago, but later agreed to stay on as consultant pending a selection of his successor. He has been with the Democratic committee for 16 years.

LOSES PURSE WITH $100.

Mrs. Beatrice Lane Agolia of 34 N. Mason av., reported to police last night that she lost her purse containing $100, keys, and personal papers in the vicinity of Madison st. and Austin blvd.

SENATE VOTES TO SCRAP F. D. R. FOOD SUBSIDIES

Would Ban Payments After June 30.

subsidies were continued and expanded. The administration had tried in vain on Wednesday to nullify the bill by tacking on to it a 1½ billion dollar provision for subsidies.

Charges Administration "Fake."

La Follette said the administration is "faking" in its contention that the Little Steel formula is not being broken and its profession that the subsidy ban will mean inflation. He demanded the resignation of OPA Director Chester Bowles, if Bowles cannot control prices without subsidies. Other senators suggested more resignations, including that of War Mobilization Director Byrnes.

Sen. Nye [R., N. D.] said the nation's trouble is "too much government; too many mitts in the broth."

Illustrations, he said, are: Wheat lying on the prairies because the government can't provide elevator space or transportation; farmers without a market for the hogs the government begged them to raise.

Joseph Kreps of North Dakota, is an example, Nye said.

Kreps wanted a bath tub in his farm home. WPB turned him down. But it said it would be glad to reconsider if Kreps would furnish a medical certificate that it was absolutely necessary for his health.

"At a time," said Nye, "when another government agency was urging farmers to employ Japanese to teach them cleanliness!"

Barkley Gets Excited.

In the excitement, Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] voted for the bill to ban subsidies. He corrected himself, frowned at the administration's latest defeat and then beamed as he told the senate of another Roosevelt bill coming up next week:

It's UNRRA—the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration measure to authorize the United States to spend $1,350,000,000 on war relief on an international agency in which this country is outvoted 43 to 1.

Airman-Sky Trooper

Sgt. Clarence G. Sass Jr., 22, has flown on more than 50 combat missions while on duty as a radio operator with the 5th air force in the South Pacific. He was awarded the distinguished flying cross on Dec. 17 and won the air medal on Jan. 2.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sass, 3358 N. 6th st., Milwaukee, Wis., and was graduated from North Division High school. Before he entered the army he was employed as a receiving clerk by Ed Schuster & Co., Inc., in Milwaukee. Sgt. Sass' father is employed by the city of Milwaukee.

Pvt. George R. Griffin Jr., 19, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Griffin, 5419 Adams st. Educated at St. Philip's High school of Chicago and St. Ambrose college, Davenport, Ia., Griffin was inducted into the army on March 12, 1943. After receiving basic training at Camp Roberts, Cal., he qualified at Fort Benning, Ga., for paratrooper work.

Colombia Capital Quiet; Political Strife Halted

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 11 (AP).—Quiet has been restored in Colombia after two days of political demonstrations and the capital now is preparing to welcome President Alfonso Lopez back tomorrow from the United States. The agitation had been marked by clashes in the streets.

FIGHTS DEVELOP ON 12 G. O. P. JOBS FIRST FILING DAY

Republican contests for ward committeeman developed in 12 wards yesterday in first day petitions filed with County Clerk Michael Flynn. Democratic aspirants were unopposed on the basis of petitions filed late yesterday afternoon.

John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Republican county committee, saw in the increased interest in ward committeeman jobs an optimistic sign for the Republican party. He held that candidates, believing this to be a Republican year, want an active voice in party government.

Two Challenge Serritella.

In the 1st ward Daniel A. Serritella faces a three way race with Bernard F. Black, state lodging house inspector, and William F. Gailing, 10 N. La Salle st., as his competitors. State Rep. Ernest A. Greene will be opposed in the 2d ward by William E. King, candidate for congress in the 1st district.

The 5th ward will furnish another contest with John Leonard East opposed by Joseph P. Leeney. In the 6th ward two followers of the late Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith will fight it out for the job. They are Oliver H. Bovik and John S. Norris.

Contests in Other Wards.

Other contests have attracted the following candidates:

10th ward—Leslie J. Oliver, 10127 Avenue L, and Harvey E. L. Timm, 10453 Avenue G.

NAVAL OFFICER WINS IN CONGRESS RACE IN ALABAMA PRIMARY

Union Springs, Ala., Feb. 11 (AP).—Lt. [j. g.] George A. Andrews, 37, on duty at Pearl Harbor, today apparently was assured of succeeding the late Henry B. Steagall as representative of Alabama's 3d congressional district.

Official count of returns from Tuesday's Democratic primary—nomination equivalent to election—gave Andrews a 44 vote victory over Atty. J. Hubert Farmer of Dothan, for the unexpired Steagall term. The vote was 13,870 for Andrews, 13,826 for Farmer. The election will be held March 14. The winner will be a candidate in the May 2 primary for the regular term.

Andrews is on leave as prosecutor. He announced he would resign from the navy if elected to congress.

LONDON QUERY: WILL YANKS GIVE BACK OUR CITY?

'Invaders' Outrank Lords in Bid for Billets.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 9 [Delayed].—Fifteen months ago Britain's war time capital seethed and bustled with activity on the eve of the African invasion. But today the returned traveler regards that time as one of peace and quiet, for the second front capital now is outdoing even Washington, D. C.'s hysterical life.

Fifteen months ago the average Briton laughed about "an American invasion." Today the old joke has lost some of its flavor and the question frequently asked is, "Will you Americans return London to us?"

Many Denied Rooms.

The impact of the concentration of American forces on this island hits the visitor smack between the eyes, even one who had seen Britain teeming with American troops before the African campaign. In his native land's capital city the British soldier now is a comparative rarity.

Because of this great influx of our troops, many of whom come from the countryside to London on leave, billeting here has become a major headache. Such proud hotels as Savoy, Dorchester house, Grosvenor house and Claridge's are in the unpleasant situation of turning down Lord This or Lady That despite long years of association.

Only 25 per cent of a hotel's rooms may be assigned to permanent residents—persons staying longer than four days. The remainder must be kept ready for American officers and men.

Yanks Requisition Billets.

When Gen. Eisenhower's supreme allied expeditionary force command upset London, the American billeting officer obtained authority from the British government to requisition hotels and rooms. British, Canadians, Australians, and French at once tried the same thing but were too late.

Restaurants, cafes, and bars which were crowded 15 months ago now are jammed. Night clubs also are doing a big business and small, so-called private bars refuse new customers nightly. Taverns in other cities and towns as well as London often sell out their stocks before closing time at night.

The abundance of money from the better paid American army still is causing friction and helps to stimulate the black market. It is one reason why Scotch whisky so often brings $12 to $14 a bottle.

Rent and Servant Problem.

Residents of the fashionable West End are complaining that Americans are forcing rents sky high. Also, many domestic servants switch to American officers, who pay double the usual wage.

More office buildings and warehouses are being taken over by Americans. Once the army public relations office was housed in a building with the European theater headquarters. Now the theater public relations office has a separate building and a public relations office set up for the invasion of the continent occupies still another building.

But in other respects London is little changed from this correspondent's first view 18 months ago. The streets still are crowded with cars, mostly military, and taxis.

Fruits a Rarity.

Fresh fruit, particularly citrus, is still almost unknown. Boiled potatoes, cabbage, and brussels sprouts remain tops in the food line. War time dresses for women are still drab.

British newspapers have changed. Considerable space is devoted to American fighting in Italy and the American bomber effort from Britain. Under government inspired direction, the papers carry more news also of the Pacific war.

But perhaps the most startling change which 15 months has made is in the picturesque British countryside. Britain's green fields and ancient hedgerows now are being ripped up by American trucks, guns, and the thousands of men preparing for a large scale invasion of the European continent.

FORTRESSES RIP FRANKFURT; BAG 35 NAZI PLANES

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses and escorting fighters penetrated 400 miles into Germany today to hammer again at Frankfurt, the Nazis' great industrial and transportation center, destroying 35 enemy aircraft while losing five bombers and 15 fighters.

Three of the German planes knocked down were the victims of gunners in the Fortresses and 32 fell to the swarm of American Thunderbolts, Lightnings, and Mustangs which furnished an escort.

Military objectives in northern France also were attacked during the day by American Liberators and Marauders and by R. A. F. and allied Mosquitos with fighters of various types providing an escort.

The fighter sorties were described as the greatest number yet made from British bases. Tonight a British bomber fleet flew across the channel for a follow-up blow.

London itself had a short alert, first in five nights, as a few swift enemy planes streaked across the city and dropped bombs. Some people were feared trapped when high explosives hit a house in a suburb.

Chicago Ace Bags No. 20; New Tojo Fighter Plane

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Feb. 12 [Saturday]—(AP).—Marine Capt. Donald N. Aldrich, 1408 E. Marquette rd., Chicago, shot down a Tojo, Japan's newest fighter plane, Wednesday at Rabaul, New Britain, and thus become the fifth marine Corsair pilot to down 20 enemy planes in this war, South Pacific allied headquarters announced today.

Air Armadas Strike Jap Bases

250 Planes Hammer Rabaul; 2 Lost; 20 Japs Shot Down

ALLIED HDQ. IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 12 [Saturday]—(AP).—More than 250 bombers and fighters, the largest raiding force ever assembled from new allied bases in the Solomon Islands, struck Rabaul's Vunakanau and Tobera airdromes Wednesday in the heaviest raid on that key Jap stronghold in months, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

Of 50 enemy fighters that rose to intercept the three lightninglike strikes, 20 were shot down and seven more probably destroyed. Two allied planes were lost.

Ninety-eight tons of explosives were dumped on the two air fields and adjacent dispersal areas. Hits were scored on gun positions, runways, and buildings.

Wewak Also Pounded.

Coördinated with the Rabaul raid was a 200 ton blast by the 5th air force against Wewak, main Jap air and supply base in New Guinea. No enemy interception was reported as the heavy bombers scored hits on the Boram airdrome and supply areas.

Today's war bulletin added that at least 1,200 enemy dead have been counted by Australian and American ground forces which joined south of Saidor on the northeast coast of New Guinea yesterday. Many had died of starvation and disease.

Madang, a once potent enemy base in New Guinea, but now believed possibly deserted, was blasted with more than 60 tons of bombs.

At least 30 Japanese barges were knocked out by allied air patrols off New Guinea's north coast, the war report said.

Found Wake and Marshalls.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Feb. 11 (AP).—Coronado bombers of Fleet Air Wing 2 struck Wake Island for the second straight day while warships of the Pacific fleet and army planes continued their relentless pounding of Japanese held Marshall Islands, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Heavy dive bombers and fighters of the 7th American army air force dropped 100 tons of explosives on unnamed atolls in the Marshalls yesterday without drawing any fighter opposition.

Second Shelling in a Row.

Likewise, there was no mention of damage inflicted at Wake, nor whether air opposition was encountered there.

It was the 13th time Wake had been attacked since the Japanese captured it from a heroic little band of American marines more than two years ago.

Today was the second consecutive day in which the commander in the central Pacific had announced units of the Pacific fleet had shelled enemy positions.

Subs Sink 12 Ships

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—Destruction of 12 more Japanese vessels by American submarines was announced today in an official war report which said:

"Pacific and far east:

"1. United States submarines have reported the following results of operations against the enemy in these waters:

"Sunk:

"One large auxiliary, two medium transports, one medium cargo transport, two large tankers, five medium freighters, one small freighter.

"2. These actions have not been announced in any previous navy department communique."

CHURCHES TO AID WAR BOND SALES TO INDIVIDUALS

County's Total Only 48% of Quota.

Cook county's churches, temples, and synagogues have been enlisted in the drive to put lagging individual sales of fourth war loan bonds over the top by Feb. 26, the closing day of the drive, the treasury department said yesterday.

Tomorrow a message from the treasury will be read from 1,350 pulpits. It will stress the fact that altho Cook county's people are as wise, patriotic, and thrifty as those of any other part of the country, they have so far bought only about half their quota of bonds.

Quota Only 48 Per Cent Filled.

As of Wednesday, the last day for which full figures are available, sales of bonds to individuals totaled $120,940,000, or 48 per cent of the $251,959,800 quota, Frank McNair, county chairman for the campaign, announced. Corporation sales stood at $492,604,000, or 105 per cent of the $469,858,600 quota.

Replicas of one of the originals of the Bill of Rights, owned by Barney Balaban, motion picture executive, will be presented to the Von Steuben and St. Gall's schools in ceremonies at Treasury center, 72 W. Adams st., at noon today. These were the first public and first parochial school, respectively, to show that 90 per cent of their students had bought extra stamps or bonds.

Dinner Tickets Available.

Tickets for the chefs' and headwaiters' dinner in the Stevens hotel Monday night may still be obtained at Treasury center and at hotels. Purchase of a bond of $1,000 or higher denomination is the prerequisite for admission.

The Westmoreland Country club, of which Angus J. Johnston is president, reported bond sales of $507,000 at a stag dinner.

BOLIVIA REVISES CABINET TO WOO U.S. RECOGNITION

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Bolivian revolutionary regime moved today to rid itself of elements which other American republics have found objectionable because of known connivance with axis agents to establish governments hostile to the allies.

In La Paz, capital of Bolivia, Maj. Alberto Taborga, minister of interior, Augusto Cespedes, secretary general, and Carlos Montenegro, minister of agriculture, resigned.

Later La Paz dispatches said Rafael Otazo was named minister of agriculture, replacing Montenegro, and Walter Guevara, 29, was appointed secretary-general. Victor Paz Estenssoro, finance minister, said the junta hoped for early recognition by the United States.

HOW THE FLYING DUTCHMEN WIPE JAPS FROM SKIES

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A DUTCH ROYAL NETHERLANDS AIR FIELD, Somewhere in North Australia, Feb. 6 [Delayed].—At this base, nearest allied field to the Dutch East Indies, hundreds of Dutchmen from all over the world have assembled to fly B-25 bombers and help regain their lost empire.

Because nearly all have relatives in lands held by Germans or Japs, they must remain anonymous, and how they reached allied bases can only be sketched.

Three sailed in a small boat from Java to Africa. One came out of Holland to England. Another was working in Colombia, South America, at the start of the war, went to Canada to enlist and was sent to Java to become a pilot. With hundreds of other air cadets, he evacuated to Australia when Java fell and was sent to us for training.

Escaped to Australia.

One was an air line pilot. As Java toppled, he flew with his wife and children and 19 others to Australia. His family now is in Jackson, Miss.

Another who has an aunt working at the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City was working in Java and was drafted by the infantry. He became a gunner on a bomber and after a two hour training course flew a 90 m. p. h. crate against the Jap fleet in the Macassar straits. His squadron was eliminated. Still another was in Nashville, Tenn., awaiting a Vanderbilt university scholarship and one was studying agriculture at the University of Minnesota.

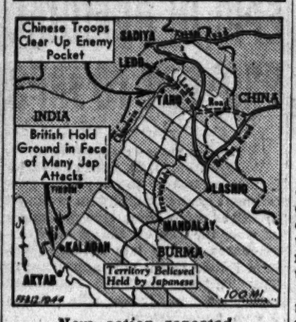
One was a navigator on a Dutch ship. Several are of other races but Dutch subjects. One, a Javanese, was co-pilot. His plane was shot down over Amboin. Another is the son of a Chinese merchant at Surabaya.

Air Line Men Started at Once.

Former commercial pilots and air corps men began operating as soon as they reached Australia after the fall of Java. Others were sent to America where a fifth of them secured American brides or fiancees including Ellen Grotenhouse of Orange City, Ia.; Bicky Finnell, San Francisco, Cal.; Etta Mae Brown, Tallahassee, Fla., and Jane Murphy, Kensington, Md.

Dutch slogans such as Bennie Bang—I Am Not Afraid, and Lessie Rouw—We Can Take You, adorn the planes. But the American influence is showing up. One of the newer planes has a picture of a Dutch girl chasing a toothy Jap. Under it is a motto, "Old Dutch—Chases Dirt."

Fighting in Burma



New action reported.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 11 (AP).—British forces today beat off repeated Japanese attacks in the Arakan area of Burma, while to the northeast the Chinese pressed slowly forward against strong resistance to clear the way for the Ledo road to China.

Adm. Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said heavy casualties were being inflicted on the Japanese by British troops holding off many attacks over a wide area east of the Mayu mountain range. Near Kaladan, a key to the British, the Japanese have been forced to evacuate some positions west of the town. The British have reoccupied the town of Taung Bazaar.

On the Hukawng valley front in northern Burma, American trained Chinese troops have cleared an enemy pocket of resistance near Taro. R. A. F. and American warplanes supported troops on all the Burma fronts yesterday, while R. A. F. heavy bombers made a night attack on Bangkok, capital of Thailand.

Repulse Japs in China.

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 11 (AP). A Chinese army spokesman today said 14 small scale clashes have occurred on different fronts in China. Enemy attacks were repulsed in southwestern Shansi province and about 80 miles south of Nanking, he said. American and Chinese air forces attacked Jap concentrations around the Peking-Hankow railway, boats on the Yellow river, and installations south of the river in Hunan and Hupeh provinces.

7,000 Dutch Jews Reach Poland in Nazi Trains

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—Seven thousand Jews, the last of approximately 105,000 rounded up in Holland by the Germans, have arrived in Poland in Nazi deportation trains, the Polish telegraph agency reported today. Holland had a prewar Jewish population of 120,000 but at least 15,000 are still in hiding in the country, the agency said.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN, 77.

Mrs. Elizabeth Howe, 77, of 4829 Ohio st., died yesterday in West Suburban hospital of complications arising from a fall in her home Jan. 24.

STUDENTS SEEK HELP IN SOLVING THEIR PROBLEMS

More than 500 high school students yesterday set the city council chambers crackling with their ideas on the problems of youth, from sex to the national debt, and with demands that something be done about them.

They were the delegates and alternates from 125 public, parochial, and county high schools who were selected by their principals to take part in a conference run by students and concerned only with their problems.

They asserted that juvenile delinquency too often is the fault of parents and suggested a law to punish parents as well as the offending children. Sex education, they said, is completely lacking and they demanded to know whether schools are afraid to include such courses.

Want Frank Instruction.

"We don't want to hear the old story about the birds and bees," one delegate said. "We want frank and intelligent instruction in what we have a right to know as educated men and women."

They ran the meeting completely and when the chairman, Raleigh Spinks of Lane Technical High school, sought to introduce Judge J. M. Braude of the Municipal court during a heated discussion, they objected, and the judge waited 20 minutes until motions which were pending had been considered. Then they listened to advice on how to achieve their objectives.

When the four hour session concluded, they had drawn tentative resolutions covering a wide range of subjects.

They voted to meet again at 2 p. m. March 3 in the council chambers to act on them.

Heirs to National Debt.

"We are going to become heirs to the national debt after the war, so we ought to be heard in matters that affect us now," a delegate from Lane High school said.

Their decision to ask sex education in school was based on the belief that their parents, themselves lacking such instruction, were not prepared to discuss these matters. They pointed out that they will be in the same situation with their children unless they receive instruction.

They described inadequacies in the family group as the root of juvenile delinquency and blamed the present adult generation for shirking some of its duties toward youth.

COL. DYESS FINDS 'MICHIGAN AV.' IN A BETTER PRISON

Moves to New Camp, but Brutality Follows Him.

In this, the 14th instalment of the late Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess' story of barbarities in Japanese prison camps in the Philippines, he tells of the transfer of American prisoners to the compound at Cabanatuan, Nuevo Ecija province. Dyess was killed in an airplane crash in California after his escape from the Japs and his return to the United States.

BY LT. COL. W. E. DYESS,
[United States Army Air Forces.]
As told to CHARLES LEAVELLE.
[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When we first saw Cabanatuan prison camp we were overjoyed. It was far better than O'Donnell. As with O'Donnell, it had been built as a Filipino army camp, but it was a much better one and looked as tho it had been completed.

On this trip the Jap guards lacked the venom the others had shown. The American make trucks rolled us in thru the western gate and along a road which ran between a Japanese army camp and hospital area on one side and the prison section on the other.

Our part of the camp was divided by barbed wire from the rest. There were large compounds; three for us with permanent wooden buildings and a fourth for the Japanese recruits.

Michigan Avenue in Camp.

Along the east side were machine gun emplacements and three towers about 40 feet high topped by guards, more machine guns, and the Japanese flag. Prisoners from Bataan and Corregidor already were there when we arrived.

They had named all roads and trails that connected the three compounds. There were Broadway, Market street, Michigan avenue, Main street, and many others.

A Milwaukee man had named a path for himself. It was Buboltz boulevard and led to the latrines.

Compounds No. 2 and No. 3 were upon high ground and well drained. Compound No. 1 was low and caught all the water that fell upon the high ground. The mud, we were to find, was knee deep. We were unloaded into compound No. 3.

As we piled out of the trucks that day I spotted some fellows I had known on Bataan. They had gone over to Corregidor and had been captured there. They didn't know me at first because of my ferocious looking beard, but they answered my wave.

Hear Some Good News.

We disposed of our sick. Then we mingled with the Corregidor boys and heard some good news. They had brought in razor blades. I found this out when I made myself known to four of them: Larry, Frankie, Bake, and Bill. Larry shaved off my beard and reported to the whole camp he had found two Jap intelligence officers in it with flare guns.

The first thing we thought about after getting shaved was, of course, eating. There had been no objection from the Jap guards about Larry's tonsorial activities.

Our first meal was of rice only. It was cleaner than that we had had at O'Donnell. As at O'Donnell, we had three meals a day; lugao [wet rice] for breakfast and drier rice for dinner and supper. After the first week there was green squash and a little of the juice from it.

Get Dried Fish Each Week.

Once a week each of us got a dried fish about 4 inches long and as thick as a man's finger; "dried stinkers," we called them. The Japs provided canned milk, 1½ ounces a day for the very ill men—at the start.

In the early days also, the men who went out on work details were given one hard bun to go with their rice. But as in the case of the milk the buns soon were discontinued.

The black market ran full blast. Jap soldiers bought food and other articles from Filipinos and smuggled them into the kitchens. There they were parceled out to American soldiers and sailors on duty. The articles were peddled among the other prisoners at enormous profit to the Japs.

There was hardly an item—such as tinned fish, bar candy, or cigarets—that didn't sell for $5. In the last days at Cabanatuan the Jap authorities established a sort of commissary in which most things that had sold formerly for $5 were reduced to about 40 cents. By that time, however, practically all our money had been spent in the black market. I had secreted my money—when I had it—inside my socks.

Prisoners Develop Dish.

The best eating at Cabanatuan was called "quan," a dish the prisoners developed. Quan is a Filipino word that has little meaning and can, therefore, be applied to almost anything. We applied it to such extra food as we could get by fair means or otherwise.

We tried always to have among us some of the small tin buckets that were issued at the camp. These we called "quan" buckets. The recipe for "quan" follows:

Obtain from the black market or commissary a small can of fish and some cocoanut lard. At chow time get a mess kit filled with rice. After lining a "quan" bucket with lard, put in the rice along with some wild red peppers you have managed to gather while on jungle detail.

The bucket then goes into a bed of hot coals and the food in it bakes. We thought it mighty fine, but if I never see any more of it, it will be all right with me.

Story of a White Dog.

This brings a memory of Lugao, of his short life and undeserved end. Lugao was a little white dog who wandered into Cabanatuan. He was just a handful of white fur and a bag of bones when he arrived. The boys on duty in the mess hall started feeding him on what rice and scraps they could spare. Dogs and cats in the Philippines eat rice, just as ours eat meat and drink milk.

Lugao began to fill out. Soon he was quite sleek. Then, one day, he was missing.

Diligent inquiry eventually disclosed the facts. Lugao had wandered into a secluded spot where two sailors and a soldier were sitting thinking about how hungry they were. Lugao was "quanned."

Our food, however, was no more primitive than our method of eating it. There were no mess halls and we soon began taking the food to our barracks, but we gave up this practice. The rice drew flies which, like most undesirable dinner guests, remained the rest of the day. So we took to squatting in the open to dine.

Talk About Teacups.

This started talk about the probability we wouldn't know how to act at splendid functions after the war. We wouldn't be able to balance teacups and salad plates on our knees or handle the table silver of civilization.

Furthermore, we wouldn't have read anything or have heard the latest songs. We probably would be busts at any function we might attend. So we worked out two surefire ways to distract attention from our awkwardness.

We decided that when food was served we would take our salads and teacups into a corner and eat like a pack of wolves. This would be taken by our hostess as [1] our peculiar whimsy or [2] would so startle her and the other guests that there would be no comment.

"Now, When I Was on Bataan—."

We agreed also that when any one should approach and begin:

"My dear captain, have you read ——" we would interrupt with:

"Now when I was on Bataan——."

It seemed to us that after this had happened four or five times in a single evening the words: "Now when I was on Bataan ——" would be the signal for the hostess to whisper loudly: "For the love of Mike! Give the old fool a drink and shut him up!"

We liked this one so well that for a long time when you addressed a fellow prisoner he was quite likely to turn on you and yell: "Now when I was on Bataan——!" I think horseplay such as this did us more good than extra messkits of rice.

Concession to Officers.

The Jap guards, of course, thought we were deranged. Maybe we were. They were no less brutal than at O'Donnell, but they made this concession to officers: We were not required to go on labor details. Many did go because it seemed to us that the Japs pulled their punches somewhat when we were along.

These details of starved men were engaged in such work as wood chopping, path building, and barbed wire stringing. In addition they were sent out on heavy salvage work; picking up abandoned American and Japanese equipment on Bataan and in Manila. They helped build bridges and served as cargodores [burden bearers] for the Jap troops hunting guerrilla forces in the hills.

It was not uncommon that 20 per cent of each detail would die on the job in a day or in the barracks that night. On one occasion nine men of a detail of 12 were left dead where they had fallen.

After seeing the type of work our soldiers and sailors were being required to do, I wondered that the casualties weren't 100 per cent a day. The barbaric treatment that accompanied it was almost unbelievable.

Move Wooden Houses.

Soon after our arrival the mass of incoming prisoners forced us to move some wooden houses from the Jap military compound into our own. This operation was performed by running long poles beneath the structures, then lifting them to be carried across the road.

One Jap—a stocky, evil caricature on the human race—was armed with the shaft of a golf club. As the weakened men struggled to lift the building he ran up and down behind them, screaming like a maniac and beating them as tho they were mules. Many fell under his blows, but that didn't end their beatings.

He is one Jap I'm going to catch if I have to chase him to Tokio. And I'm going to kill him, not with any weapon, but with the two hands God gave me.

[Editor's note—Dyess wrote this series long before he was killed in an airplane crash in California on Dec. 22.]

Some other Japs I hope to kill personally are those concerned in punishment inflicted upon some American soldiers who were caught accepting morsels of food slipped to them thru the fence by kindly Filipino peasants, living near-by. These people took appalling risks to help us.

The soldiers involved were stripped of their shirts and flogged until their backs were raw. After the beating, an American doctor, also a prisoner, applied dressings. When he had ministered to the men and had gone, they were tied up again and flogged until the dressings were beaten into the open wounds.

This occurred in July, 1942. Up to this time I had escaped any major disaster, such as serious illness. I had taken my beatings and kickings along with the rest and had hoped I would keep my health. But my turn was just around the corner.

CANADA REDUCES WAR ESTIMATES FOR NEW YEAR BY 240 MILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 11.—Canada's war estimates of $3,650,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning in April together with ordinary estimates of $702,369,000, were introduced in the house of commons this afternoon by J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance. He also informed the house that mutual aid for other allied nations, for which Canada voted $1,000,000,000 for the present fiscal year, will be somewhat less in the coming year.

War estimates are $240,000,000 below the $3,890,000,000 figure of the present fiscal year. Ordinary estimates are $54,455,000 higher.

Ilsley explained the somewhat lower war estimates by the fact "that what is now primarily necessary is to provide equipment and supplies to repair wastage that will accrue in a period of more intense and continuous war activity."

U. S. PUTS DYESS' EPIC IN OFFICIAL PROTEST TO JAPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—In its formal protest to the Japanese government against "inhuman cruelty" practiced upon American prisoners of war, the United States cited experiences of the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess now appearing in THE TRIBUNE and 100 associated newspapers under the title "Death March from Bataan."

The state department today made public the texts of two telegrams, both dated Jan. 27, 1944, to the American legation at Berne, Switzerland, for transmission to the Japanese government thru the Swiss government, which represents the United States in Japan.

Altho the Swiss reported the protests were formally presented at the Japanese foreign office in Tokio no official reply has been made, the Swiss have advised the state department.

Protests Finally Made.

Not until The Tribune story was published was a specific complaint made by the state department on the experiences recited by Dyess altho the story had been known to ranking American officials for months and 64 protests had been relayed to Japan on abuses and neglects inflicted on American prisoners of war by the Japanese.

Dyess' experiences are cited among 18 specific charges of "violation of the common laws of civilization."

Dyess was specifically mentioned in Article VI. of the protest, which develops the charge that prisoners of war were forced to work at hard labor without shoes and clothes, other than a loin cloth.

Dyess' Episode in Protest.

"The articles most needed by prisoners and internees have been taken," the United States protest said.

"Altho the prisoners constantly suffered from lack of drinking water, canteens were taken from prisoners during this march; one of these victims was Lt. Col. William E. Dyess."

Another article recounts the Dyess story of the "Death March of Bataan" thus:

"The condition of health of prisoners of war in the Philippine Islands is deplorable. At San Fernando in April, 1942, American and Filipino prisoners were held in a barbed-wire enclosure so overcrowded that sleep and rest were impossible.

Protest on the March.

"The enclosure at San Fernando was more than 62½ kilometers [58 miles] from Bataan and the abominable treatment given to prisoners there cannot be explained by any battle conditions. The prisoners were forced to walk this distance in seven days under merciless driving.

"Many who were unable to keep up with the march were shot or bayoneted by the guards.

"American and Filipino prisoners are known to have been buried alive along the roadside and persistent reports have been received of men who tried to rise from their graves but were beaten down with shovels and buried alive.

List 2,200 U. S. Dead.

"At Camp O'Donnell conditions were so bad that 2,200 Americans and more than 20,000 Filipinos are reliably reported to have died in the first few months of their detention. There is no doubt that a large number of these deaths could have been prevented had the Japanese authorities provided minimum medical care for the prisoners."

Among the violations charged are: International Red Cross representatives have been refused permission to visit most places where Americans are held. The Japanese government has not permitted Americans in its custody freedom of religion.

In the protest the state department emphasized the United States has fully and consistently applied provisions of the Geneva prisoners of war convention in its treatment of Japanese nationals held as prisoners of war or civilian internees.

Demands Russia Be Asked to Aid U. S. Prisoners of Japs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Russia should be asked by the state department to cooperate in furnishing food and medicine to American prisoners of war held by Japan, Sen. Chavez [D., N. M.] told the senate military affairs committee today.

Sen. Chavez.

Sen. Chavez appeared before the committee with officials of the Federated Organizations for Bataan Relief, established at a meeting here last night. Thirty-four organizations from 16 states are represented in the organization.

Chavez asked passage of his bill which would provide automatic promotions for all members of the army, navy, and marine corps below the rank of colonel or equivalent grade, who were serving in the Philippine Islands, Guam, or Wake Island on Dec. 8, 1941.

Not at War with Japs.

"Russia is not at war with Japan and can easily serve as an agency to see that necessary relief supplies reach our prisoners in the far east," Chavez said. "It is especially important that our men get American food. They cannot exist on the Japanese diet."

American Red Cross officials today said 2,500 tons of relief supplies are on the docks at Vladivostok in Siberia awaiting transport to prison camp areas. The Japense, however, have prevented shipment of the supplies.

Albert McArthur, president of the American Bataan clan of Maywood, Ill., and vice chairman of the new Bataan relief organizations, told the committee every relative of a Bataan hero resented the statement by Secretary of War Stimson that some of the American prisoners in the Philippines might have "surrendered in circumstances under which they might reasonably have been expected to continue to resist."

A "Delaying Action."

Stimson's statement, was made two months ago in a letter to the senate military affairs committee expressing opposition to Sen. Chavez's bill for military personnel promotions. Stimson said it would be difficult to determine those "deserving of a reward."

"My organization has been told by army officers that our sons were sent to the Philippines to fight a three week delaying action," McArthur said. "Instead, they held out for five months in one of the greatest battles in history. If they had been given the proper materials and food, we'd still hold the Philippines and those boys wouldn't be privates and sergeants now, they'd be top rank. They had what it takes, they were starving, but they would crawl on their bellies to the front lines to fight some more."

Dr. V. H. Spensley, Albuquerque, N. M., chairman of the federation, said if the men of Bataan still were fighting, they would have received many promotions by now, and that "the only fair thing" for congress to do is to authorize increases in rank for them.

Another witness was Mrs. George W. Hirsch, Columbia, S. C., whose husband, Col. Hirsch, received the distinguished service medal for destroying ammunition on Bataan before the withdrawal to Corregidor. He was chief of ordnance on Gen. MacArthur's staff on Bataan and now is a prisoner of war.

Outranked by Classmates.

"I'm in favor of this bill even tho my husband, a colonel, would not benefit," Mrs. Hirsch said. "But I do want to point out that most of Col. Hirsch's West Point classmates now outrank him on the basis of their service while he remains a prisoner."

A special office should be set up within the war department, manned by a relative of an American prisoner of the Japanese, to answer inquiries from the relatives of the prisoners, Mrs. Cuyler Bigger, Atlanta, Ga., wife of an air forces captain now in Japanese hands, told the committee.

"Those form letters sent out by the war department to mothers and wives of the men who served on Bataan just aren't sympathetic and they aren't understood by many," Mrs. Bigger said.

Promotions for all the men and nurses who were captured in the Philippines would be a small but appreciated tribute, Mrs. Harold Parsons of Pontiac, Mich., said. Her son, Lt. James Parsons, was a bombardier in the late Capt. Colin Kelly's squadron in the Philippines.

WAC'S ACCUSER, IT SEEMS, NOW IS A BRASS HAT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—Army officials said today that Capt. Evelyn Rothrock, WAC detachment commander at Fort Myer, Va., has been assigned as an assistant on the general staff in charge of training WACs. She is on duty in the military district of Washington.

It was Capt. Rothrock who recently brought charges of unfitness against Lt. Virginia Wight, 24, a Philadelphia WAC. The outcome of this case has not been announced and officials continued today to decline to discuss it.

Capt. Rothrock's charges included accusations that Lt. Wight had associated with enlisted personnel, appeared on the post in slacks and sweater and refused to obey an order asking for a statement of her finances.

ARMY PASSES UP JOBLESS PILOTS TO TRAIN WASPS

Prefers Women to Older, Experienced Flyers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—With 5,000 experienced airplane pilots looking for jobs as a result of the liquidation of the civil aeronautic commission's pilot training program, the government is training more than 1,000 young women, at an estimated cost of 6 million dollars, as ferry pilots for the army, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE learned today.

The girl flyers, when they are graduated, are scheduled to be enrolled in the WASP [women air service pilots], a civilian group organized by Jacqueline Cochran, American aviatrix, who was instrumental in recruiting women for the British counterpart of the WASP—the air transport auxiliary [ATA]. Miss Cochran returned to this country to organize the WASP soon after the United States entered the war.

Trained in Texas.

WASPS are trained at Avenger field, Sweetwater, Tex., in a school operated by aviation enterprises under government contract. Applicants must have 35 hours of flying experience to enroll. They are paid $150 a month during their seven months' training and $250 afterward. The cost of training each WASP is estimated by aviation authorities to be $6,000.

The WASP now has an enrollment of 500. An enrollment of 1,500 or 1,600 is anticipated by June 30, when the present classes are finished pilots, headquarters said today. Recruiting has been curtailed for the present, and the program will be reevaluated, it was said.

In addition to ferrying army planes from factories to air force fields, WASPS operate planes towing targets for gunnery practice, pilot ships in which gunners and bombardiers are trained, and shortly will operate B-26 Marauders, the hardest plane to handle in the army air forces, according to veteran pilots.

Illinois Girls Chosen.

The Marauders will be flown by the girls for training army personnel at Laredo, Tex. Three Illinois WASPS have been chosen for the work. They are Miss Shirley Slade, 1420 Lake Shore dr., Chicago; Miss Elizabeth Gardner, 837 Sherman av., Evanston, and Miss Marjorie Sanford. 502 Bigelow st., Pedria.

The 5,000 pilots displaced in the abolition of the CAA's civilian training of future army and navy pilots include 899 men who have been teaching flying instructors their business. Their average age is 31—somewhat over the accepted age for combat pilots—and their flying experience averages 2,142 hours, according to American Aviation Daily, published in Washington.

Oppose WASP Program.

The army and navy air transport commands flying cargo planes to war fronts thruout the world cannot absorb the CAA pilots, many of whom are regarded as super flyers, and domestic airlines do not have equipment on which to use these experienced airmen.

"I guess we'll be drafted and become infantrymen," one of the CAA pilots said today.

While most of the former CAA training pilots are said to feel that the WASP training program should be stopped and experienced men pilots given the ferrying jobs, they have not raised the issue publicly.

HERO OF PLOESTI RAID KILLED ON 'FINAL' MISSION

Maj. William N. Anderson, 25, a bomber pilot of Taylorville, Christian county, was killed Jan. 21 in action over France, the war department has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Anderson. His widow, Ruth, and baby son live in Cedar Falls, Ia., and a brother, Eugene, lives at 7434 Colfax av., Chicago. Maj. Anderson won the distinguished service cross for his part in the bombing of the Ploesti, Rumania, oil fields. He also held the distinguished flying cross and the air medal. The mission on which he was killed was to have been his last before he returned home on leave.

REDS SEIZE HUB OF RAIL LINES TO THREE NATIONS

Junction Near Poland Is Captured.

Sees Victory in 1944

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Moscow radio today quoted President Michael Kalinin as saying: "I believe that this year we will deal the final blow to the fascist invaders and completely clear the enemy from all territory of the soviet union."

LONDON, Feb. 12 [Saturday] (AP).—The Red army yesterday captured the Ukrainian railway center of Shepetovka, a distributing point for German reserves, Moscow announced today, while far to the east other Russian troops forced trapped Nazi units in the middle Dnieper "ring of death" and killed 2,600.

Large quantities of war material and many prisoners were taken in the capture of Shepetovka, which is on rail lines leading to old Poland, Rumania, and Hungary. It is less than 60 miles north of the last main German supply railroad to the Dnieper bend—the Odessa-Lwow line.

Both Moscow's midnight war report and a special order of the day from Premier-Marshal Josef Stalin said Shepetovka was a large German supply base and strongpoint.

Stalin, addressing Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin, commander of the first Ukrainian front, ordered a Moscow victory salute of 12 salvos from 124 guns.

Threat to Rumania.

Shepetovka is 25 miles east of the pre-war Polish border and 115 miles north of the Rumanian frontier. The new Red advance posed another threat to Rumania and also may be a part of a general widening of the Russian salient into old Poland, now extending about 90 miles across the frontier on an 80 mile front.

Two hundred miles to the east, Vatutin's left wing, combined with troops of the 2d Ukrainian front, captured 10 more towns to squeeze into a smaller corridor the remnants of what was once 10 Nazi divisions, estimated at more than 100,000 men.

Th Moscow war report, recorded here by the soviet radio monitor, said two towns 16 miles apart were captured on the north and south ends of the German position, as well as one three miles south of Korsun, the largest town left in the hands of the besieged Germans.

At the far northern end of the front, Moscow reported soviet forces closing in on the railway junction of Luga, south of Leningrad, captured several hamlets.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN

Of Russia, Friday's German war report, broadcast by Berlin, said:

"Troops on the eastern front again repulsed numerous strong soviet attacks in the areas west of Nikopol, south of Krivoi Rog, west of Cherkasi, east of Zhashkov [all in Dnieper bend], south of Berezina [river in White Russia], and at Vitebsk, as well as in the area between Luga and Lake Peipus [northern front] in fierce fighting which still is going on in several sectors.

"Local dents were ironed out in counter-thrusts. Enemy fighting groups were smashed in successful counter-attacks and the enemy was thrown back at various points.

"South of Pogrebishche [southwest of Kiev], a bolshevik force which had been encircled in the rear of the front, was annihilated. The enemy lost 1,200 prisoners and 700 dead as well as numerous weapons and other war material.

"In the area south of the Pripet marshes, troops of a tank division in a surprise thrust smashed a strong soviet cavalry formation."

STALIN WRITES HIS DISLIKE OF POLISH LEADERS

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—Premier Stalin, in a personal letter to Prime Minister Churchill, has voiced Russian objections to some members of the Polish government in London, and this latest communication is believed to offer little hope of an early solution of the knotty Polish problem, it was reported today.

The statement of the soviet viewpoint apparently followed closely the reply the Russians made to Secretary of State Hull's offer of mediation. The Russians told Hull the time was not yet ripe for United States help in solving the difficulty.

Displeased with Four Leaders.

Replying to a letter from Churchill, Stalin was believed to have gone further and to have declared his reluctance to deal with certain members of the Polish government whom he accuses of being anti-Russian.

It is known that Moscow is displeased with Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, Polish commander in chief; Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, Polish president; Marian Kukiel, minister of defense, and Tadeusz Romer, foreign minister.

Weekly Denied Newsprint.

The Poles have contended they could not shake up their government just to please the Russians. They also have been firm, publicly at least, in refusing to accept outright the "Curzon line," suggested by Russia as a border. However, many believe the Poles would accept the "Curzon line," if a way were found to save the London government's face when and if it gets back to Warsaw.

The Poles' refusal to give ground in the Russian dispute may have figured in the ministry of information's action today in cutting off the paper supply of the unofficial weekly Polish newspaper, Wiadomosci Polskie, which has carried much criticism of Russia.

NAZIS RIP REDS WITH GUN THAT SPEAKS AS TEN

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP).—The Germans today were reported using two new weapons, a 10 barreled self-propelled mortar and a heavy anti-tank gun called a "Hornet," against the Russians. The mortar was described by Moscow radio, which said it weighs 7¼ tons. A Berlin broadcast mentioned the other gun.

SIEGE OF LENINGRAD BROKEN BY DELUGE OF 500,000 SHELLS

LENINGRAD, Russia, Feb. 10 [Delayed]—(AP).—How Leningrad was saved by a barrage of more than 500,000 shells which drenched in fire a half mile sector controling the siege of the city was told today by participants in the battle.

The guns were directed against a hill seven miles southwest of Leningrad, where the Germans sat for two years and four months within clear view of their objective without being able to take it. From it they finally were rolled back into the Baltics.

That hill, the Russians said, was soaked with 500,000 to 600,000 shells along a front half a mile wide and two miles deep, permitting a decisive Red break-thru.

Policeman for 11 Years to Join His Twin in Navy

Chester Doonan, 38, a policeman for 11 years, will join his twin brother, Warren, in the navy next week. Warren also was a city policeman. The brothers are presidents of the International Twins association and officers of the Zephyr Twin club of Chicago. Chester is married and has two children. His home is at 7020 Broad st. He expects to be assigned to the navy shore patrol.

POLES TO HONOR KOSCIUSKO AND LINCOLN TODAY

Lincoln and Kosciusko, whose birthdays fall on Feb. 12, will be honored in twin ceremonies this morning by District 20 of the American Polish council, representing 22 Polish Catholic parishes and many welfare and civic organizations.

The Lincoln ceremony will be held at the Lincoln statue in Lincoln park, near North av. and Clark st., at 10 o'clock. Brig. Gen. Barzynski, commanding general of the Chicago Quartermaster depot, will place a wreath.

The Kosciusko ceremony will be held at the Kosciusko monument, near Humboldt blvd. and North av., at 11 a. m. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, retired, will officiate.

St. James Episcopal church, Wabash av. and Huron st., where Lincoln worshiped in Chicago, will hold its annual Lincoln day service at 11 o'clock tomorrow with Dr. Duncan H. Browne delivering the sermon.

Lincoln day ceremonies will be held at 2 p. m. in the Grand Army of the Republic hall in the public library building, Michigan av. and Randolph st. Capt. Thomas Ambrose, commander of the G. A. R. Memorial association, will read the Gettysburg address. Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville, Republican candidate for United States senator, will speak.

Bahamas Recruiting 2,000 to Work on Farms in U. S.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 11.—The government next week will recruit 2,000 more laborers for work on United States farms. Last year the government recruited 4,697, of whom 1,697 have since returned to the Bahamas.

ALLOT $220,800 TO CONGRESS ST. LAND PURCHASES

Allotment of $220,800 from the fuel motor tax collections to the city for acquiring three parcels of property for the proposed Congress st. highway was authorized yesterday by Walter A. Rosenfield, state director of public works and buildings, in a message to Philip Harrington, city commissioner of subways and superhighways.

The largest individual allotment, amounting to $172,500, is for the purchase of property at 460-68 S. State st., site of an 8 story building. The sum of $37,800 is set aside for the north half of 500-10 S. State st., and the remodeling of a 4 story building there. The third allotment is for $10,500 for 4 feet at the south end of 458 S. State st., and the remodeling of a 3 story building on that site.

The three allotments now raise to 39 the number of properties all east of the river, placed in the possible acquisition class thru motor tax funds. Five more properties remain to be negotiated, at a cost of $255,025. Thus far the funds set aside for the 39 parcels total $1,943,300.

THREE TRAINS COLLIDE IN EAST; FOUR INJURED

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11 (AP).—Four persons were injured today in a three-way collision on the Pennsylvania railroad's main line at Pitcairn, 15 miles east of here.

A five car passenger local hit the rear end of the 13 car New York-St. Louis mail train, which carried no passengers, derailing one car of the local, and the engine, tender, and first three cars of the mail train.

A short time later a Pittsburgh-New York passenger train sidewiped the derailed cars and its engine and four cars were knocked off the tracks. Three tracks, including a main line, were blocked.

ARMY TO CLOSE HUGE NEW YORK ORDNANCE PLANT

Baldwinsville, N. Y., Feb. 11 (AP).—The army today announced the closing of the 15 million dollar New York ordnance works, which has been making ammonium picrate, a high explosive ingredient for armor-piercing shells.

Maj. Emil F. Werley, commanding officer, said the plant would suspend operations March 4. He said the works had been producing a million pounds of "explosive D" a month.

Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell Jr., chief of ordnance, Washington, in a letter to Werley, said that "due to the great efficiency of our ordnance high explosive manufacturing plants, it becomes necessary for us to reduce the product of ammonium picrate."

GAMING PLAINTS NOT RECORDED IN USUAL FILES

Omitted by Customs, Says Sergeant.

Police customs did not include registration of gambling complaints forwarded from the police commissioner's office, John H. Smith, a retired sergeant, yesterday testified before the city civil service commission. He was called as a witness for his former commanding officer, Capt. Walter F. Healy, one of nine police captains suspended last November during a grand jury investigation of gambling.

Smith was a desk sergeant at the Hyde Park station for the last four years under Healy. Prior to that he was secretary to several police captains. He retired last Jan. 15.

Smith's testimony was considered important in the cases against the other police captains as well as in the Healy trial. The nine officers face the same charge: failure to make station records of gambling reports received by telephone or mail from headquarters.

Smith Takes Blame.

Smith took the blame for some omissions of duty charged against Healy. He said it was the desk sergeant's duty, not the captain's, to make entries on the station complaint book. On several complaints which did not show what was done or learned by the detectives assigned to the complaint, Smith said he or one of his fellow desk sergeants was at fault. It was just carelessness, he said.

"Is there any reason why gambling complaints were not entered in the station books?" asked Atty. Michael F. Ryan, defending Healy.

"No," said Smith. "It just wasn't the custom anywhere in the city, for many years."

Special Gambling File.

Earle Downes, assistant corporation counsel, elicited from Smith the statement that a special file on gambling usually is kept in a police captain's office, and it is not kept up to date by desk sergeants.

Smith's testimony was supplemented by Lt. John P. Bush, who retired from the department Jan. 23 after 36 years. Bush said it never was the custom to put gambling reports in the regular complaint book.

The Healy hearing will be resumed Monday.

'GESTAPO CHIEF' NABBED IN PHONE BOOTH; HE'S 16!

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—A 16 year old Bronx messenger boy, who the FBI said was enacting the role of a Nazi gestapo chieftain and saboteur in telephone threats to destroy New York's bridges and tunnels, was in custody today.

Altho the FBI declined to identify the boy, police booked him on a malicious mischief charge as James Gerrity. His calls to the FBI resulted this week in a heavily augmented guard on vulnerable structures in the metropolitan area.

FBI agents said the telephone voice identified himself as "Lt. Comdr. Walter Von Krueger"—and went into great detail on his qualifications as a saboteur and on the strength of his army of assistants.

When another call came in last night an agent held the caller in conversation while the call was traced to a Bronx telephone booth. When police arrived the youth was still talking to the FBI.

PRESS FREEDOM HELD IN DANGER FROM NEW DEAL

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.] contends that "the present political administration is doing more to kill the freedom of the press than any other administration in our history."

The Wyoming Republican said last night in a Lincoln day dinner address that the people "have every reason to be fearful about the future of our country as long as the executive branch is in the hands of a man who would flip the Constitution overboard as carelessly as he would flip a cigaret stub."

"Thru institution of a suit against the Associated Press, . . . thru flooding the mails with false and misleading statistics, thru constant Presidential attacks upon the validity and honesty of commentators and columnists, thru these and a thousand other little tricks, the present political administration is doing more to kill the freedom of the press than any administration in our history," he said.

PRISONERS GET FULL PAY, UNION CHECKOFF OR NO

Butchers Try to Take 25 Cents a Week.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—The war department made it plain today that if unions demand a check-off system for employers of war prisoners the army is determined that neither the prisoners nor the United States government will pay the money.

This, a war department official suggested, makes it evident that the only way for unions to collect check-offs for work done by war prisoners would be to get them directly from the employer.

The question arose from a disclosure by Leon R. Schachter, business manager of a local of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen [AFL], that a union dues check-off of 25 cents a week will be demanded for each of 165 Nazi war prisoners employed by the Seabrook farms, Bridgeton, N. J.

Can't Take It from Pay.

The immediate reaction of the war department was that it was certain no 25 cent deduction would be allowed from the pay of the war prisoners. They receive, under terms of international agreements, 80 cents a day. The practice of the government is to allow employment of war prisoners where the need is demonstrated at wage rates prevailing in the area where the men are hired. The difference between the 80 cents paid the prisoner and the total wage is paid by the employer to the treasurer of the United States.

Before the prisoners are hired a contract is drawn between the government and the employer establishing wages and other conditions.

Won't Allow Check-off.

The war department said it will not pass for final execution any contract providing that check-offs be deducted either from the money paid to the government or from the funds paid to prisoners. This, it was pointed out, leaves it up to the employer to decide whether he wants to pay the unions in addition to the wages paid into the treasury and to the prisoner.

The check-off system is an arrangement in some union contracts under which the employer deducts union dues from pay envelopes and turns them over to the union. He pointed out that this provision was followed last summer in the employment of 150 soldiers who came in from Fort Dix to help save the tomato crop.

MOTHER THRILL AT TRIBUNE WA ITEM ABOUT SO

The story in THE TRIBUNE yesterday telling that her son, Bernard, a marine private, received 28 copies of THE TRIBUNE in one day in Cape Gloucester, New Britain, was the first news she had received of him in two months, Mrs. Albert Fliss, 5243 Schubert av., said yesterday.

"It was the most thrilling news of my life," Mrs. Fliss said. "When I opened the paper and saw his name, I was almost overcome. He has been in the South Pacific almost a year, and his last letter was dated Dec. 5. His subscription to THE TRIBUNE runs out Feb. 15, and now I'm having it renewed. I had been so worried about what might have happened to Bernard that I was thinking of not having the paper sent to him any more."

Pvt. Fliss received 28 Tribunes in his mail recently, a marine corps combat correspondent reported. His mother said he asked her to send him THE TRIBUNE.

NAVY AIR CHIEF TO BE DEPUTY CHIEF OF FLEET

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—One of the navy's highest ranking airmen is going to become deputy commander of the Pacific fleet, giving major recognition to the increasing importance of the naval air service in the war against Japan. He is Vice Adm. John H. Towers, now commander of air forces of the Pacific fleet, principally an administrative job.

Vice Adm. Towers.

In his position as deputy commander—a new post—Towers will be second in command to Adm. Nimitz in directing the campaign that has taken bombing planes over virtually every Jap base in the Pacific area.

Succeeding Towers as commander of the Pacific fleet air forces will be Rear Adm. Charles Pownell, another veteran of the navy's air service.

WALLACE IN SEATTLE.

Vice President Wallace, who served as advance man for Mr. Roosevelt in 1940, has undertaken the role again in preparation for the fourth term campaign. He spoke the other night in Seattle. It can hardly be doubted that Mr. Wallace was speaking for the administration and was outlining the policies Mr. Roosevelt proposes to follow if he is reëlected.

The Vice President, whose only contribution to American polity was the restriction of agricultural acreage and the killing of millions of pigs, chose to forget his own record and plead for greater production. The nation will welcome his conversion to common sense in this particular but question his sincerity.

He would increase production, he said, by a series of barter arrangements, such as the exchange of our surplus of machine tools for Russia's surplus of platinum and manganese. Mr. Wallace seems to think that such bi-lateral arrangements provide a superior way of doing business.

He is, of course, wholly wrong. The bilateral trade treaties of the 1930s tended to strangle trade. They were a totalitarian device designed primarily to enable warlike countries to obtain the raw materials for munitions. Germany was the great exemplar of bilateralism and barter. Russia, Italy, and Japan were among other nations that played the same game. Mr. Hull denounced these methods repeatedly, but he never had Mr. Roosevelt's whole-hearted support and Mr. Wallace indicates that he hasn't got it now and won't have it if Mr. Roosevelt is reëlected.

It is Mr. Wallace's notion that such arrangements should be made only among what he calls "the peaceful nations" and he lists Russia as one of them. That raises some interesting questions. Was Russia a peaceful nation in 1939 when Stalin made the deal with Hitler that started the war or did Russia become peaceful only after being attacked? What are the criteria by which a peaceful nation is determined? If Russia grabs half of Poland and persuades Poland to compensate herself by taking East Prussia, will Poland be a peaceful or a warlike nation if she resists a German effort to recover the territory and will Germany be a warlike or a peaceful nation if she attempts to get back what was wrested from her?

There is no answer to such questions. The fact is that almost all the nations, ours not excepted, have been at times aggressive and at other times relatively passive. Some nations have started more wars than others, but it is not so long since Russian troops were in Paris, Swedish troops were terrorizing half of Europe, and French troops overran the continent. English troops today are holding India in subjection.

Mr. Wallace knows all this. He utters nonsense because no reasonable advocacy of the fourth term is possible.

TAX RATES AND 100 PER CENT.

The Civic federation has estimated that the 1943 tax rate for Chicago will be $3.93 on the so-called 100 per cent assessments made this year by Assessor Clark. This is equivalent to a rate of $10.26 on the present assessment roll on which property is entered at 37 per cent of its value.

The 1942 tax rate in Chicago was $10.42, but the federation is careful to point out that the reduction is not traceable to the change in the assessment base, but to statutory reduction in the county's tax levy and a lower appropriation for school buildings. Actually the 100 per cent factor, the federation estimates, resulted in $1,262,000 increase in tax levies.

The 1943 rate estimate is only tentative. If the railroads should win in court the right to be assessed on the former basis of 31 per cent of full value the shift of additional burdens to real estate and personal property tax payers in Cook county will send the rate above $4.00, equivalent to $10.80 or more on the old 37 per cent assessment basis.

All of these figures, however, merely tell taxpayers what they cannot escape. The levies have been made and spent and the 1943 assessments are virtually finished. More important is the federation's warning that, unless there is a special session of the legislature before July 1 to readjust tax rate limitations, Cook county may face a "terrific" tax increase in 1945.

The existing tax rate limitations, insofar as they have not been replaced by pegged levies, merely restrain the rapacity of tax spenders on the scale of the old assessment plan. By the substitution of 100 per cent for 37 per cent assessments a government, on the same rate, can levy 2.7 times as much money. A number of local governmental tax funds were limited by pegged levies last year and, in some instances where it was possible to increase levies, there is ground for suspicion that the governments concerned forewent the increases in order not to arouse further opposition to the assessment change. Such forbearance will not last long.

CHICAGO AND WORLD TRADE.

Chicago, and the manufacturing and agricultural areas of which it is the economic capital, have for many decades furnished a large proportion of the materials for America's export trade. Until recent years, however, this city was content in most instances to confine itself to production and to leave to brokers in New York, San Francisco, and other ports the marketing of products that were sent abroad. The middle west is also an important customer for imported articles, but these, too, are commonly taken from importers in the coastal cities.

After some earlier and localized efforts, the Export Managers' Club of Chicago and the Chicago Association of Commerce staged in 1935 the first Chicago world trade conference. During the succeeding years the conference has come to be recognized as one of the two most important annual international trade meetings in the United States. From an original attendance confined largely to the Chicago area, the participation has widened until, at the conference to be held on Monday, delegations will be present from Canada and Latin America as well as from all of the important trading ports of this country. The administration is sending a large delegation, headed by former Gov. Lehman, to propagandize its international views at the meeting.

The export trade activities in Chicago have not been confined to the annual meetings. Hundreds of local concerns have added export and import departments. Several agencies have established headquarters in the city to handle business directly with Latin America and other foreign areas instead of thru coastal cities. Thru the Association of Commerce, advertising has been carried in publications circulated abroad, which has done much to make the outside world conscious that Chicago, instead of being a landlocked source of raw materials, is actually one of the world's most rapidly growing centers of international commerce.

The delegates to the meeting will find Chicago's industrial plants and the great food producing facilities of the middle American empire busy with war orders, as are similar facilities thruout the United States, but the visitors cannot fail to be impressed with the vast productivity of this area and the enormous wants that it can supply when it returns to peace time production.

THE WASTE PAPER CAMPAIGN.

Early in November Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, for the third time since Pearl Harbor called upon newspapers to do a job in a crisis that threatened a breakdown in military operations. Collection of waste paper, the raw material necessary for the production of a multiplicity of essential pulp products, including cartons and containers for the shipment of munitions and supplies to our millions of men overseas, had reached such a low point that not only were military operations threatened but essential civilian requirements were in danger of being eliminated entirely.

The newspapers accepted the challenge and 667,000 tons of scrap paper was set as the monthly goal to be reached and sustained thruout the emergency.

Waste paper collections in October amounted to 503,000 tons; in November, 514,000 tons; December, 530,000 tons, and January, 560,000. The deficit of 107,000 tons per month will soon be overcome if the metropolitan centers of the country will follow the example set by Chicago.

Herbert M. Faust, salvage director of the war production board, has spent several days in Chicago this week examining into the waste collection campaign being sponsored and led by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association. In his opinion metropolitan Chicago is leading the nation in this campaign. He attributes this leadership first to the patriotic enterprise of the newspapers in devoting generous amounts of their limited space to educating the public to an orderly and sustained program of waste paper conservation and, secondly, to an efficient organization for collecting old paper. The cooperation of the newspapers, municipal authorities, schools, churches, labor unions, industries, and many other organizations has been planned not as a temporary expedient but as an arrangement which will function so long as the emergency lasts.

Normal collections of waste paper in the city of Chicago are approximately 46,000 tons per month. In the month of January this was increased to 75,000 tons. Average weekly receipts by 34 paper mills in the Chicago area were 40,885 tons in January, an increase of 15,952 tons over November, and the last week in January showed receipts of 45,600 tons.

The classification known as mixed waste, that is, the waste which comes out of the waste baskets and contains wrapping paper, envelopes, letterheads, discarded containers, etc., has shown a marked increase. This is the sort of waste paper which furnishes the strong fibers needed in the production of the items required for military uses. The tentative goal of 48,000 tons per week in the Chicago area soon will be reached and a new goal will be established for the thousands of patriotic citizens who have demonstrated such a remarkable spirit of cooperation and accomplishment.

SOLDIER VOTES.

[Mobile (Ala.) Press.]

There can be no mistaking the fact that the President's message demanding that congress enact the Green-Lucas bill to enable members of the armed forces to vote for federal officials was politically inspired and designed to influence the outcome of the 1944 Presidential and congressional elections.

Mr. Roosevelt took congress to task for leaving the soldier voting question up to the states. It has already been demonstrated that the states can revamp their laws to give absentee service men an opportunity to vote by mail. Georgia has already taken the lead and a dozen other states are planning similar action in the matter. If any censure was due from President Roosevelt it was for the states which have held back and refused to enact soldier voting legislation, including our own Alabama. Mr. Roosevelt might have made a judicious statement along those lines without criticism, but ranting at congress in an obvious effort to influence the service vote in his favor puts the President in a very poor light.

It is most revealing that Mr. Roosevelt places no importance at all on the soldiers voting for candidates for state offices, but only for federal officials. The President said as much when he told congress that it would be impractical to distribute bulky and varied state ballots among the armed forces. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt champions only limited franchise for members of the armed forces. If they can vote for reëlection of their commander in chief and for senators and representatives, that will be enough for President Roosevelt.

FIFTH VALENTINE FOR MARY.

I love my love with an M because
Her Mirth and Mystery give me pause;
She's always Mindful of Me, I think,
And seldom if ever mentions Mink.

I love my love with an A, you see,
She's Artfully Artless, as All Agree;
She's Avid in Argument, Awful in ire,
Alluring, she sets my heart on fire.

I love my love with an R, I guess,
Because of un-Rivaled Resourcefulness;
She's Radiant, Restful to the eyes,
And Raises the Roof when I've been unwise.

I love my love with a Y, I'd say,
Because of the Youth in her heart today;
For these I love my Valentine—

How to Enjoy the Flu.

There is a way to make flu a delightful experience.

Go to bed and stay there. Have a bedside table piled high with books—all those you have been wanting this long time to read, and some that are new to you.

Get up out of bed once in a while and try to walk across the room, just to convince yourself how weak, and wobbly, and sick you really are. Then go back to bed with a clear conscience to your reading.

You should have a packet of correspondence cards and a pen handy so that when you tire of reading you can jot notes to friends, not forgetting to mention you are in bed with flu. Then lie back and wait for the replies of commiseration to pour in.

How fascinating an accumulation of flu gifts can be! Items from an accurately kept list show them to cover a wide range—appetite teasers in be-ribboned, be-cellophaned wrappings, little statuettes of lambs and dogs with detachable heads, a paper weight that resembles a bowl of goldfish and sparkles in the sunlight, magazines and newspapers, fragrant bath creations, new records, and chop suey.

Well, it is difficult to terminate such a fine vacation. But eventually you will discover that when you get out of bed and stroll into the living room you do not tremble or stagger at all. Then it is up to you to decide you are well.

Ipse Dixit.

PRAYER TO SAINT VALENTINE.

Children but yesterday; boys all in brown,
Girls wearing service pins, hearts on a sleeve;
Heedless of smiling eyes, seeing the town,
Living and loving each moment of leave.
The clouds may gather and a far gun roars,
But their laughter rings, untroubled and gay;
What of the morrow when one he adores
Clings to his side and the sun shines today?
Theirs is the faith beyond knowledge and sight,
Stronger than doubt and more certain than fear;
Bright the assurance that guides them aright,
Old hearts are heavy but young hearts are clear.
Saint of all lovers, hold safe every one
Till days of parting are over and done!

When Coppers Wore Helmets.

When Max Heidelmeyer was in command of the East Chicago Avenue station the Chicago police were still wearing high, stiff helmets. These were targets for the snoopers from the Law and Order league, who would peek over the swinging door of a Clark street saloon, note the helmet of some tired officer sampling the free lunch, and demand an investigation by the commander of the district.

These reports irked the captain. At morning roll call he would berate and threaten the boys on the beat, but he was never certain of the offender's identity. Max never used the king's English, but his meaning was always clear. After a large number of complaints, his warning was like this:

Now listen, boys, dere's monkey biz,
Yet I von't mention who it is,
But Riley there, und Casey, too,
You chust vatch out dot it ain't you!

VALENTINE TO VENUS.

(Paraphrase of Homer, Book IV., Ode 1.)

Kisses tender,
Sweet surrender,
Cyprian, fade in memory's mist;
Since Cynara left me alone
It must content me to have known
The girls whom I've already kissed.

In my mellow,
Sere and yellow,
Autumn, I must court the Muses;
Whom I find have strong objection
To a rival for affection,
To your soft delays and ruses.

Queen immortal!
Quit the portal
Of my old and saddened shell;
Haste to Paulus, he is younger
And has friends to glory under
The glamor of your golden spell.

They'll adore you,
Singing for you
Serenades as sweet as nectar;
Serenades of lovers meeting
Careless that the hours are fleeting,
Knowing you are their protector.

But tho you let Me go, coquette,
Flouting me whose arteries harden;
The tears that from my eyelids start
Confess your hold upon my heart,

WHAT DOES BABY'S MOUTH REVEAL?

FROM the first time the new baby wails "whaa" or "coo," the hidden recesses thus exposed reveal many things that are of interest.

Even before these baffling inner secrets are disclosed, there are usually questions about the blister-like peeling of the newborn's lips. Many infants shed the outer skin over these areas in the first few days or weeks of life. Occasionally the process will be repeated. Rarely, however, will the tissues become sore and no treatment is required. If cracking and irritation appear and persist, the family doctor or the baby specialist will know exactly what to do.

At times there is a certain amount of dusky blueness about the mouth. If this is present only when the baby is cold or is holding his breath during a crying "jag," it is probably of no significance. If a slatelike color remains, however, a thoro examination is in order. The cause may be a defective heart or some obstruction to the free flow of air into the lungs.

When the tiny mouth is opened, about the first object that comes into view is the tongue. This versatile organ is subject to many changes and variations. In the infant, most are within the realm of normal. Many small tots will exhibit a grayish layer on the upper surface and are still perfectly well. In such instances there is no occasion for worry.

The front portion of the lingual apparatus is mechanically cleaned by sucking—pressure between it and the hard palate. The rest of the structure does not receive such treatment, consequently food débris may collect and be responsible for the coating. Of course, this manifestation can be produced and become more extensive when fever or a cold is present.

In a thrush infection, the chief characteristic is the formation of a membrane, whitish in shade. This plantlike fungus may spread to all parts of the cavity unless properly controled. The patches at first resemble milk curds. The diagnosis is obvious when an attempt is made to remove them. True thrush cannot be brushed or wiped away. The organisms adhere closely to the exposed sites, whereas curds are easily dislodged.

Fortunately, physicians have noted a steady decrease in the occurrence of this disorder. The explanation lies in the fact that pacifiers, which are usually dirty and contaminated, are not advised. Furthermore, most mothers have given up the pernicious custom of swabbing the baby's mouth. Wherever these practices still exist, trouble will be encountered more frequently. Attempting to clean this region serves no purpose except to injure the delicate mucous surface and pave the way for disease.

Now and then small, smooth, raised spots along the gum margins of the new member of the family will be observed. Altho the child is only a few weeks old, maternal pride is certain that the young hopeful has a tooth. These little white nodules are small cysts that disappear in a short time. They may also be seen on the roof of the mouth, where they are responsible for a peculiar pallor of the palate. This condition need cause no concern as it calls for no treatment.

FEARS FOR OFFSPRING.

H. P. writes: When I was a boy I had rickets. I am now chicken-breasted. Will my children be born with this deformity?

REPLY.

No danger. They may acquire it, however, if they do not receive enough vitamin D. Our best sources are sunlight and cod liver oil.

IT IS.

Mrs. D. writes: My son came home on furlough with glandular fever. I have other children in the family and want to know if this disease is contagious.

REPLY.

Yes. It is known as "infectious mononucleosis." Watch for a forthcoming article on the ailment.

FORCE OF FLUID.

D. F. G. writes: What is meant by spinal pressure?

REPLY.

The pressure of the spinal fluid. This secretion is present always in the ventricles of the brain and surrounds the spinal cord. When increased, it may point to irritation or infection.

FLUSHES AND FEVER.

D. S. writes: Could hot flashes be responsible for a slight rise in temperature daily? There are no other symptoms of infection.

REPLY.

The feeling of heat in the skin is rarely accompanied by systemic fever. Activity may explain the whole matter.

NOT A FACTOR.

A. J. W. writes: Is it true that the longer it takes for the baby's teeth to come in, the stronger they are?

REPLY.

Not necessarily. It all depends upon the habit of body and nutrition.

Trials of Love.

Adolescence-is-sad-note: A youth in the suburbs asked his mother to order a corsage for the girl he was taking to his dancing school's Valentine party. His mother complied, ordering at the same time a wreath for the funeral of a neighbor who had died. That evening the boy left for the party, but soon telephoned in a rage from his girl's house. "Listen," he said angrily, "this kidding about the way I dance has gone far enough." The girl had received her corsage, but the attached note had said: "With sympathy from the Scotts."

Possessions Are a Burden.

Vignette of war time Washington: A member of the federal judiciary was going south for a month's circuit hearings and called an old friend, a Washington government girl, to suggest she borrow his apartment during his absence for her parents, who were planning to visit her. She said they had changed their plans, but as her war time duty was billeting transient officers, she might be able to rent it for him for a month. "Fine!" he said, and went blithely on his way. A navy commander and his wife were only too pleased to get the apartment, much more pleased, in fact than the judge when he returned from his tour, for the navy has priority over the judiciary in housing. He now is trying to get them out.

Timepiece.

A Chicago lady, Mrs. Paul Semrad, has a brindle Boston terrier, Pat, who agrees with other educators that a household should run on schedule. He wakes the family regularly at 7 a. m., asks to take his walk at 3 p. m., and is ready to turn out the lights at 9 p. m. However, his prize bit of timekeeping is a few minutes before 5 p. m. when he barks at Mrs. Semrad with the unrelenting fervor of one who knows he is in the right. His sharp, commanding barks continue until his mistress retreats to the kitchen to prepare dinner. Then he settles down to await results. Once, only once, he tried to send her into the kitchen when the hands of the clock indicated it was 4 o'clock. Just as Mrs. Semrad was trying to quiet him with those futile cluck clucks and no-noes superior humans give to inarticulate beasts, the radio came sing-songing out with: "The time is now exactly two minutes before five o'clock." Pat was right. The clock had stopped.

Waiting Line.

The man and the girl had been waiting in line in the restaurant for half an hour. At last, weary and hungry, they reached the head of the line. Instead of ushering them to the next vacant table, the head waiter looked back into the line and called out: "Party of three or four!" He did this again and again and again. Finally the man looked at him glumly. "If he had been in charge of Noah's Ark," he said in a ferocious mutter, "it wouldn't be filled up yet."

And Stay Off the Grass.

From the Red Cross courier comes word that the island of Adak in the Aleutians no longer is barren. A small Christmas tree, taken from the mast of an American ship where the ship's crew had placed it in accordance with a Norwegian custom, has been planted in a stretch of waste land. A fence encircles the tree, and on the fence hangs the sign: "Adak National Forest."

Nice if True.

Not long ago a New York woman telephoned the Red Cross. She wanted some one to wire her husband and find out why he had not written for two days, an extreme departure in that he had written twice daily since his induction into the army. The address indicated that he was in a maneuver area, and the Red Cross worker hinted that he might be out on maneuvers and unable to write. "O, no!" the wife corrected her. "He wouldn't be on maneuvers. He's a corporal."

SUNRISE AT STILLMAN VALLEY.

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 8.—One warm Sunday morning in May, I was driving west from Chicago on route 72. The land lay glowing with the promise of summer crops in neat farms and well tilled fields. The region is the heart of our country, and, indeed, one of the richest spots on earth. The deep shadows of the village street were welcome after the shimmering highway. Several cars were drawn up around a white wooden church, the voice of the minister could be heard, all else was deserted and quiet. To stop a moment seemed imperative, and here was a little park. Or was it a cemetery? A few small ancient grave stones appeared in one row, but on the rise of ground in the center an enormous straight shaft pierced the tree tops. It seemed an unusual size for a village war memorial, and closer scrutiny revealed the reason. The young Lincoln had passed this way.

He was 23 that year, a year when no crops were raised in northern Illinois. A volunteer militia marched with a few regulars in one of the last flareups of Indian warfare in the middle west. Little more than a century ago these fair and well drained fields were surrounded by the endless woods. It was a time of ambush, massacre, and the burning out of new settlers.

Lincoln minimized the campaign of 1832. He only suffered from the mosquitoes, he said, but it was the end of young life for some. He, who was to suffer later as much from the agony of war as those who die on the battle field, had his taste of it early. Lincoln and his men came by this knoll in the first red light of the morning sun, and found five soldiers dead. Here their graves still are, dug by his hand. It seems a natural and obvious duty to be commemorated by such a lavish monument. A President of the United States journeyed here, to dedicate this stone, 70 odd years later. What it shows is not the specific greatness of any act, but the greatness of the people's love for their leader, so that every place where he had lingered became sacred.

In the present speechless horror, these memories seem nostalgic, escapist. But even the safest and most cultivated valleys of our inland empire were won by just such sacrifice as is now given by Americans in the uttermost outposts. May they keep the honor of their country and win its peace!

"GRAMY" FOR SHORT.

Jasper, Ind., Feb. 7.—Yesterday and the day before my phone was kept busy by people calling in saying, "Did you see the editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE"? Just one or two were worried, and the others were highly elated.

Today I received a number of the editorials which my friends clipped out of THE TRIBUNE. The person who wrote that editorial must have a keen sense of humor, and I have likewise. I think it was a clever article, and certainly want to express my appreciation for same.

I appreciated more than anything else the reference to the "E" [for Eisenhower] in "Hickenlooper E. Gramelspacher" because of the patriotic flourish connected with it, and hope that Gov. Hickenlooper enjoyed the article as much as I did.

NO RELIEF FOR LANDLORDS.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—I was recently amused when I entered a loop restaurant. A large sign announced, "The price of apple pie and raisin pie has been increased two cents per cut. The OPA has permitted this increase due to the increased cost of fresh apples and California raisins."

I have repeatedly gone to the OPA and requested permission to increase rents in my apartment building because the cost of fuel, decorating, water, taxes, and janitor's salary had risen tremendously. I was informed that increased costs of operating and maintenance were no basis for an increase in rents.

Perhaps, if I used apples and raisins in the operation of my building I could boost the rents.

Perhaps it is just as well that we postpone our "second front" against Germany until we are masters of the Pacific.

DISCLOSE LAXITY IN PUBLIC AID TO FEEDING PUPILS

Agency Heads Say Fraud Can Be Perpetrated.

BY GORDON SCHENDEL.

The laxity in the federal and state agencies' disbursement of the taxpayers' funds from which the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council draws approximately $10,000 monthly to finance its free milk and low cost lunch programs for school children was disclosed yesterday by heads of the various agencies.

That the laxity affords opportunity for collection of fraudulent claims was admitted by W. A. Stolte, federal supervisor for Illinois of the food distribution administration.

At the same time Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction, Springfield, charged that "the looseness with which the FDA administers the federal school lunch program lays itself wide open to suspicion."

Calls Program Unnecessary.

Characterizing the federal school lunch program as "absolutely unnecessary" and "nothing but a New Deal vote catching device," Nickell asserted that his hands were tied in administration of the supplemental state school lunch program, because "the state is wholly dependent upon the federal agency for auditing of the individual lunch programs."

Nickell said his recent demand upon the FDA for field audits of the school lunch programs had not been answered.

"We have received no field audits of school lunch programs from the FDA since the programs were begun," he said.

The federal measure setting up the school lunch program provides that the administrative agency shall institute periodic field audits to determine whether the number of pupils participating in a school's program on that day is out of line with the average daily participation figure, reported in the sponsor's claim for reimbursement.

Staff Inadequate for Audits.

Stolte recently admitted he had made no field audits of the school lunch programs since the programs started.

"It's an impossible task with the staff I have," he said. "I have a total of only 22 persons in my state office and five area offices, and they carry on all the administrative work for more than 1,600 school lunch programs in Illinois, besides doing the administrative work for 12 other federal food control programs."

Stolte admitted that, inasmuch as he had not made any field audits of the lunch programs, sponsors could have collected money from the federal and state agencies on claims which set forth pupil participation figures far in excess of the true figures. He agreed that such fraudulent claims could have been collected, undetected by his office, regularly since the programs started last fall.

Denies His Pupils Participated.

The Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, thruout the time it has collected federal and state funds on the basis of the number of pupils it reported participated in the lunch program it operated in the Davis Square park fieldhouse, has stated its wards were pupils of several neighborhood schools. This list, Stolte's records disclosed, up until the day the council moved out of the fieldhouse last month regularly included the Hamline elementary school, 4747 S. Bishop st.

Lawrence G. Collins, principal of Hamline school for the last 16 years, said he was "certain no Hamline school pupils ever attended the yards council's Davis Square lunch program.

"Obviously, it would have been silly for them to do so," he said, "since it would involve a two mile round trip, which is much too far for small children to go for lunch in cold weather and in the limited time they have for lunch. I'm positive 100 per cent of all Hamline pupils who do not return to their homes for lunch avail themselves of the Hamline school 'penny lunch,' which we have operated for many years."

Stolte's records show that the yards council's prevailing charge at Davis Square was 5 cents for lunch, with milk free, altho at all its other programs the prevailing charge was 10 cents for lunch, with milk usually free.

DUKE DIVORCE SQUABBLE GOES 'ROUND 'N 'ROUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 11.—Today was the final day on which Doris Duke Cromwell, the tobacco heiress, could file an answer to James H. R. Cromwell's counter-petition here in New Jersey asking that her recent Reno, Nev., divorce be nullified. Said to be skiing in Nevada, she neither appeared nor filed an answer.

Her silence, which followed a number of unsavory charges made by Mr. Cromwell in petitioning a month ago for a nullification, was received jubilantly by Cromwell's chief attorney, State Sen. John E. Toolan. He said he will proceed on the premise that silence means consent and ask for a divorce pro concesso.

Cromwell instituted divorce proceedings last September, charging desertion. His wife countered on Oct. 25 with a Reno suit, charging cruelty, against which Advisory Master Dougal Herr in Chancery court here issued a temporary injunction. The injunction was made permanent on Dec. 14, but Mrs. Cromwell has ignored it.

Judge Plays Cupid's Role

The Inquiring Camera Girl — BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Justine G. Eberhardt, 369 E. 20th st., Dubuque, Ia.]

THE QUESTION.

If you were a refugee and could take with you only that which you could carry, what would you take?

WHERE ASKED.

The Blackstone hotel.

THE ANSWERS.

Constance Dowling, actress, Hollywood, Cal.—First of all I think I'd grab my warm mink coat and be assured at least of keeping warm. Then, because I know it would be rather futile to try to carry much food, I'd just take a pack of writing paper and a bunch of pencils so I could write up my travelogue.

Mrs. S. K. Grass, housewife, 1505 Schreiber av.—My first concern would be for the welfare of my 3 month old baby. I'd carry her and as many baby things—clothing, food, medicine, and the like—as I could load into my arms. I'd forget about any sentimental possessions, or anything for myself, but it wouldn't matter so much.

Ralph A. Wells, florist, 1063 Columbia av.—Whether or not I was wearing them, I'd make sure I had a couple of pairs of long legged underwear with me. Then I'd think of my future, at least to the extent of a few securities, if I had time. I'd grab all of the war bonds I had and any loose money that might be around.

Mrs. Lillean Saito, floral designer, Carolina hotel—That's a difficult decision to make. I'm an American born Japanese evacuee and know from experience. Naturally our first thoughts were the necessities for self-preservation. My war bonds were included in the pack because I knew there would always be an America.

Ann Pick, shop manager, 3857 N. Hamilton av.—Facing such an emergency, I'd wear all of the clothes that I could put on my back and hope I wouldn't have to worry about food. I also would carry my portable radio because I think it would keep up morale in any camp to which I might go by bringing music to occupy our spare time.

Loretta Hurtzheim, office worker, 5656 S. Ada st.—My most treasured possession is a pet toy Collie puppy. I'd take him along for sure because he's rather helpless and dependent on my care and also because I'd have no peace of mind if I thought he wasn't being taken care of at home. He'd be my chief concern.

INCOME OF TWO TREATED AS ONE IN JOINT RETURN

Deductions and Credits on Same Basis.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When a joint return is filed, the income, deductions and credits are treated as if they belonged to one person. A joint return should not be filed, therefore, if the effect is to make some of the income subject to higher surtax rates than would be used in separate returns.

The surtax rate is 13 per cent on the first $2,000 of income subject to surtax, increases to 16 per cent on the second $2,000, and so on up to 82 per cent on the portion of surtax net income that exceeds $200,000.

Ordinarily a joint return is advantageous when one spouse has deductions or losses that may be offset against income of the other spouse. For example, if a wife had capital losses in 1943, or a net loss from renting a house, but had little or no other income, her losses could be offset against her husband's income in a joint return.

Victory Tax May Decide.

An exception might occur in a case where medical and dental expenses were deductible on a separate return but not on a joint return because such expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 5 per cent of "net income" before taking the medical expense allowance into account.

The victory tax limitation discussed in Thursday's article may be a deciding factor in choosing between a joint return or separate returns in some cases.

The effect of the partial cancellation of one year's tax under the current tax payment act of 1943 should be considered in deciding between a joint return and separate returns. If one spouse's 1943 tax on a separate return [before any additions to the tax under the pay-as-you-go law] is larger than his 1942 tax, and the other spouse's tax is less than for 1942, a joint return would result in a tax saving.

Follow Special Rules.

Because of the partial cancellation of one year's tax, special rules must be followed if a married couple files differently in 1943 from 1942. The special rules are necessary, of course, in order that the couple may determine [1] what amount to enter as the 1942 tax, and [2] the amount of their forgiveness or cancellation.

Suppose separate returns were filed for 1942, and a joint return is being filed for 1943. The 1942 taxes of the two spouses would be added together and entered as their joint 1942 tax on the 1943 return.

If the couple filed jointly for 1942 and are filing separately for 1943, the calculations are more complicated. If the joint 1942 tax was smaller than the total of the separate 1943 taxes, the husband and wife may divide the 1942 tax in any proportion they wish, so long as neither's share exceeds his 1943 tax. But if the 1942 joint return tax was larger than the total of the separate 1943 taxes, the excess may be divided between them without restriction, and each would report as 1942 tax his share of the excess plus the amount of his 1943 tax.

May Divide Balance.

When the correct 1942 tax figure has been entered, the cancellation can then be determined. Here again the comparison of the 1942 and 1943 taxes must be based on the combined taxes of husband and wife for each year. The resulting uncanceled tax may be divided between them as they choose.

The instructions accompanying the long form 1040 state that each spouse should show on line 19 [c], page 4, the combined uncanceled tax, altho only his or her share would be entered in the right hand column.

[Monday's article will be on the income tax liability of persons in active military or naval service.]

Wed in Court

Cupid's role was played by Judge Frank E. Donoghue of Women's court yesterday in his chambers when he married Mrs. Juanita Nunnery, 30, of 22 N. Halsted st., to James E. Barrett, 39, of the same address. The bride appeared before the judge on a charge of vagrancy after her arrest Jan. 17 for loitering in the vicinity of the Des Plaines street police station. Barrett, who came from Detroit to look for work as a roofer, offered to support the woman when she appeared in court. Acting on Judge Donoghue's offer to marry them, they appeared yesterday with a marriage license, and the vagrancy charge was dismissed.

285 IN SHOP GO TO FUNERAL AND FORCE CLOSING

The machine shop in the Gary works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company was closed yesterday afternoon when 285 machinists walked off the job to attend the funeral of Andrew T. Brown, 51, shop steward, who died Wednesday a short time after he engaged in a fist fight with Jerry Pashes, 52. Last night the machinists, members of the United Steel Workers' union [CIO], met and agreed to return to work today.

Pashes, who had been held by police since Wednesday, was charged with disorderly conduct and released on $10,000 bond for appearance at the coroner's inquest Thursday. He told police the fight started over his lack of a union card. An autopsy indicated Brown died of a heart attack.

In other labor disturbances in the Chicago area yesterday representatives of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] continued to picket the plant of the Automatic Transportation company at 101 W. 87th st., and several hundred workers left their benches at the Chicago Screw company plant at 1024 S. Homan av., at noon in a dispute over wage classifications. All later returned to work, a company spokesman said.

A strike that involved about 100 workers on three shifts at the South Chicago plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company ended with all men back on the job. The men were protesting a time study survey of their jobs.

INDIANA CITIES GET GAS, LIGHTS DESPITE STRIKE

Despite the blizzard and sit down strike of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers local B-9, no interruption of gas or electric service was suffered yesterday by residents of Michigan City, Hammond, Gary, Valparaiso, and Crown Point.

In Michigan City, 68 linemen and gas men played cards at the plants of the Northern Indiana Public Service company, dashing out to work only "in the interests of public safety and the war effort."

Ernest Orange, I. B. E. W. member and Michigan City central labor union president, said the employes were objecting to the company's deducting $1.50 per month from their pay as United Mine Workers dues. Orange said the company deducts the money because of its contract with John L. Lewis' UMW, which won an election for bargaining rights. Orange explained that the UMW has a numerical superiority in Hammond where power plant men who handle coal are UMW members.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 11 (AP). — Sheriff Oscar Griggs of Obion county has a prisoner who "is too good a man to be in jail during this labor shortage" — so, he sent a classified ad to the Commercial Appeal today inviting somebody to pay $55 for his release. The ad said the prisoner is a good farmer and would work out the fine of $55 imposed for violating the liquor laws.

ASSERTS DRINK VICTIM NEEDS 3 KINDS OF HELP

Expert Urges Religion, Medicine, Psychiatry.

Chronic alcoholism is a disease best treated by a combination of medicine, psychiatry, and religion, George La Mott, a speaker from the school of alcohol studies at Yale university, told a group of field investigators for the Illinois liquor control commission who met yesterday at 180 W. Washington st.

Alcoholics Anonymous, a national organization of reformed drunkards who help each other stay on the wagon, uses this combination successfully, he said. The new members admit they are powerless to quit drinking by their own will and depend upon the assistance of spiritual experience and the encouragement of reformed drinkers.

"A clergyman who was not a drunkard cannot be as helpful as a reformed alcoholic in aiding a victim to master his craving," La Mott said.

Half of Members Are Winning.

Alcoholics Anonymous has 8,000 members in 23 cities. The Chicago group has 1,000, including 150 women. The national group was formed in 1934. Half of the members have had no relapse into drunkenness, and two-thirds of them have established a foundation for permanent sobriety, La Mott said.

There are 200,000 alcoholics in the United States, and one million persons who are especially susceptible to alcohol and in danger of becoming problem drunkards, he stated. About 27 million persons drink intoxicating liquors as beverages.

"The average person drinks for pleasure, but the alcoholic drinks because he can't help it," La Mott said. "An alcoholic suffers from a psychopathic disability, and his addiction is likely to be a compromise to keep him from developing even worse mental diseases.

Childish in Emotions.

"The alcoholic has never grown up emotionally. He has failed to make the adjustments expected of an adult and is still infantile in his attitudes and in his dependency on persons for whom he has formed emotional attachments. He cannot find recreation that is satisfying, work that is meaningful, or security and happiness in his family life."

Alcoholism is the greatest single public health problem that is not receiving systematic consideration, La Mott said. It is not hereditary, he added, and it may seize its victim unexpectedly, even tho he may have been a moderate drinker for years. The average age of the chronic alcoholic is 44 . . . . .

CHAPLIN AND 6 TO FACE COURT IN PLOT FEB. 21

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 11 [Special]. —Formal arraignment of Comedian Charlie Chaplin and six others indicted with him by a federal grand jury yesterday will take place on Feb. 21, it was decided today at a meeting of the defendants' attorneys with United States Atty. Charles Carr. At that time a date will be set for hearing pleas or demurrers.

The attorneys announced their clients probably will surrender Monday at the federal prosecutor's office to be fingerprinted and catalogued on the multiple indictments.

Chaplin faces a maximum penalty of 23 years in prison, fines of $26,000, and possible deportation on the charges. The British alien and his co-denfendants were charged with conspiracy in an alleged plot to "railroad" out of town Chaplin's former protege, Joan Berry, who has named him the father of her 4 months old baby. Chaplin also is charged with violating the Mann act for allegedly transporting her to New York to act as his mistress.

LIFE ASSURANCE FIGHTS INFLATION

Policyholders' savings important contribution to War Effort and Post-War Reconstruction

One of the many distinctive services performed by Life Assurance in these urgent times is the mobilization of the people's savings against the insidious but none the less devastating enemy — inflation. Thus millions of men and women, advised by a worthy and highly-trained group of their fellow-countrymen who "sell" Life Assurance, withhold their savings from the luxury market and set them aside to secure protection and well-being for themselves and their loved ones in the unknown days to come.

In the past year alone, the million policyholders of the Sun Life of Canada have set aside $112 millions of their savings in the form of Life Assurance premiums.

During the war years there has been a marked increase in the basic service rendered by Life Assurance—personal and family protection in the time of greatest need. The Sun Life of Canada, since September 1939, has paid out 365 million dollars to policyholders and beneficiaries, a really significant contribution to the stability of national family life in time of emergency.

CHURCHES HELP SALVAGE PAPER; COLLECT TODAY

Three hundred Roman Catholic churches, 235 Protestant churches, and other churches and temples thruout the Chicago area will participate tomorrow in the waste-paper salvage program. Church members will carry the salvaged material to the church buildings when they attend services.

Pickups of the paper will be made tomorrow at all churches, except Presbyterian, by WPB salvage trucks. The Chicago Christian Industrial league will collect paper at Presbyterian churches.

Altho fewer churches responded to the drive than originally had been expected, officials pointed out that many churches sponsor Boy Scout troops which long have been handling local wastepaper drives. Pastors and board members of the churches lauded the plan as an opportunity for churches to take a definite part in the war program.

TIME EXTENDED FOR AGREEMENT ON TRANSIT SALE

Negotiating committees seeking to arrive at a price for the city to pay for the surface and elevated lines reported to Judge Michael L. Igoe in federal District court yesterday that additional time was needed and the judge continued the matter to Feb. 21.

It has already been disclosed that the elevated lines investors would not take the original 11 million dollar offer. Reports indicated that the surface lines investors have not come near an agreement on the manner of dividing the money if there is a sale, nor agreed on what they will take.

Mayor Kelly, who is sponsoring the unification of surface and L, said he was still hopeful that some plan of municipal ownership could be carried thru.

PLAN TO TEACH 1,500 ANTI-NAZI YOUTHS IN U. S.

Underground Leaders Get First Chance.

New York, Feb. 11 [Special].—A plan to bring 1,500 student-specialists here from occupied countries for training in education, industry, and agriculture has been adopted by American education leaders and representatives of 12 European and Asiatic countries, it was learned today. The program, approved at a conference at New York university last night, is to be submitted to the state department Monday for approval.

A representative who attended the conference, which was called by the commission on internal exchanges and scholarships, said the program would receive "serious consideration." It is known the state department is considering the general policy of permitting persons of the occupied lands to come to this country for training in schools and industry.

Mostly from Underground.

For the most part, the students to come here will be the underground leaders or those active in resistance movements in their own lands. Spokesmen for the occupied nations have assured American educators they are ready to begin the program immediately; they feel it is important to have trained men available for reconstruction work as soon as the war ends.

The program calls for an expenditure of 2½ million dollars, one-third of which would come from the United States. The foreign lands would provide one-third of the cost, while the rest would be obtained from private educational organizations. A request for this country's share of the expenses probably will be made to the state department soon.

Several Pledge Funds.

Several governments already have pledged the necessary funds and arrangements have been completed with some of the countries for their quota of students. Poland has notified the commission, which operates under the United States committee on educational reconstruction, that it could immediately provide 470 students now outside the occupied areas. Czecho-Slovakia is ready to send 250, Jugo-Slavia has asked for training facilities for 250, Greece for 450, and China for 100.

The plan is to be submitted to the state department by Dr. E. George Payne, dean of the New York university school of education and chairman of the reconstruction commission.

M. J. DEMPSEY, JUVENILE HOME OFFICIAL, DIES

Malcom J. Dempsey Sr., 67, assistant superintendent of the Juvenile Detention home, 2240 Roosevelt rd., died yesterday in his apartment there. He was an alderman of the old 28th, now the 33d ward, in 1914-'16. He was Cook county chairman of the Progressive party, but later affiliated with the 34th ward Democratic organization. He was an uncle of John T. Dempsey, Cook county chairman of the Republican party.

Survivors are the widow, C. Anna; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Hamerin of Indianapolis, and a son, Malcom Jr., a Chicago automobile dealer.

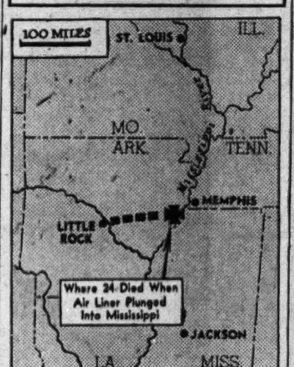
War Worker Denies Guilt in Gasoline Coupon Sale

John Stopka, 33, of 2122 Schiller st., pleaded not guilty yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to a charge of possessing and transferring 5,700 TT gasoline coupons good for 28,500 gallons. Lewis M. Nowlan, office of price administration enforcement attorney, said Stopke, an employe of the Dodge Chicago plant, realized about $1,200 by sale of coupons. He was held in $2,000 bond pending a hearing Feb. 17.

Plane Tragedy



Location of crash.

[Acme Telephotos.]

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 11 (AP).—An American Airlines transcontinental passenger plane crashed into the choppy Mississippi river last midnight, carrying 24 persons to their deaths in the worst blow to civilian aviation since 1940.

Salvage crews abandoned hope early tonight of finding many of the bodies in the plane. The coast guard and United States engineers were recovering pieces of the craft along with mail and luggage, indicating that the ship was torn apart when it hit the water. Arrangements were made to continue the search thru the night.

Twelve of the 21 passengers on the ship were members of the military services—one of them a WAC. In addition, three crew members lost their lives.

The WAC among those killed was Lt. Elizabeth McGuire of Little Rock. Another victim was Lt. Charles S. Brumfield, Evansville, Ind. There were no others from the Chicagoland area.

SLOAN TAYLOR DIES AT 47, WAS AVIATION EDITOR

New York, Feb. 11 [Special].—Sloan Taylor, aviation editor of the New York News, died this morning of coronary thrombosis. He was 47.

Taylor, a balloon officer in World War I., took up heavier than air flying on his discharge and barnstormed around the country with one of the pioneer Gypsy flying outfits before beginning his newspaper career 21 years ago.

Widely known in aviation and newspaper circles, he was born in Marshall, Tex., was educated in Boston and Vienna and attended Yale. He leaves his widow, father, and a brother. Funeral services will be held here at 11 a. m. Sunday.

BUROCRATS WAR ON BILL TO END TIMBER DRAFTS

WMC and Stimson Aid Urge Defeat.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The war department and war man power commission today urged congress to defeat a pending bill which would require draft deferments in logging operations to relieve growing paper and lumber shortages.

Undersecretary of War Patterson, appearing before a house military affairs subcommittee, said that, while demands for paper and lumber products exceed supplies, the war department is opposed to "blanket occupational deferments" for workers in any branch of the industry, including logging.

Patterson proposed, instead, that civilian, and in some cases military, uses of these products be reduced to balance dwindling supplies.

Cites 4-Page British Papers.

"Has there been any real economy in the use of paper in this country?" Patterson asked rhetorically. "I understand, for example, that in England, newspapers are down to four pages." He did not say whether he favors such a reduction here.

Rep. Philbin [D., Mass.] reminded Patterson that our newspapers have already been substantially curtailed [more than 20 per cent], and explained that industry and government officials agree paper and lumber production could be increased enough to meet essential needs by the addition of 22,000 men in logging operations.

Patterson contended that man power shortages also exist in other vital industries, including aircraft and ball bearings, but they do not enjoy mandatory occupational deferments thru act of congress.

Predicts Drain on Industry.

He argued that Philbin's bill would drain workers out of more essential industries and would make it more difficult to meet army and navy draft calls. At present, Patterson said, draft boards are 200,000 short of meeting their quotas.

A. W. Motley, acting director of WMC's bureau of placement, said there is a shortage of 65,000 to 70,000 workers in various phases of paper, pulp, and lumber industries, but contended the decline has been checked thru WMC labor stabilization programs.

Motley said more workers might be gained thru WMC's employment service, but conceded placements in recent months have only balanced losses of workers to the draft and other industries.

In reply to Motley's testimony that lumber and paper industries have been declared essential, Philbin said reports to the committee show these workers are not being deferred, altho virtually blanket deferments are granted in other lines.

GUY STILLMAN HELD OWN SON IN DAD'S WILL

New York, Feb. 11 [Special].—The son whose legitimacy he once bitterly assailed was given full recognition by James A. Stillman, former head of the National City Bank of New York, it his will, filed in Surrogate's court today.

The will, disposing of an estate valued formally at "over $20,000," leaves the net estate, estimated at well into the millions, "to my children, in equal shares." The petition for probate lists the children as Anne Stillman Davison of Oyster Bay, L. I.; James Stillman of Pleasantville, N. Y.; Alexander Stillman of Park av., New York, and Guy Stillman of Barrington, Ill. All three sons are in the military services.

During his sensational divorce suit against his former wife, Anne [Fifi] Stillman, in the 1920s, Stillman named Fred Beauvais, Quebec Indian guide, as co-respondent and questioned the paternity of Guy, born in 1919. Mrs. Stillman, who has since married Fowler McCormick, was not mentioned in the will.

N. Y. Girl to Be Wed to Son of Henry Stantons

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN NEW YORK Mrs. William Pittman Earle Jr. is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Mary Talbot, to Charles Collier Stanton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thompson Stanton of Wayne. Miss Earle, whose father was the late Mr. Earle of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Bellport, L. I., was graduated from the Ethel Walker school and from Vassar college. Her fiancé was graduated from the Fountain Valley school in Colorado Springs, Colo., and from Williams college. He now is attending the naval reserve midshipmen's school at Columbia university, where he expects to receive his commission as ensign in April.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton are vacationing on Gasparilla Island, Boca Grande, Fla., where they will remain for several weeks longer. They have three other children, Mrs. John D. Clemens and Henry T. Stanton Jr. of Wayne, and Lt. James Stanton, who is on duty in the South Pacific with the naval reserve.

Birth News.

Somewhere in the Pacific Lt. Comdr. Eric C. Lambart will be learning of the birth of his daughter, Karen, on Feb. 8 in the Evanston hospital. During his absence Mrs. Lambart, the former Harriett Street, and little Karen will stay with Mrs. Lambart's mother, Mrs. Harry L. Street, in Winnetka. The baby's paternal grandmother is Mrs. W. H. Lambart of Hollywood, Cal.

Today's Events.

The Saddle and Cycle club's valentine party tonight, its first event to be planned by the new entertainment chairman, Mrs. Wells Farnham, will carry on a tradition started last year by Mrs. Henry Gross. The ballroom will be decorated with little trees sprayed white and hung with red hearts. As postmaster, Frederick L. Spencer will give out a valentine to each guest. The Thomas I. Underwoods are writing individual verses for the valentines, which will be read over a microphone by each recipient.

The Radcliffe club of Chicago will meet for luncheon at noon today at the Fortnightly club to hear a talk by Dr. Wilbur K. Jordan, new president of the Cambridge, Mass., college. The Jordans have a number of friends in Chicago, as he formerly was general editor of the University of Chicago Press. As Frances Ruml, Mrs. Jordan was dean of Radcliffe from 1934 to 1939. Mrs. Stanley Pargellis, president of the Radcliffe club of Chicago, will be assisted at the luncheon by Miss Elizabeth Singleton, headmistress of the Girls' Latin school, and Miss Lois Lord of the Latin school faculty.

The Women's College board will meet to hear Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard college today at the Arts club. "Wisdom to Keep Men Free" will be the subject of her talk. On Sunday she will speak in Christ church, Winnetka.

The Freshman assembly dance at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Winnetka Woman's club will be a leap year party. Before the dance some of the girls will take their partners to the Indian Hill club for a Dutch treat supper. Hostesses at two other supper parties to start off the evening will be Anne Belding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram H. Belding Jr., and Rachel Burch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch.

The Sheridan Shore Yacht club's annual mid-winter dance and awarding of prizes for the 1943 sailing season will be held tonight.

Thru the Looking Glass

The skin chapping or flaking or general effect of dryness that is the inevitable aftermath for most of us of even a few days of rough weather can be prevented, you know. You simply double your skin's quota of oil when the winds start kicking up. AND you use a protective.

We can't decide whether one of these steps is more important than the other. The only really workable plan we've ever figured out is to combine the two in a special little cold-weather routine.

Maybe you're the kind of a woman who doesn't like to bother with a foundation ordinarily. We hope not, for your own sake, because it's really the secret of any suave paint job. However, the point is to bestir yourself to that little bit of effort on cold and windy days no matter how hurried you are. The simple process of filming your skin, right from the hairline down to the base of your neck, with a cream or a lotion that acts as invisible armor against the drying effects of cold winds will help save your complexion from the kind of damage that otherwise would accumulate with the years. It will help save it from the immediate danger of chapping, too.

For the worst days, when you know you're going to be buffeted, choose a base that might be a little heavier than the one you ordinarily use. Or use your light textured one more generously than usual. Do this even if your makeup looks a little masklike for this brief period. It's protection that your skin deserves. Make up oftener on windy days than you do on bland ones, too. The dirt and the drying effects of those ill winds make it absolutely necessary.

Never forget, if thin skin is your beauty cross, that it's the dry skin that withers early and fast. Oiling and protective measures are invaluable.

Comes from South to Be Wed Here Today

Miss Annette Walsh McClaran, who with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James W. McClaran, has come from Jackson, Tenn., for her marriage today to Lt. Roger S. McCormick of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. The wedding will be a small one at 3:30 p. m. in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church.

Is Woman Too Sentimental on Jury? Yes! No!

Experts in psychology, crime detection, and sociology differed yesterday in their opinions on the ability of all-women juries to properly evaluate evidence and assess guilt in trials for capital crimes without being influenced by sentiment and other factors not based on evidence.

It was an all-women jury — the first in Cook county qualified to inflict the death penalty — that on Thursday sentenced Edward Damiani and Alvin Krause to life imprisonment for the poison gas slaying of Miss Agnes Olsen in a currency exchange robbery at 311 N. Pulaski rd. last July 3. All-women juries and juries on which women predominated have been numerous during the last year, it was pointed out.

Dr. William H. Haines, head of the Cook county behavior clinic, and an expert in criminal psychology, said women's natural sentimentalism invariably would crop out in determining penalties.

"I believe that as a rule women will be far more lenient than men," he added.

Dr. Daniel B. Rotman, director of the psychiatric bureau of the Municipal court, expressed an opposite view.

"Being on a jury in a notorious murder trial is a new experience for most women," he said, "or even being on a criminal jury at all. The old adage 'a new broom sweeps clean' applies here I think. Women jurors as a whole won't let sentiment stand in the way of punishment for crimes, and I believe they will assess penalties as heavy as the law permits."

Virgil Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, refrained from outright criticism of the Krause-Damiani verdict, but called for a greater sense of civic responsibility on the part of citizens.

"It should be reëmphasized that it's a civic duty and a responsibility to weigh a case on merit without letting sentiment, emotion, and other factors creep in," he said. "During the last year we've had several cases that might be called miscarriages of justice. The jurors haven't taken into consideration their civic and social responsibilities. In cases dealing with vicious criminals we can't permit loose thinking."

Speaking of the Olsen murder case, Peterson said, "I would have no objection to a life sentence if it really meant the men would spend the remainder of their lives in prison. But under our state law it means only 20 years before they are eligible for parole. Men of this type should never be freed."

William F. Byron, Northwestern university criminologist, said women juries like all others have many factors to take into consideration.

"I don't think we can judge them solely as women," Byron said. "It should be remembered that recently we have had some grand juries with many women members which have done excellent and courageous jobs. On the whole, I think the job that women will do as jurors will depend on the quality of the women chosen for the work."

Krause still can be sent to the electric chair even tho he escaped the death penalty in the Olsen murder trial.

The state's attorney's office revealed yesterday that the state will seek the death penalty again when Krause is tried on Feb. 23 for the murder of Walter Bush, 49, of 5347 S. Sawyer av., who was killed during the attempted robbery of a currency exchange at 5151 S. Kedzie av, last June 18.

White Collar GIRL

White Cuff Notes on Lincoln.

His secretaries called him "The Tycoon." One of them, John Hay, left this comment: "The Tycoon is in fine whack. I have rarely seen him more serene and busy. He is managing this war, the draft, foreign relations, and planning a reconstruction of the Union all at once."

Lincoln had three secretaries: John G. Nicolay, John Hay, who once termed himself "the keeper of the President's conscience," and William Stoddard, who opened and sorted the President's mail. Two of them—Nicolay and Hay—wrote the first famous biography of an illustrious man to be penned by a secretary. It was the 10 volume "History of Abraham Lincoln."

Lincoln Biographer Carl Sandburg, in "The War Years," states that Hay occasionally wrote letters for Lincoln "so frigidly correct that it was patent Lincoln could not have written them." In a diary entry, Hay mentions changing the President's word "posted" to "informed," showing that secretaries even in those days altered the boss' wording!

Lincoln in His Office.

Altho on many letters of Lincoln the words "Executive Mansion" appear in his handwriting, he spoke of his office as "the place" and seldom, if ever, alluded to himself as "President." He signed virtually all his letters "A. Lincoln" [even personal notes to his wife and son]; a few he signed "Abraham Lincoln" and a very few "Lincoln." His rare signature of "Lincoln" closes a congratulatory letter written to a friend on Feb. 25, 1842, and it also is the signature on a notation jotted on a program now owned by Oliver R. Barrett, Chicago attorney and collector.

Lincoln's office routine was the despair of his secretaries. "He was extremely unmethodical; it was a four years' struggle on Nicolay's part and mine to get him to adopt some systematic rules," John Hay wrote to William Herndon, Lincoln's law partner. "Anything that keeps the people themselves away from him he disapproved, altho they nearly annoyed the life out of him by unreasonable complaints and requests."

During the Presidential years Lincoln wrote few letters, according to Hay, who insisted that the President "did not read one in 50 he received. At first we tried to bring them to his notice but at last he gave the whole thing over to me and signed, without reading them, the letters I wrote in his name. He wrote perhaps half a dozen a week himself."

His Writings.

Yet Lincoln, with little schooling, taught by "Murray's English Reader", left a total of more than a million words of his writing, 50,000 more words than the complete works of Shakespeare. Where did he gain his mastery of the English language, the superb clarity and simplicity that marked every line, whether an inaugural address or a folded slip of paper bearing a reminder [to himself] of his duty to coöperate with the President-elect should he not be reëlected?

For the 1858 Dictionary of Congress, Lincoln submitted, upon request, a short biographical sketch. Following his birthplace and birth date, he wrote: "Education: defective."

Gadabouts Plan Trip.

Miss Lampert to Be Among Brides Today

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

A DEFINITE note of spring time is being struck by several of today's brides in the face of the worst snows that Chicago has had this winter. Fluffy frocks and gay, bright flowers seem to be the order of the day, rather than winter's velvets, satins, and calla lillies. These spring notes are especially apparent in the ceremonies in which Miss Myrtle Lampert will become Mrs. George E. Rose Jr. and Miss Annette Walsh McClaran will become Mrs. Roger S. McCormick.

Miss Lampert's wedding will be a quiet ceremony at 4:30 p. m. in the Lake Shore drive apartment of her parents, the Wilson W. Lamperts, with only members of the family present and a few close friends dropping in later for a reception at 5 p. m. The Rev. Charles Ray Goff of the First Methodist church will officiate. The bride, who will wear a white satin gown and three tiered veil, will be attended by her twin sister, Lillian, whose yellow marquisette gown will be complemented by a bouquet of blue iris and yellow jonquils. Mr. Rose will be his son's best man.

Here for the wedding are the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Lawler of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Capt. Rose's brother-in-law and sister, the Wade Hampton Schroeders of Evansville, Ind. Capt. Rose and his bride will have a wedding trip to Florida.

McCormick-McClaran.

Miss McClaran and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James W. McClaran, arrived from Jackson, Tenn., yesterday, bringing with them a lace gown for the bride to wear to the altar of the chapel in St. Chrysostom's church at 3:30 p. m. today and tulle frocks for her two attendants. They are her sister, Miss Hilda McClaran, and a Jackson friend, Miss Sue Caldwell. Also arriving for the wedding, to which invitations were telephoned hastily to relatives and a few intimate friends, were Mrs. Seale Johnson, a cousin of Dr. McClaran; Frank Caldwell, uncle of Miss Caldwell, and Mrs. Walter Cockrell, all of Jackson, and Miss Eleanor West, niece of Mrs. McClaran, of Washington, D. C. Dr. McClaran's sister, Miss Annette McClaran, is arriving today.

The decorations in the church and in the apartment of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, where a small reception will follow, will be simple but springlike, and the bridesmaids will carry bouquets of mixed spring flowers, if they can be obtained. Lt. McCormick will have his father as best man.

The wedding was arranged to take place here instead of at Selman field, Monroe, La., when Lt. McCormick was given an unexpected week-end leave. He and his bride will go at once to Monroe, where they will be at home while he continues with his army air forces duties at Selman field.

Martin-Hixon.

What a father should wear to give away the bride in an evening ceremony in a crossroads town far from home was a problem to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon, who left Lake Forest earlier this week for North Bend, Ore., and the marriage today of their daughter, Joan, and Ensign Joseph Thomas Martin. When the bridegroom wired his prospective father-in-law to "bring along a nifty suit," the question was solved, and Mr. Hixon will be clad in a conventional double breasted business suit, the niftiest he has, to escort his daughter to the altar of the Emmanuel Episcopal church in Marshfield, Ore., near North Bend. The ceremony will be read at 8 o'clock by the Rev. J. P. Lewis. A reception will follow at the Coos Bay hotel in North Bend.

Ensign Martin of necessity arranged for the decorations in the church, which will have candelabra draped with ivy and lilies at the altar. The flowers his bride will carry are whatever he was able to obtain, but he did have orders to get roses for the two feminine attendants, Mrs. Milton Wilson Jr., sister of the bride, and Miss Joan Potter, who accompanied the Hixons west along with the bride's eldest sister, Mrs. Maurice F. Hanson of Washington, D. C. As the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Elliott Wheeler of Easton, Md., recently broke her foot, she and Mr. Wheeler did not go west for the wedding.

Miss Hixon's wedding dress is of ivory satin, made with a long torso line and a long train and trimmed with seed pearls at the neckline and cuffs. A coronet of orange blossoms will hold the wedding veil to her head. Mrs. Wilson and Miss Potter are wearing blue organza frocks and tiny Juliet caps to match. Serving as best man for Ensign Martin will be a fellow officer, Ensign George Reed of San Antonio, Tex. Ensign Martin and his bride expect to be at home in North Bend for the next three or four months.

Lambert-Bacon.

For her marriage today to Dr. Adrian Lambert of New York, Miss Mary Alice Bacon will wear the satin wedding gown in which her sister, Mrs. Charles Porter Atherton, was a bride. The small family ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson Bacon Jr. Mrs. Atherton, who is here from Boston, Mass., with Mr. Atherton and their little daughter, Judith Ann, will be her sister's only attendant.

Also included in the small circle at the wedding will be Dr. Lambert's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Adrian Van Sinderen Lambert of New York; his brother-in-law and sister, the Seymour Prestons of New York; George Carden of Washington, D. C., and John Sanford of New York. After several weeks in Pompano, Fla., Dr. Lambert and his bride will return to New York to live.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Sgt. Betty Jane Fitzpatrick (left) and Sgt. Lorraine Ptacek at work in public relations office of marine corps central division.

The women's reserve of the marine corps will be one year old tomorrow. To celebrate the anniversary, we "enlisted" yesterday and observed the work of the more than 30 women stationed in Chicago, women engaged in duties to free men marines to fight.

Ours was a day spent in envy. Since our enlistment wore quotation marks, we couldn't don the handsome forestry green uniform, nor could we stand straight as a tall pine and undergo the 0800 [navy time] inspection given by a stocky marine first sergeant with the colorful name of Charles G. Flowers. But we took many a look over the shoulders of busy marine women and found them doing a variety of important jobs.

There is one woman first lieutenant in the central division headquarters on the seventh floor of the United States courthouse, 225 S. Clark st. She is Katherine B. Persons, recruiting officer working with Capt. Arthur J. Murphy.

Three women 2d lieutenants also are stationed with the division. Lt. Florence Bailey and Lt. Phyllis Young have procurement billets in Capt. Murphy's office. Lt. Helen U. Fitch is assistant to Col. Chester L. Fordney, commanding officer of the division.

The 26 women sergeants work in all departments of the division, which embraces 16 states. Capt. Timothy E. Murphy has several handling the auditing and other duties in the paymaster's office. There are several in the quartermaster department, in the recruiting office, and in public relations, where Capt. Arthur A. Engel is chief officer.

Still others have jobs in the marine induction station, 321 Plymouth ct., where Capt. Stamwood Cook is the officer in charge. The work of Chicago's women marines is principally clerical and stenographic, with additional duties in radio and as messengers.

Typical of the efficient sergeants is Virginia Lee Sherman, a native Chicagoan, who is receptionist for the public relations office and performs additional duties, including finishing touches to official directives, radio scripts, and publicity material. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Sherman, 3937 N. Kedvale av.

The self-styled "roving quarter back" of the public relations office is Sgt. Lulu Mae Viehman, who became a marine for two reasons: She likes the corps and she is the fiancee of a marine serving in the Southwest Pacific.

Sgt. Betty Jane Fitzpatrick is one of the most versatile women in the central division. Her principal job is that of providing copies of dispatches from combat correspondents for release to newspapers thruout the division.

Sgt. Lorraine Ptacek, whose home is at 1348 S. 58th av., Cicero, is secretary to Capt. Engel. In this capacity she has a hand in almost all the work of the public relations office and also conducts a radio program.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

College Club's Current Affairs School Planned

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Given impetus by the marked success of its first venture last spring in dispensing knowledge in a nutshell, the Chicago College club, with the Woman's College board coöperating, has arranged a second "Alumnae college" to keep its members abreast of the times.

Three days of lectures and symposiums on "American Points of View" will open Thursday in the club rooms at 30 N. Michigan av., and before the closing dinner and summing up session Saturday night the students will have heard the ideas of educators from this city's and eastern universities on subjects ranging from race and capital-labor relations to the herculean task of providing educational facilities for a modern army.

Assigned to set up the framework of the conference are C. Clifton Aird, lecturer in geography to military students; Everett C. Hughes, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, and Avery O. Craven, professor of American history at the University of Chicago. Mr. Aird will give a geographical picture of the United States and Prof. Hughes will talk on the ethnic and racial composition of America at the opening session at 2:15 p. m. Thursday. Prof. Craven will lecture on "Historical Origins of American Attitudes" at 8 o'clock that night, when Miss Gertrude G. Garney, executive secretary of the Vassar Alumnae association, will preside.

Friday will be devoted to national issues. Presiding in the afternoon will be Mrs. Louise L. Wright, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, and in the evening, Nathaniel Leverone, president of Goodwill Industries. On the roster of speakers will be Louis Wirt, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago; John A. Lapp, labor arbitrator, and Algernon B. Black of the New York Ethical society.

Moving to the Arts club Saturday afternoon, Alumnae college will give a tea for Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard college, Columbia university. Dean Gildersleeve will speak, taking for her theme, "Wisdom to Keep Men Free."

That night, returning to the College club, the conference will hear Max D. Englehart, member of the examining staff of the United States Army-Navy institute, on "Education for the Armed Forces."

This year the conference is opening one of its meetings, an extra session at 11 a. m. next Saturday, to a panel of college students, who will post the alumnae on "Under-Graduate Points of View." The chairman for that meeting will be Miss Ruth O. McCarn, counselor of women at Northwestern university.

INSTALMENT XXX.
MARK QUESTIONED.

Miss Silver coughed.

"Has Mark Paradine been asked for an explanation, superintendent? He told me frankly that he was under suspicion when he called me in. I informed him that I could be no party to any concealment of evidence, and that my sole obligation would be to do my best to discover the truth. Are you aware that this pocket diary belongs to him?"

Col. Bostock said, "What!"

"A New Year's gift from Miss Paradine," said Miss Silver.

"Well, I should say that just about puts the lid on," said Vyner.

"One moment, Col. Bostock. This is quite a new book, but you will see that it opens of its own accord. If you and the superintendent will examine it, I think you will agree that the binding had been pressed back so as to keep the diary open at this page—and the date is Feb. 1."

Vyner said, "Yes, we noticed that. As a matter of fact, we got a very good fingerprint there as well as on the outside. Mr. Mark's prints are both inside and out, and Mr. Paradine's as well, and where they overlap Mr. Paradine's are on top. Looks as if there'd been some talk about the date and Mr. Mark had handed him the book to see for himself. As to asking him for an explanation, I thought we might have him in now."

The bell was rung and Mr. Mark Paradine's company requested. He came in with the look of a man who hasn't slept.

Col. Bostock said, "How do you do, Paradine? Come and sit down."

"No objection to Miss Silver being present? I believe you called her in."

"No, I've no objection."

Col. Bostock looked across the table and said:

"All right, Vyner, go ahead."

"We are informed that Miss Paradine gave four of these small diaries as New Year's gifts on Wednesday evening. The blue one is said to have been given to you. Is that correct?"

"Quite."

"These diaries were given in the drawing room after you had joined the ladies there?"

"Yes."

"You did not come in here between that time and leaving the house at about a quarter to 10?"

"No."

"Then, Mr. Paradine, will you explain how it came about that the diary was found on this table when the police arrived at a quarter past eight on the following morning? It has your fingerprints and those of the late Mr. Paradine on the cover and on the page dated Feb. 1, at which place the book had been bent open. Have you an explanation which you would care to give us?"

"Yes, I think I have. I think I had better tell you just what happened."

"It is my duty to tell you, Paradine, that anything you say may be taken down and used in evidence against you."

"Thank you, sir—but I'm explaining, not confessing. I went back to my flat in Birleton Mansions and I went out again, just as I told the superintendent. I wasn't anxious to tell him where I went, I suppose it was bound to come out. I came back here because I wanted to see my uncle, and owing to what he had said at dinner I didn't want the rest of the family to know."

"I used my old latchkey."

"Why did you want to see Mr. Paradine? Do you care to tell us that?"

"Yes, I'll tell you. I've been wanting for a long time to be released from the firm in order to join the R. A. F. My uncle has always refused to let me go, and there wasn't much chance of the government's releasing me unless he said he could do without me here."

"On research work, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Go on."

"My uncle wouldn't let me go. I came here last night to tell him he'd got to. That's all."

"Why?"

"For personal reasons."

"Going to tell us what they were?"

"What sort of interview did you have with Mr. Paradine? Was it friendly?"

"Yes. He agreed to let me go. That's why the diary had been opened at Feb. 1. There's something I've been working on—I said I'd be thru with it in about a month. He asked me to wait a month and see him again. I said, 'Four weeks from today?' and he said, 'No—a calendar month.' I remembered the diary my aunt had given me earlier in the evening, so I took it out of my pocket and looked up Feb. 1—I wanted to see what day it was. Then I handed it over to him, and he said, 'All right—if you're still of the same mind then.'"

"What time did you leave?"

"I don't know—about half past 11, I should think."

"No one saw you come or go?"

"Not as far as I know."

"Mr. Wray and Mr. Pearson came down for a drink at 11:30. Mr. Wray says he got an impression that the front door was closing as he entered the hall. That would fit in with your time."

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Yes."

Miss Silver broke the ensuing silence.

"Mr. Paradine, can you tell us just what was on the writing table when you were here on Wednesday night? Just try to visualize the table as you saw it then, and tell me as many of the things on it as you can remember."

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

When experts speak of "technique" they are not referring to the pure mechanics of card playing; they are including that elusive but indispensable factor, "psychology." Consider this typical deal.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened his fourth highest spade, and declarer, on the snap theory that he had only one spade trick, no matter how he played, put in dummy's eight and took East's 10 with the king. He then entered dummy with a club and tried the diamond finesse, correctly reflecting that everything depended on the position of the king. Unfortunately, West had that valuable card and he now could lay down four spade tricks, thus defeating the contract.

It is entirely possible that declarer would have met the same fate under any circumstances, but the fact remains that he did not give himself the best chance for success. In other words, his technique was faulty, and at the very first trick! Observe the problem that would have been handed to West if the spade jack had been played on the opening lead. The second trick would have gone to West's diamond king—but now, how would West possibly know that he could cash the entire spade suit? Rather than play declarer for the blank spade king, West easily and not illogically might visualize South's original holding as

♠ Kxx ♥ KJx ♦ A10x ♣ QJxx

This, also, would represent a good two no trump response on South's part, and it would call for a heart shift by West so that East could return a spade thru the king. Who knows what decision West would have made?

Bassoon Work Well Played on U. of C. Series

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

A musical curiosity of more than antiquarian interest was unearthed at Mandel hall last night when Clarke Kessler of the Chicago Symphony orchestra played Mozart's bassoon concerto with the University of Chicago Chamber orchestra under Hans Lange's direction, in the course of the second chamber concert sponsored by the department of music.

Mozart had a universal curiosity about music. Nothing in the whole realm of tone was outside the range of his interest, and while today we call some of our composers "experimentalists," their experiments are Lilliputian beside those of Mozart. Today a composer would indulge in considerable cogitation before embarking upon the ungrateful task of writing a concerto for the bassoon. But to Mozart it was only another musical problem to be solved—perhaps in some idle hour—and, as in the case of the better known clarinet concerto, the solution turned out to be another masterpiece in a priceless chain.

Altho written when Mozart was only 18, the bassoon concerto has a lovely freshness of melody and purity of line that enables it to stand among the composer's superior works. Mr. Kessler played it with smooth technical fluency and the comprehensive musicianship by which he is known to his associates.

Mr. Lange's young orchestra provided a remarkably good accompaniment, one which had the same virtues of clarity and agreeable tonal quality that had made the opening Concerto No. 6, in D major, of Handel thoroly enjoyable. Dorothy Lane's harpsichord playing added a neat touch of authenticity to the latter number.

As often happens with inexperienced musicians, there was a letdown later in the quality of the orchestra playing, with some inferior Mozart—two entr'actes from "Thamos of Egypt"—indifferently played, and with Haydn's remarkable "Maria Theresa" symphony coming thru, but not without a struggle.

It was announced last night that Aaron Copland will participate in the final Composers' concert on April 7, and will lecture on "Music for the Films" on April 4.

Institute to Be Held Monday Night for Girl Scout Leaders

Augmenting five district meetings, an evening institute for adult leaders in Girl Scouting and all other persons active in the interest of young people will be held at 7 p. m. Monday in Scout headquarters, 35 E. Wacker dr. The guest speaker, Miss Mary A. Young, secretary of the family and child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies, will discuss "The Children in Our Community: Where Are They? What's Happening to Them? What Can We Do About It?" Those attending also will hear Miss Edith Conant, national Girl Scout program adviser, who will explain the Scout program as it operates in small and large communities thruout the country.

A series of workshop sessions will be held with four local leaders. Miss Lois Thompson, Mrs. L. W. Spaulding, Mrs. Earl Gray, and Mrs. George Volkman, in charge as discussion leaders.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"You pictured a no-point soup bone in the paper today—my butcher wants 5 points a pound for a soup bone like that," complained a reader last Wednesday. Soup bones are off the ration list, and this woman's meat dealer was in error. The case was reported to the OPA, which promised to talk to this particular meat man.

"Isn't that a mistake in your column about the expiration of sugar stamp 40, for canning?" another reader asks. "The paper says the stamp is valid until Feb. 28, 1945. Shouldn't it be 1944?"

No, that isn't a mistake. Sugar stamp No. 40 may be used any time within the next year. It became valid early because in some parts of the country canning begins early, and even in the middle west many homemakers wish to preserve citrus fruits right now.

The OPA reports that most homemakers will find their ration boards willing to allow them as much extra sugar as they need for canning this year. When she asks for extra sugar, each woman will need to describe the canning for which it is intended.

Juvenile Togs

Cissy will like this suspender dress with its loosely fitted jacket. Applique, the design for which is included at no extra cost in the pattern, trims the waistline of the skirt and the front of the jacket yoke. Style No. 3736 is designed for sizes 2 to 6. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 35 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, New York City. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The pattern book is 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with pattern.

Florists Offer a Wide Variety of Valentines

BY REA SEEGER.

Order your floral valentines today, for all the florists need time over the week-end to get ready for Monday's rush. It takes time to compose a flower lyric even tho it is just a matter of arranging a red, red rose in the center of a bouquet of violets and then tying the corsage with festive ribbon—and, even more time to make little boutonnieres for heart-on-the-sleeve wear and clever new nosegays to be worn in lapels like service insigne.

Valentine offerings in flowers are small but most sentimental. Most of them are arranged for wear thruout the day on suit jackets and coats or muffs. Consequently the single gardenia, the small bunch of violets, the camellia, the tiny massed nosegay of spicy red carnations of white or pink, and the skillfully made round nosegays of bouvardia and sweetheart roses are most effective.

Baby orchids in pale green flecked with brown and sprays of baby orchids in silvery white with a faint pinkish shadow are specials for valentine boxes. They're far more wearable on suit jackets of tweed and heavy woolens than the huge dramatic affairs in fuchsia and white that should be reserved for dress parade clothes.

Potted plants are the most lasting of valentines and make an impressive showing. See the blush pink camellias tied with a French blue silk bow close to the pastel tinted pottery container. These are almost dwarf trees and look like a million in any room. Pale pink azaleas vie with the snowflake white for popularity. Gold-yellow jonquils and white and red tulips complete the lists.

Tale of Movie, Copy Girl, and HER Sinatra

"HIGHER AND HIGHER."

An RKO-Radio picture, directed by Tim Whelan, starring Frank Sinatra with Michele Morgan, Jack Haley, Leon Errol, Barbara Hale, Paul and Grace Hartman, and presented at the Palace.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Catherine, our cogitative little copy girl—probably the world's greatest Sinatra fan—kept looking and looking at me and not saying a word, but with a question in her eyes. I got it.

"Yes," I said, "I've seen 'Higher and Higher.'"

The color flooded up into her face and her eyes were bright—altho wary!—because she knows I am probably the World's Greatest Cant-See-Why-er when it comes to her idol.

"C-can he ACT?" she asked. So softly!

"He does a very nice job of it!" I was glad that I could answer warmly. "He had fine direction and he really handles his roles easily and well. I DO think they should have avoided closeups, for he's well—er—not so photogenic or—accustomed to the camera and sometimes he's—er rather—FUNNY—" Her face hardened and I hastened on—"BUT people who like to hear him sing will love him, I'M sure, because he sings a lot and I don't remember his kissing ANYBODY—" She relaxed. "One hep cat kisses HIM. . . ."

"Has he got a good story?" she yearned, like a mother.

"—Er—all right. Light, but well, sort of fast. Lots of music and some laughs and Frank's in almost every scene. And everybody's quite crazy about him. . . Women I mean. . ."

"Pooh — Men. . . !" Catherine muttered . . .

"It's about how the help in a big house rise to the rescue of their boss—who's about to become insolvent—by forming a corporation. They all pitch in to put over the scullery maid [Michele Morgan and very beautiful!] as his debutante 'daughter.' She's to marry rich and so retrieve his fortunes and theirs . . . She falls for Frank who lives and sings across the street.

"Also nuts over him is a rival debby who IS real . . . As for the junior housemaid, well, you know how SHE is about him . . . ?"

"Sure," Catherine said unblinkingly. . . . "Who gets him?"

"And don't think I and a million other people won't see it, Miss Tinee," Catherine remarked. "I DO hope he has some smart people in his cast!"

"He has. Very smart. Little Jack Haley and Leon Errol and such."

"Tho of course he wouldn't need them," she stated, departing. "Frank could get along all right all by himself."

Lecture on Sweden.

Continuing his "Art Thru Travel" lecture series, Dudley Crafts Watson will give a program on Sweden at 3:15 p. m. tomorrow in Fullerton hall of the Art Institute.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 11.—"The Death March," which Republic is rushing into production, is not the story of Lt. Col. William E. Dyess. However, the studio asked Mrs. Dyess if she would do a foreword for the picture, which would naturally put her stamp of approval on it. Her answer, of course, was no. Putnam is bringing out Col. Dyess' story in book form. There's much more to it than the death march. It promises to be one of the outstanding books of the war. . . . John Houseman, who'll produce "Miss Susie Slagle" for Paramount, would like Betty Field [Mrs. Elmer Rice] for it. She has one more picture to do there, and she's a mighty fine actress. Remember her in "Kings Row"? . . . Red Skelton is being very well chaperoned on his war bond tour thru Texas. Both his ex-wife, Edna, and his about-to-be, Muriel Morris, are with him. . . . Bob Hope says Bing Crosby's the Sinatra of the bell bottom days.

Muriel Morris.

Betty Field.

What Goes On?

Wonder why Sam Wood, who did practically everything for "For Whom the Bell Tolls," wasn't nominated for an academy award. The picture and four people in it are up for Oscars, but not Sam. Somebody slipped somewhere. . . . The Bill Posts will be officially separated in two weeks. They disagreed months ago, but remained together when they couldn't find separate apartments. . . . Madeleine Carroll hasn't gone overseas. She's in Washington taking a dancing course. . . . Jean Arthur is back from New York, and husband Frank Ross is boasting about her dancing. She said, "Yes, all I need now is a picture so I can show it off and have Don Loper twirl me thru it." . . . Sonja Henie, looking like a million, has returned to town. Pleased as Punch at the two million dollar gross she rolled up on her tour. Her business acumen is the envy of all actors—yes, and most producers.

O, No?

When Moss Hart's and George Kaufman's "Once in a Lifetime" went on the screen, people said, "O, how silly! It couldn't happen." But many things in it had happened. And Moss, thru an actual happening at the opening of "Lady in the Dark," got an idea for another play about movies, which promises to be the best of all. It was nice seeing at that opening our stars looking like stars again in all their glad rags: Hedy Lamarr, in pink and black satin, mighty proud of the hit John Loder's made on the radio; Irene Dunne in one of Adrian's best; Loretta Young in cloth of gold; Judy Garland in adorable ermine bolero jacket and with a new hairdo; Lana Turner, with a new found dignity, doing a rave about John Hodiak; Ida Lupino terribly worried about her Louis Hayward, and Betty Hutton all over the place at Mitch Leisen's party at Romanoff's.

Pain Means Nothing.

Orson Welles, in "Jane Eyre," is supposed to be blind at the finish. So to be thoroly realistic he wore artificial discs over his eyeballs, which have to be put on with suction pumps. When they photographed his eyes that way it was so horrible they couldn't use it—after he'd suffered with them for three whole days. . . . Besides "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," Louis Lighton will produce "Bell for Adano." Twentieth Century bought it for him. . . . Warners studio won't seem the same without Orry Kelly. He was like one of the fixtures. . . . Susanna Foster is having her dog days. When her 12 year old mutt, Tex, died, she was so broken up the studio gave her two days off.

Turning Clock Back.

Claudette Colbert will have the unique experience when "Sign of the Cross" comes to the screen again, of being able to see herself as a glamor girl taking a milk bath, and at the same time see herself on another screen as Shirley Temple's mother in "Since You Went Away." Very few of our girls can leap over the years as lightly as that in one day. I think Claudette looks better now than she did then. But I may be prejudiced. . . . Oscar Serlin ran into John Frederics, who looked at his hat and said, "That's horrible. I'll make you one." He did—and put a Dache label inside it. . . . Carole Landis had a funny accident, but she didn't think it was. A red light stopped us side by side. We started to chin. Light changed, she started, car in front of hers backed and knocked out both her headlights. . . . Jon Hall's uncle, James Norman Hall, who wrote "Mutiny on the Bounty," visited Jon on the set and told him the war had scarcely touched Tahiti. Just as soon as he sees his publisher he's going straight back.

Help the Child to Enjoy Full, Normal Life

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

College must be a preparation for life, is a prevalent thought. In fact, there are many parents and educators today who think of college as only that—a preparation for life.

If you add up all the years spent in the classroom by one child and call them a preparation, they form quite a substantial part of life. If you take just the four years of college and label those exclusively "preparation for life," you still have a big slice of their existence set aside, especially because it's a time crowded with physical and emotional experiences and changes.

You may want to stop me at this point and say: "O, educators don't think that way any more; things have changed in educational procedure." That there is a leaven of ideas working I am aware. That there are some colleges which offer students a rounded present life while they are preparing them for the future I actually know. But I know also that college life is still far too much a cloistered existence—intellectually and socially—a sort of marking-time period of preparation. This in the face of well written prospectuses and year-books.

But we who are parents need not be too virtuous about such an attitude in others. Some of us actually harp on the idea.

"If you don't study you won't know a thing when you grow up."

"I want you to eat these carrots and baked potato, Richie, so you'll grow up to be a big, strong man."

We do, many of us, talk to our boys and girls as if childhood were only a preparation for manhood and womanhood.

In a sense, of course, it is. Each thing we do and are affects what we'll do and be next. As mature persons we know that, and it is our desire and our duty to prepare our children for the time when they will have to stand on their own feet.

We must keep that aim in mind—but not too much so. If we have our eyes always ahead we can't see what is under our feet. Indeed, if we would just stop constantly casting our glance forward whenever our child's behavior troubles us, and would stop thinking of the child as an adult; if we'd simply see that our children live in the present the right life for a child, their future would take care of itself. If they are and have what goes properly with childhood; if they do the things that make them normal, well developed, happy children, that is enough.

Charity Group to Mark Anniversary at Dinner

Thirty-eight years of philanthropic service in the community is the record of the Independent Sisters of Charity, whose members will gather at 6 p. m. tomorrow for an anniversary dinner in the Colosimo Theater restaurant at Wabash av. and 22d st. The organization, affiliated with the Conference of Jewish Women and the American Jewish congress, has concentrated its charitable endeavor upon providing food, clothing, and coal for needy families and helping toward their rehabilitation. Heading the committee for the anniversary party is Mrs. Morris Okum. Among those actively assisting is Mrs. Abe Klein, the president.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Aggie S., South Bend, Ind.—We have a large family and plenty of friends at vacation times, etc. My oldest daughter painted a supply of clothespins bright colors, with names of each family member printed on flat sides. The children use these for napkins, towels, etc., and it gives them a sense of definite ownership. When guests come I use more clothespins, without names but in different colors, one color for each guest. At vacation time especially this is a big help.

Mrs. Fred S., Waterloo, Ia.—I save on cleaning time this way: When I have any amount of work to do at my sewing machine I fasten a large paper bag with adhesive tape to the edge of the machine. All threads and scraps go into this bag. It saves a lot of muss.

Knitted Sweater

BY JEAN MacDONALD.

A cunning double breasted sweater, knitted in an interesting pattern, is ideal for girls 8, 10, and 12 years of age, especially when worn with a vivid plaid skirt. The jacket requires little time to make and is just right for any season.

For instructions in knitting the double breasted sweater, No. 121, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Dr. Freehof to Address Woman's Aid Breakfast

At a noon breakfast Monday at club quarters, 185 N. Wabash av., the Chicago Woman's Aid will hear Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, rabbi of Rodef Sholom temple in Pittsburgh, discuss "War Optimism Without Wishfulness." Dr. Freehof formerly was rabbi of the K. A. M. temple in Chicago. Following a noon drama breakfast Tuesday, at which Mrs. Paul Levy, who writes under the pen name of Dorothy Arelle, will read from her own manuscripts, the aid's international relations study class will have a round table on "Participation by the United States in the Task of Military Occupation and Policing of the World."

CAPT. NAUGHTON IS ASSIGNED TO DRAKE MURDER

Clerk Has Lie Test; Scan Blackmail Idea.

Capt. Michael Naughton, right hand man of Police Commissioner Allman and considered one of the outstanding men of the police force, was assigned yesterday to assist in the investigation of the baffling murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams.

Capt. Michael Naughton.

In other developments of the day Edwin E. Jantz, desk clerk at the Drake hotel, where Mrs. Williams was shot on Jan. 19, was subjected to an extended examination on the lie detector, and Coroner Brodie revealed that among the numerous theories he is pursuing is one involving the possibility of blackmail.

Considered Significant.

Capt. Naughton's appointment to the case was considered significant. He is head of the so-called Scotland Yard detail, which handles all heavy undercover investigations, and also boss of the police squads which work out of Allman's office. In addition, he has offices in the commissioner's general office suite in the city hall.

In assigning Naughton, Allman conceded that "no progress has been made" in the Williams slaying. Whether Mayor Kelly's hand was somewhat behind the assignment could not be learned, but it is understood that the mayor is deeply interested in the inquiry, and that he conferred a few days ago on the matter with Allman and Detective Chief Sullivan. Yesterday Mayor Kelly, Allman, and Sullivan conferred again, and Naughton later joined them.

Only "Advisory Capacity."

Naughton said he had been put on the investigation "in an advisory capacity." It is believed, however, that his role will be considerably more important.

The lie detector test for Clerk Jantz, next biggest development of the day, was not explained. He was taken to the police crime detection laboratory by Capt. Frank Reynolds and Assistant State's Atty. Joseph A. Pope. Jantz testified at the inquest Tuesday and at that time was asked whether he had ever impersonated a female. He denied doing so. The test showed he previously had told all he knew about the case.

Stories Are Disputed.

Jantz handed Mrs. Williams the key to her room a short time before she was slain. He fixed the time definitely as 6:20 p. m., which was the moment Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, the victim's daughter, had originally fixed as the time of the shooting. Jantz also declared he did not see Mrs. Goodbody with her mother when the latter picked up her key, and was emphatically disputed in this by Mrs. Goodbody. Jantz further insisted no keys ever were missing from Mrs. Williams' key box, but a Drake detective and a clerk vowed the duplicate was missing for a short time the night of the shooting.

On other fronts, Coroner Brodie said that he is investigating a dozen theories, some admittedly thin. Among the dozen is that concerning blackmail. Many prominent Chicagoans have been blackmail victims in the past, he said. The coroner is hopeful that Mrs. Goodbody will assist in a reconstruction of the shooting. She is now reported seriously ill.

FBI PEEP-HOLE IN SPY'S HOME BARED AT TRIAL

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 11 (AP).—Agents of the federal bureau of investigation related in federal court today of eavesdropping thru a secret aperture in an apartment house wall to hear conversations between Grace Buchanan-Dineen and Dr. Fred W. Thomas.

The FBI men, testifying as government witnesses in the espionage conspiracy trial of Dr. Thomas, said the aperture was cut in the wall of Miss Buchanan-Dineen's apartment and a dictaphone installed the day before she moved there March 22, 1942.

Under Daily Observation.

From then until the arrests of members of an espionage ring Aug. 23, 1943, the woman's apartment was under day-to-day observation, said France P. Parker, an FBI man. Miss Buchanan-Dineen and five others have pleaded guilty to espionage conspiracy.

Wade H. Gans, also an FBI agent, said that Dr. Thomas, a Detroit obstetrician, and Miss Buchanan-Dineen discussed an explosives manufacturing plant in Ohio on one of the former's visits to the apartment.

Denies Code Charge.

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Velvalee Dickinson, 50, owner of a Madison av. doll shop, pleaded innocent today to a federal court indictment charging she used "a code and device to conceal from the office of censorship" the contents of a letter addressed to a correspondent in the Argentine. The indictment, voted earlier in the day by a federal grand jury, charged that the letter was mailed March 1, 1942.

Otto's Farewell

OTTO GRAHAM, Northwestern star athlete, will play his final game for the Wildcats tonight against Camp Grant's quintet in the second contest of a double header in the Stadium. Graham Thursday will go to Colgate university for pilot officer training. He will receive his naval orders tonight from Lt. Henry Penfield, senior member of the naval aviation cadet selection board of Chicago, preceding the contest with Camp Grant. De Paul's Blue Demons will meet Illinois in the opening game on the program.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 11 [Special].—Northwestern won its sixth Western conference basketball victory in seven starts by defeating Illinois, 42 to 29, here tonight before 2,132. the defeat was the defending champions' fifth against two victories.

Illinois used a slow break the first half in an attempt to slow down the Wildcats. This resulted in a 7 to 6 Illinois lead after 10 minutes. Walt Kirk's basket putting the Illini in front. Jerry Carle immediately returned the Wildcats to the lead, and they were off to a 16 to 11 margin at the half. By scoring the first 10 points after intermission, the Wildcats made this 26 to 11 and clinched the game.

John Ward led the scoring of both teams with 12 points, followed by 10 by Ben Schadler and eight by Graham for Northwestern and 10 by Kirk for Illinois.

WISCONSIN FIVE TRIUMPHS OVER INDIANA, 62-43

Hawkeye Loss First of Season.

Columbus, O., Feb. 11 [Special].—Ohio State university's basketball team dealt the University of Iowa's Hawkeyes their first conference defeat tonight, 63 to 49, before a crowd of 2,925 fans, who saw their Buckeyes take the play away from the visitors in the second period after trailing at half time, 32 to 29.

The defeat dropped the Iowans from undisputed leadership in the Big Ten race into a tie for first with Purdue's Boilermakers who spent the evening polishing off Wabash college in a nonconference engagement. Both Iowa and Purdue have won seven conference games and lost one.

Ohio State Improves.

Tonight Ohio State showed marked improvement over previous play, displaying better ball handling, and thru the efforts of Capt. Don Grate, Arnold Risen and Jack Dugger, controlled the backboard most of the game, but especially in the second half when Iowa lost Guard Ned Postels on personal fouls. When Postels went out, the Hawkeye defense fell apart.

Grate gained individual honors for the evening with 22 points on nine baskets and four free throws, just two points than Iowa's forward, Dave Danner, who had nine baskets and a pair of free shots.

Teams Meet Again Tonight.

Iowa's defeat was its first in nine games this season while the victory was Ohio State's seventh in nine contests. The teams play again tomorrow night. The lineups:

Ohio State [63].	B	F	P
Grate,f [C]	9	4	2

WISCONSIN BEATS INDIANA

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 11 [Special].—Hitting 43 per cent of their shots in the first half for a 33 to 20 advantage, the University of Wisconsin coasted to a 62 to 43 victory over Indiana university in a Big Ten game tonight.

Wisconsin's cleverness in handling the ball, coupled with its set plays, kept the Hoosiers bottled up and blocked out and let the Badgers in for many close in shots which accounted in large part for the high percentage made.

For the whole game, Wisconsin had a record of 42 per cent of all shots made. Indiana averaged only 29 per cent.

It was Wisconsin's sixth victory in eight Big Ten games to keep it in sight of the conference lead. It was Indiana's ninth straight defeat.

Indiana Takes Early Lead.

Indiana made a ball game of it for five minutes of the first half, leading, 6 to 0, in the first few minutes. But then Wisconsin got its plays working and began to get the close in shots, Indiana guards being entirely clear of the scoring player most of the time.

Leading, 34 to 20, at half time, Wisconsin settled down to less hurried, more methodical manipulation of its plays and altho Indiana kept pecking away, the Badgers fattened the half time lead by 5 points at the game's end. Lineups:

Indiana [43].	B	F	P

LANDIS MAKES STATEMENT ON LETTER TO F. D. R.

Says Publisher Spoke Only for Himself.

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday released a statement and a copy of a letter to Gen. Hershey apropos of a denial that organized baseball had any part in a letter dated Jan. 28, which J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of the Sporting News of St. Louis, addressed to President Roosevelt, which was answered by Presidential Secretary Stephen Early.

In his letter to the President, Spink, after referring to baseball's policy of asking no deferments from military service, included the following paragraph:

"However, as far as industry is concerned, I feel that it is a question of comparative valuation—valuation of the war effort involved. I believe these 2,000 players [in the majors and minors] when filling the recreational wants of the nation, are occupying a role that is just as valuable as they would be in performing in industry."

Statement By Landis.

In his reply Mr. Early closed with the following sentence: "It might well be that the President would prefer to leave the matter from now on for determination under the regulations governing the manpower situation."

With reference to the published exchange of correspondence between Early and Spink, Landis stated yesterday that Mr. Spink is not a member of the baseball organization and does not speak for anybody but himself. The commissioner further stated that nobody authorized to speak for professional baseball has requested preferential treatment of any kind for any players, and that, most emphatically, no such request will be made while we are engaged in this war.

Landis' Letter to Gen. Hershey.

"Dec. 23, 1943.

"General Lewis B. Hershey,
Director, Selective Service,
War Department,
Washington, D. C.

"Dear General:

"Reports drift in here that there is under way some sort of scheme for the exemption or deferment, or other preferential treatment of professional baseball players under the Selective Service Law.

"In accordance with the President's letter of Jan. 15, 1942, to me, suggesting the continuance of professional baseball but observing that 'I know you will agree with me that individual players who are of military or naval age should go without question into the services' I have repeatedly stated on behalf of everybody connected with professional baseball that we ask no preferential treatment, that we would be disgraced if we got it and that we desire that all laws and regulations having to do with this war shall operate upon our personnel precisely as upon the other 130,000,000 of our population.

"Arguments that preferential treatment would serve 'morale' can have only the effect of making that word odious. Furthermore, favored treatment in any way or to any extent of professional athletes not only would be harmful to their interests and the interests of the organizations with which they are connected, but also would inevitably and justifiably arouse bitter public resentment.

"Of course I am not assuming that if any such scheme reaches you it will not be summarily disposed of. My purpose in writing you is solely to make sure that you know that nobody connected with professional baseball is authorized to speak for any such proposition.

"All good wishes to you.

"Very truly yours,
[Signed] Kenesaw M. Landis."

STADIUM STANDOUTS

Chicago Host to 3 Track Foes Today

Purdue, Northwestern and Chicago, which met last week in a triangular track meet in Lafayette, Ind., will be joined by Wisconsin this afternoon in a quadrangular affair in the Maroons' fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av., at 2 o'clock.

Whether the Badgers will be strong enough to compete with Purdue for the meet title is indefinite as Wisconsin has not participated this season, but the Boilermakers easily won last week's competition with 76 points compared to Northwestern's 50 and Chicago's 1.

Purdue again will depend on such stars as Bill Biele, V-12 transfer from Illinois, winner of the 880 last week; Eric Ericsson, Big Ten cross country champion, who took the mile; Bob Mannfeld, runner-up for the cross country title, who did not compete last week because of illness, Merton Peterson, winner of the triangular 2-mile; and Ben Harvey, who captured the dash event.

Northwestern again will count on Harry Franck, who won the 440 last week; John Cullen, winner of the low hurdles; John Cooley, hurdler who captured the high jump; George Rue, sprinter; and Don Johnson, a transfer from Kansas who took the shot put in the three-way meet.

MISHAPS CAN'T STOP KEPFORD; DOWNS NO. 13

ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC AIR BASE, Feb. 11 (AP).—It will take more than a close call to discourage Lt. [j. g.] Ike Kepford of Muskegon, Mich., from keeping up his run of Japanese plane kills.

The former Northwestern university football star, member of a navy air squadron, bagged his 13th enemy plane this week at Rabaul, New Britain. Only a few days previous, he had his brush with trouble in nailing a new type Japanese fighter called the Tony.

The Tony and Kepford's Corsair fighter made a head-on run. The Jap exploded within 50 yards of Kepford and the latter's ship caught fire. He managed to get back to base altho the plane was a total wreck. It happened during a Rabaul raid Jan. 30.

The former University of Minnesota football star, who returned to professional football with the Chicago Bears and resumed wrestling this fall after a period of retirement from both sports, said his rejection for military service apparently resulted from back and knee conditions.

ST. HELEN TOPS ALL SAINTS IN WEBER TOURNEY

St. Helen defeated All Saints, 27 to 19, yesterday in a first round game in the second annual Weber high school parochial basketball tournament. Forward Birkowicz was high point man with seven field goals.

DERRINGER AND FREDA NOLAN WIN ON 21ST HOLE

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 11 (AP).—Big Paul Derringer, Chicago Cubs pitcher, and his partner, Freda Nolan, had to go three extra holes today to defeat their opponents in the quarter-finals of the Florida Open two ball mixed golf tournament.

The pair triumphed over Carl Dan of Orlando and Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., 1 up on the 21st hole.

McSPADEN TOPS FIELD IN TEXAS OPEN; CARDS 67

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 11 (AP).—Harold [Jug] McSpaden defied near-freezing temperatures and a stiff wind today to better par on Brackenridge course by four strokes for a 67 and the lead in the first round of the Texas Open.

The Philadelphia professional, top money-winner of the winter tour, hung up a 33 on the first nine and a 34 on the second and made only one bad shot—a sliced drive out of bounds on No. 12. He took a five on this 375 yard, par 4 hole.

Twelve pros bettered or equaled par on these first 18 holes of a 72 hole, $5,000 tournament.

Grouped behind Revolta, Cooper and Hamilton were Sam Byrd of Philadelphia, Abe Espinosa of Brownsville, Tex., Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, each with a 70.

At even par 71 were E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Greensboro, N. C., army air field; Henry Ransom of the United States maritime service, Galveston, Tex.; Claude Harmon of Houston, and Melvin [Chick] Harbert of Lincoln, Neb., army air field, the defending champion.

Chris Carries On a Tradition in Gloves Meet

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Christopher Fitz Gerald III., a broth of a student at Loyola academy, received a letter the other day from Riverside, Conn., same being sent by none other than Christopher Fitz Gerald I. And therein lies another tale of the sort familiar to followers of Golden Gloves, the Chicago finals of which will be decided Monday night in the Marigold Gardens, Grace st. and Broadway.

When Chris III. climbs into the Marigold ring Monday for his 147 pound novice championship battle against Bryant Glenn of the Savoy Athletic club, he will be carrying on an athletic tradition begun by Chris I. The latter is young Chris' grandfather, now living in retirement in Connecticut after a long career as one of the nation's ablest racing stewards.

Often Entered Ring.

Before Grandsire Fitz Gerald became connected with the turf, however, he was a newspaperman who frequently drew championship boxing assignments in the days of the Sullivans and the Corbetts. Unlike most of his writing brethren, he was not content to watch the training maneuvers of his subjects from outside the ring, but frequently climbed thru the ropes and worked out with them himself.

This sports heritage was transmitted to Christopher II., himself a racing steward at such tracks as Arlington and Washington Parks and quite some shakes as a wrestler in his youth. Now it appears again in the person of his son, who was the sensation of the Golden Gloves north side sectional tourney. If you need further evidence, consider that that lad won the four bouts he drew in three nights of warfare at Loyola gym.

Grandfather Praises Chris.

The aforementioned letter from Grandfather Fitz Gerald praised Chris for his feat in the sectionals and wished him luck in the Marigold finals Monday. He is sure of immediate support from his father; his brother Jack, a freshman mate of Chris on the Loyola academy boxing team, and his younger brother, Arthur. His older brother, Gerald, who won university intramural championship at Loyola university, is now stationed with the army air force at Monroe, La.

Chris, who won't attain his 17th birthday until Feb. 26, distinguished himself as one of the most aggressive competitors in the sectional bouts. He won his hardest bout in his first, a battle against Bob O'Donnell of the Madison Athletic club, then followed with convincing decisions over Charley Porter, Eugene Kaiden, and John Nieweem, the last two on the final night of punching.

16 ENTERED IN $15,000 DERBY AT NEW ORLEANS

Gay Bit, Olympic Zenith Top Today's Field.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 11 (AP).—Sixteen thorobreds are entered in tomorrow's $15,000 added Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds, but the event looks like a race between Bobanet stable's Gay Bit and William Helis' Olympia Zenith.

Gay Bit, winner of five races this winter, was beaten in his only losing race this winter by Olympia Zenith, then known as Valdina Zenith, and it was on that race that the rail birds are conceding the Helis hopeful a chance to repeat his performance.

Gay Bit Is Versatile.

The condition of the track, however, will make considerable difference. Gay Bit can run on any track while Olympia Zenith has showed his liking for a fast strip.

Speculators are not overlooking the chances of Mrs. T. J. Carroll's Weyanoke. Weyanoke, like Gay Bit, is a fast finisher and usually comes from behind. When Gay Bit won his last race Weyanoke was third, two lengths behind the winner and coming fast in the mile and 70 yards event. The mile and an eighth distance tomorrow will be in his favor.

Gay Bit to Carry 120 Pounds.

Gay Bit and Weyanoke will carry 120 pounds each, three more than Olympia Zenith.

Joe W. Brown's Fox Brownie, 120; Cedar Farm's George Case, 120; Bobanet stable's Ideal Gift, 17; Bonds Mill stable's Colonel Read, 117; Coldstream stable's Rover, 117; Mrs. H. C. Wolfe's Evelyn Rolls, 115; Cedar farm's Record Crop, 114; Coldstream stable's Appleknocker, 114; James Emery's Sunnip, 114; L. A. Haydel's Birthmark, 114; Lt. Col. C. W. Whitney's Signals Bloke, 114, and Alamein, 111, and Coldstream stable's Doggone, 113.

Conn McCreary, St. Louis jockey, rode three straight winners today, including the Havahome stable's Bud Grey in the featured Three Score and Ten club purse before 8,167.

After bringing home Bud Grey, $4.20, in the fifth race McCreary hustled Mustafa, $9.20, under the wire in the sixth and topped off his performance with Prospect Boy, a $67 long shot, in the seventh.

Hawks' Fans Hot; Bring On Your Blizzard

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks' counting room yesterday reported the largest advance ticket sale of the season for the Hawks' hockey engagement with the league leading Montreal Canadiens tomorrow night. Which goes to prove that supposed deterrents like a little snow, ice and chill can't cool off a red hot Hawk fan.

Earlier evidence of the fact the hockey nuts of these parts aren't blizzard conscious was given when 10,032 got to the Chicago Stadium in Thursday night's storm to see the Bruins and the Hawks play and fight, with almost 2,000 others canceling reservations only because there were five and six foot drifts between their suburban homes and the rink.

With only 16 games to play, including one tonight with Toronto, the Canadiens have a 6½ game lead over the second place Detroit Red Wings.

The Canadiens have defeated the Hawks six times in seven games. The best the Hawks have been able to do against the leaders was a 1 to 1 tie here on Jan. 16.

Hawks Game Behind Bruins.

Manager Paul Thompson reported that his players were not disheartened by their defeat by Boston which dropped them out of a tie with the Bruins for fourth place, lowest rating in the Stanley cup eligibility. The Hawks, now only a game behind the Bruins have one more game to play than the Bruins. The Hawks have 14 games to play, Boston, and Toronto 13.

President Bill Tobin of the Hawks announced he had caused the arrest of three youths for throwing paper tape on the ice at Thursday night's game, but withdrew charges when they showed enlistment papers. He said that the vigil against hoodlums who throw debris, especially small objects meant to cause injury to the skaters, will continue and that prosecutions will follow the apprehension of any of this odd type of sportsmen.

FORT CUSTER IS BEATEN, 83 TO 23, BY GREAT LAKES

Fort Custer, Mich., Feb. 11 (AP).—Great Lakes' basketball team won its 19th successive game tonight, drubbing Fort Custer's soldier five, 83 to 23, for a second time this season.

The soldiers, who held the first game count to 63 to 38, had an alibi to explain in part tonight's runaway. Their leading scorer, Howard McCarty, slipped on the ice in chow line this morning and bruised his leg so badly he couldn't play.

Paul Armstrong, former Indiana star, led the sailors with 17 points. After the first half, which ended 44 to 10, Great Lakes turned the contest over to the reserves. It was Great Lakes' 26th victory in 28 games and Fort Custer's 13th loss in 21. Lineups:

Hammond Clark Takes Division Title, 51 to 41

Hammond Clark High school's quintet defeated Gary Emerson, 51 to 41, in Hammond last night to win the western division title of the Northern Indiana conference. East Chicago Washington was eliminated by losing to Gary Horace Mann, 34 to 28, while Clark was winning its 13th straight victory.

DARO APPEARS SET FOR DOG SHOW AWARD

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—A dog wise in the ways of the show ring came back to the scene of his greatest triumph today and again challenged for the best-in-show award of the Westminster Kennel club show in Madison Square Garden.

Six years ago as an 11 month old puppy, Daro of Maridor and three other members of the same English setter litter owned by Dwight Ellis of Springfield, Mass., invaded the Garden. All won honors, but the biggest of all went to Daro, which was judged the best in the nation's largest canine exhibition.

Sickness Nearly Cost Life.

Then came a siege of sickness that almost cost Daro his life. He recovered and went south to be trained for field trials. No great success thru the field, Daro was sold to C. G. Dimon of Roxbury, Conn. Under the guidance of Charley Palmer, the orange belton setter returned to the Garden show two years ago, but was badly beaten.

Today the well built hunting dog was in fine form. He paraded to the top of the English setters in a manner that caused many dog fanciers to predict that he would be mighty tough to beat when the judging narrows down to the variety groups tomorrow afternoon.

Braegate Model Vindicated.

Other notable victories were scored by Florence B. Ilch's collie, Ch. Braegate Model of Bellhaven from Red Bank, N. J.; Mrs. Barbara Lowe Fallass' She's Bonney of Andely, a smooth haired fox terrier from Cross River, N. Y.; Glass Wagon, a whippet owned by the Saddle Rock kennel of Doylestown, Pa.; Charles E. Gels' kerry blue, Ch. Kenmare Brian Baru of Johnstown, Pa., and Mrs. W. Johnston's pert little sealyham from Northampton, Mass., Ch. Hampton Hillplay Boy.

Braegate Model's victory was something of a vindication for his defeat last year when he was dropped out of consideration because of a slightly injured ear. She's Bonney triumphed over her kennelmate, the Marchioness, which topped the class at the specialty show yesterday while Kenmare Brian took the measure of last year's best kerry blue, Impertinent Lady, from the Sirarno kennels of Rye, N. Y.

Otto Graham Will Be Heard Over W-G-N Today

Von Steuben Captures Pair from Senn

Von Steuben won two games from Senn in the north section of the City league basketball competition yesterday with the juniors using their triumph to move into a tie for first place with Lane. Howard Nierman scored 22 points to lead the juniors to their 50 to 37 victory while Lawrence Goldstein paced the seniors to a 47 to 31 triumph with eight baskets.

In the west section, the Marshall seniors beat McKinley, 56 to 11, for their sixth victory in seven starts to move into a second place tie with Wells behind the league leading Austin five. Senior lineups:

THORNTON BEATS CALUMET CITY QUINTET, 48-38

Thornton High of Harvey, one of the state's four unbeaten basketball teams, won its ninth South Suburban victory last night by defeating Calumet City, 48 to 38. Blue Island retained its second place status by scoring a 46 to 34 margin over Lockport.

In the Suburban league, Proviso High of Maywood maintained its supremacy with a 34 to 33 escape over Oak Park as Glenn Schlichting, the conference's leading scorer, accounted for 10 points. Evanston clung to its runner-up position by defeating Waukegan, 46 to 25.

With the leading Glenbard five idle, the lesser lights of the West Suburban league went about trying to boost their own positions as Riverside won its third victory, 39 to 23, over La Grange and Downers Grove captured No. 3 over York of Elmhurst, 38 to 27. Lineups:

Hearing Statement Proved False.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The double talk and intrigue by which Wendell L. Willkie camouflaged his dealings with Wall street bankers before he got into politics was disclosed yesterday by an investigation of one large financial transaction which he directed.

The operation was carried out in December, 1939, a few months before Willkie quit as the $75,000 a year president of the Commonwealth and Southern Utility corporation whose management had long been dominated by the J. P. Morgan & Co. interests.

The transaction involved the sale of 28 million dollars of securities by an operating unit of the Commonwealth and Southern group. The deal was awarded by Willkie to a syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., an offshoot of J. P. Morgan & Co. Other bankers offering to pay a higher price than the Morgan syndicate were frozen out of the competition by Willkie.

Statement Proved False.

Explaining his action later at a securities and exchange commission hearing, Willkie stated under oath that he had been advised that Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago, a member of the syndicate opposing Morgan, was not interested in making a bid. This statement was proved false. Moreover, the investigation disclosed that Willkie tried to put pressure on Halsey, Stuart to withdraw from the syndicate, but had failed.

These events occurred before Willkie was seriously considered as a Presidential candidate. Even at that time, however, Willkie did not relish being portrayed as a tool of Wall street bankers and he put in an uncomfortable day on the witness stand trying to justify his actions.

The securities sold to the Morgan syndicate were issued by the Consumers Power company, an operating utility in Michigan, control of which was held by Commonwealth and Southern. J. P. Morgan & Co. and its successors in the underwriting field had a tight monopoly on the financing of the properties.

First Criticism of Deal.

The first criticism of Willkie's deal with the Morgan group came from Otis & Co. of Cleveland which had written Willkie asking for an opportunity to bid on the securities. No reply was received by Otis. Thereupon Otis sent its attorney to Washington to intervene in the proceedings in which Consumers Power sought authority to complete its sale to the Morgan syndicate. It was during this hearing that Willkie's unsuccessful efforts to break up the Otis syndicate were brought into the open.

It was brought out that Willkie made a long distance telephone call at midnight Dec. 3 to Charles Y. Freeman, chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company in Chicago. The hearing was to be resumed the next day before the SEC on Willkie's petition for approval of the sale of Consumers Power securities to the Morgan syndicate.

Willkie tried to enlist Freeman's aid in getting Halsey, Stuart to withdraw from the Otis group. This Freeman refused to do altho he promised to talk to Harold L. Stuart, head of the banking firm, and report back to Willkie. Stuart's firm, because of its financial resources and prestige, was the most important member of the Otis group. Its principal client at that time was Commonwealth Edison for which it had underwritten some 400 million dollars of securities over a period of about two years.

Stuart Wished to Bid.

The exact conversations between Willkie and Freeman are not a matter of record. It is known, however, that Freeman did talk to Stuart and was informed that Stuart's firm wanted an opportunity to bid on the Consumer Power securities. This information was relayed by Freeman to Willkie.

Two days later Willkie took the stand in the SEC hearing. When he was first questioned about the phone call to Freeman he indicated that he was trying to get Halsey, Stuart to make a bid on Consumers Power issue. Later he qualified this by saying that he had only wished to learn whether Halsey, Stuart was interested. Then he added, under further questioning, that he had not indicated to Freeman whether he wanted Halsey, Stuart to bid, merely asking Freeman to ascertain "what Halsey, Stuart's interest was."

Altho hedging on the purpose of his call to Freeman, Willkie was explicit in stating that he had been informed that Halsey, Stuart was not interested in the issue. This was in direct conflict with a statement made by Robert J. Bulkley, former United States senator from Ohio, who was representing Otis & Co. at the hearing. Bulkley's statement was subsequently confirmed by Stuart and others concerned.

Report Another Phone Call.

It is related by those present that after completing his sworn testimony Willkie rushed from the hearing room, again phoned Chicago, and for his own protection repeated to Freeman the version he had given on the witness stand of their telephone conversations.

Willkie's company was eventually permitted by the SEC to proceed with its sale of securities to the Morgan syndicate with the understanding that the underwriting fee was to be impounded. The fee was held up pending further investigation of Morgan Stanley's "affiliation" with Commonwealth and Southern. In January, 1942, Morgan Stanley voluntarily reduced its fee from $50,800 to $16,160. As a result of this action inquiry into the affiliation of the two companies was dropped.

Most of the leading Wall street banking houses were in the Morgan Stanley syndicate. The competing syndicate which threatened to upset the Wall street monopoly was made up of middle western bankers in whose territory the operations of Consumers Power centered.

U. S. ASKS TO ENTER IRRADIATION PATENT INFRINGEMENT SUIT

The department of justice thru Daniel Britt, special assistant to the attorney general, yesterday filed a petition in federal District court asking that the government be permitted to intervene as a defendant in the pending private civil suit of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation against the Douglas Laboratories, manufacturing chemists.

The suit, brought last year by the alumni foundation, charges infringement by Douglas Laboratories of patents relative to vitamin D irradiation of foods and of medicinal preparations by ultraviolet rays. These patents are held by the foundation.

Government intervention is sought, the petition said, in order to assert the public interest against alleged abuse of patents and to obtain an injunction against practices under the patent licensing system which the department of justice considers violations of anti-trust laws.

The government charges the foundation has conspired with its various licensees to divide marketing territory and fields of use and to fix original sales prices and the resale prices of products.

AMERICAN WINE SHARES DRAW A BID OF $350,000

Bids were opened yesterday in the office of the alien property custodian in Chicago for the purchase of 135,000 shares of stock in the American Wine company, St. Louis. These shares were formerly held by Henkell & Co., wine merchants of Wiesbaden, Germany.

High bid of $350,000 was made by Malcolm Woldenberg and Samuel Lentz of Newark, N. J. The alien property custodian has 15 days in which to decide whether to accept the bid.

The shares in the American Wine company, which produces Cook's Imperial Champagne and other wines, represent approximately 52 per cent of the total outstanding.

Stock Market Upturn Cut by Profit Selling

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—The stock market ran into profit taking today, after a week of recoveries centering on rails and specialties. Dealings slackened after a fast opening in which blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares crowded the ticker tape and gains, running to a point or more, were trimmed in the majority of cases at the close.

Two weeks of reaction had put the market in a healthier technical condition and, when General Motors lifted its dividend from 50 cents to 70 cents, customers generally returned to the buying ranks after Monday's stumble.

Today's hesitancy resulted mainly from the desire of share owners to lighten accounts for the lengthy holiday week-end and to some apprehension over the Italian battle crisis.

Two stock exchange seats sold for $50,000 each, the highest price since May, 1940, and an increase of $2,000 over the preceding transfer. A curb exchange seat sold for $9,000, an increase of $1,000.

BONDS CLOSE MIXED.

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—The bond market shifted uneasily today with profit taking leaving its mark in some sections while in others persistent accumulation of individual issues brought rises of fractions to more than a point. The rails were the most active group.

Most foreign dollar bonds were bought at lower prices.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Prices advanced in quiet trading yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange, with new 1943-'44 peaks registered by the preferred stocks of American Public Service, Consumers, and Standard Dredging, on gains of 1¼ to 1½ points. Pullman also reached a new top on a ¾ point rise. Among volume leaders, New York Central and Libby, McNeill & Libby advanced small fractions, and Serrick B was unchanged.

VIEWS CHICAGO AS EXPORTING HUB AFTER WAR

Chicago immediately after the war will be the leading export center of the United States, R. W. Gifford, president of Borg-Warner International corporation, predicted yesterday on the eve of the Chicago world trade conference to be held in the La Salle hotel Monday.

Foreign importers are looking to Chicago as their biggest market for finished products, Gifford said. He added that his observations were supported by a survey made by Borg-Warner representatives in nine Latin American countries. The war has established in the Chicago area the most diversified production of goods in the nation's history, he said.

WFA Studies Rye's Use for War Alcohol

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—The war food administration is studying the possibility of using more than 10 million bushels of rye this year for industrial alcohol, it was learned tonight.

With current stocks of rye at about 30 million bushels and recent consumption at the rate of about 5 million bushels a month, WFA officials said withdrawal of 10 million bushels for alcohol distilleries would cut deeply into the supply of rye flour for bread making.

Seek to Boost Alcohol Yield.

Meanwhile, grain trade sources disclosed active interest in the rye market by certain milling enterprises which are experimenting with a process to obtain a larger yield of alcohol from rye. The experiments are being encouraged by WFA which is attempting to find substitutes for wheat and corn in industrial alcohol production.

Reviewing the condition of grain supplies, the war production board said wheat is being consumed at a more rapid rate than last year. Wheat stocks total about 810 million bushels, or 350 million bushels below inventories of Jan. 1, 1943. By June 30 the carryover will be about 275 million bushels, less than half of the June 30, 1943, total, WPB said.

Corn Supply Shrinks.

The agency said the corn supply was "tight," with stocks on Jan. 1 about 350 million bushels below Jan. 1, 1943.

"Corn is being consumed at such a high rate that it is estimated the carryover by next fall will be 200 million bushels, compared with nearly 400 million bushels in the fall of 1943," WPB said.

It indicated the tight corn supply will continue for six or eight months.

GRAINS MOSTLY LOWER

Easing of feed grain shortage in the east attracted widespread attention yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Some brokers had offers to cancel previous sales of cash oats and barley and the demand for corn was less aggressive.

Selling pressure was apparent in all grain futures in early trading. Wheat rallied late in the session on short covering by traders who wished to even up their market position over the double holiday.

Wheat closed ¼ cent a bushel higher to ⅛ cent lower. Oats were unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Rye was ½ to ⅝ cent lower and at one time was off 1¼ cents. Barley finished at the lowest prices in approximately a month by losing ⅛ to ⅜ cent.

LLOYD MAXWELL IS NAMED AID IN RED CROSS DRIVE

Appointment of Lloyd Maxwell, vice president of Roche, Williams and Cunnyngham, Inc., Chicago advertising agency, as chairman of the advertising and publishers group, business division, for the Red Cross war fund in the Chicago chapter area, was announced yesterday by Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman. The campaign will be conducted in March to obtain 12 million dollars in the Chicago area.

EMPLOYES' 100 BILLION '43 PAY SETS NEW PEAK

Tops 1942's Total by 21 Billion.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—American workers received a record 100 billion 603 million dollars in salaries and wages last year, nearly 21 billion more than in 1942 and 48 billion more than in 1929, the commerce department reported tonight.

Income payments to individuals, including investment returns, in 1943 amounted to 141 billion 717 million compared with 115 billion 480 million a year earlier and 82 billion 578 million in 1929.

Such payments in December set an all-time record of 13 billion 460 million, more than 1 billion above the November high. Most of the December increase was attributed to heavy year-end dividend and interest payments. These totaled 1 billion 561 million and brought the total for the year to 9 billion 940 million.

December Total Larger.

December wages and salaries amounted to 9 billion 36 million, an increase of 136 million over November.

The department said December payments, when adjusted for seasonal variation, were equivalent to an annual rate of 151 billion or more than double the 70 billion 829 million paid to individuals in 1939. The rate of expansion in income payments slackened last year from the greater rate of increase during 1942, it was noted.

The department cautioned against confusing income payments to individuals with national income estimates, which include undistributed corporate profits, and have not been compiled for 1943. The difference between the two figures was not large in 1929, when total national income was only 748 million greater than individual income payments. In 1942 national income estimates were 4 billion 311 million higher than payments to individuals.

RETAIL SALES SOAR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11 (AP).—An unprecedented volume of Christmas buying sent December retail sales to a record peak of 6 billion 716 million dollars and pushed such sales for the entire year to 63 billion 269 million, also a new high mark, the commerce department reported today.

Last year's sales were 10 per cent higher than in 1942 and 64 per cent above the average for the years 1935-'39, altho price increases accounted for nearly all of the gain over 1942, the report indicated.

Adjusted for known price changes, the physical volume of 1943 retail trade was 1.4 per cent above that of 1942 and 7 per cent below 1941.

Among 11 major business groups, sales in places where food and drinks are sold showed the largest gain during 1943, 29 per cent, the department said.

Florida Rail Accommodations Are Slashed by Military Needs

Increasing military travel is reducing space available for civilians on Florida trains, it was learned yesterday. Allotments of accommodations on north bound Florida trains are to be cut about 25 per cent and the cuts on south bound trains will be made as required.

The railroads have been coöperating with the military forces in providing space in sleeping cars, and the military was reported by railroad officials to be keeping its space demands at a minimum.

However, military needs are rising. Included is the transportation of casualties from the fighting fronts.

Coaches Carry 40 Per Cent.

The railroads are interested in providing as much space in sleeping cars as they can. However, in the past it has been possible to provide sleepers for only 60 per cent of military riders, leaving 40 per cent to ride in coaches on overnight trips.

Production of military sleepers by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company is easing the military situation, but even when all the 1,200 cars are finished, it is expected that 20 per cent will still have to travel in coaches.

Further reductions in space available for civilians on trains operating in other parts of the country are expected. The demands of the Pacific war are reported especially heavy, taxing rail facilities between certain Pacific coast cities and Chicago.

Military travel was reported to have eased in some areas, making it less difficult for civilians to travel. Some railroad executives predict that for the country as a whole the travel outlook may improve as troops move out of the country, thereby reducing the number of persons moving to military camps and nearby towns to visit soldier relatives.

The army is reported doing a good job in spreading its traffic over as many trains as possible to ease the travel burden. It uses only about 6 per cent of the available sleeping accommodations on the regularly scheduled trains on which it has space reserved.

Future Service

Sharply increased passenger traffic thru the use of improved streamlined trains after the war was predicted yesterday by C. A. Liddle, president of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. If the roads are able to go thru with present plans to extend streamlined service, passenger business should account "for much more than the prewar 10 per cent of gross revenues," he said. Pullman-Standard today will observe the anniversary of the nation's first streamliner, the City of Salina, which emerged from the Chicago shops of the company on Feb. 12, 1934.

Discuss Plans to Cope with Rise in Traffic

Plans to expand Chicago's local transportation system to accommodate the 37,600 new workers who must be added to war plant pay rolls in the next two months were discussed yesterday but no definite conclusions were reached, it was learned. Guy Richardson, chief of the division of local transportation of the office of defense transportation, and Lester Brown, area war man power commission director, were the conferees.

Richardson for 18 years was operating head of the Chicago surface lines before going to Washington. He discussed contemplated changes both with Brown and with H. B. Potter, regional head of the local transportation division of the ODT.

Part of Plan to Aid Workers.

Expansion and modernization of transportation facilities to help workers in plants on the city's perimeter is one of the main points in the WMC program which local committees have been asked to effect in an effort to keep Chicago out of a No. 1, or critical labor shortage, classification by the WMC.

William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, for several months has advocated improvement of transportation to service new housing areas and to enable north and south side workers to take jobs in far west side plants.

Pay Rolls Make Big Gain.

Richardson was told that despite the withdrawal of thousands of men from Chicago by selective service and removal of others to war plants elsewhere, pay rolls have increased by more than 200,000 above peace time levels.

Officials said this has resulted in serious overtaxing of all transportation, and ODT was asked to consider the addition of new bus lines and more equipment by both the Chicago Motor Coach company and the surface lines.

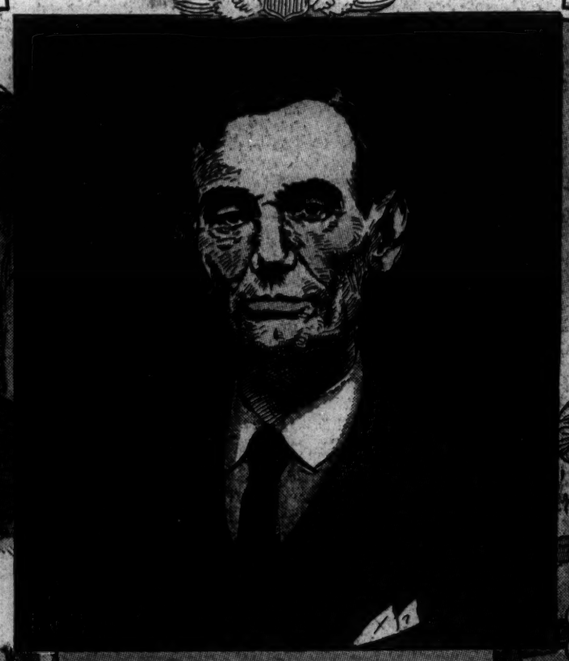
FAMOUS LINCOLN CARTOONS BY McCUTCHEON

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS AGO.

I HEERD NANCY LINCOLN'S GOT ANOTHER BABY—A BOY THIS TIME. GOODNESS KNOWS WHUT SHE'LL DO WITH IT THEY KAINT SKESSLY TAKE KEER O' LITTLE SAIREY AS IT IS"

From The Tribune of Feb. 12, 1929.

AS HE WOULD HAVE LOOKED IN MODERN GARB



From The Tribune of Feb. 12, 1930.

● As the subject of the three famous cartoons reproduced here in color, John T. McCutcheon chose Abraham Lincoln, whose 135th birthday the nation is observing today. The cartoons were drawn in different years, the one at the left, as its caption discloses, being made for the 120th birthday of the great Civil war President. It concerns the humble birth of Lincoln, in the same vein that the cartoon on the right deals with a problem of his Spartan boyhood. The center cartoon shows how Lincoln would have appeared beardless and in the fashion of a decade ago.
